NO AGREEMENT REACHED ON OPA BILL

Big 4 Ministers Reach Agreement On Trieste Issue, Italian Dispute

Byrnes's Call For 21 Nation Peace Conference To Meet This Month Sets Off "Awful Row"

By JOSEPH DYNAN

PARIS, July 3. (AP)—The four-power foreign ministers council achieved complete accord today on internationalization of Trieste and solved the Italian colonies dispute but clashed on American demands for convoking the 21-nation European peace conference.

Senator Arthur Vandenberg said the demand by United States Secretary of State James F. Byrnes that the ministers call the peace conference this month touched off an "awful row." Byrnes engaged in a sharp exchange on the subject with Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov during the four-hour session held on one of the hottest afternoons of the year.

Molotov Opposes Fixing Date

Molotov fiercely opposed any move to fix a date for the peace conference until the four foreign ministers agreed on the Italian reparations question.

Standing by his repeatedly voiced demand, Byrnes insisted that the ministers convoke the other Allied nations for July 22 or July 25, American informants said. Molotov instead suggested September 1 or 15 but still blocked any action on setting a date.

Subsequently Vandenberg expressed the opinion that the peace conference would be called sometime during the later part of July.

Byrnes, Vandenberg and British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin produced formulas which cut the long-standing knots on Trieste and on Italy's African Empire.

Drafted Document Previous Night

In advancing a six-point statement of basic principles for Trieste, Byrnes said he had drafted this document last night with the aid of Vandenberg. With one French and two Russian amendments the statement was adopted as a foundation for creating an international zone at the head of the Adriatic.

Later Bevin proposed a three-point formula for the Italian colonies which would keep them temporarily under British Military Administration but permit four-power commissions of inquiry to investigate conditions in the areas. The council adopted Bevin's plan along with a general declaration of principles to be incorporated into the Italian peace treaty draft.

The Trieste issue for months has held up the writing of European peace treaties. It was settled when Molotov accepted conditions expressed yesterday by United States Secretary of State James F. Byrnes that the projected international city should be placed under United Nations control.

Held Out For UN Control

Molotov previously had insisted that Trieste be internationalized — as proposed by French President and Foreign Minister Georges Bidault—under supervision of a four-power council.

Byrnes and British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin had held out for United Nations control.

Settlement of this issue came after more than eight months of discussion in conferences in London and Paris, which twice previously reached the level of the foreign ministers themselves. During the interval between the London conference last fall and the first Paris conference last month, the ministers' deputies wrestled with the issue.

Both British and American officials connected with the conferences have contended all along that once the Trieste and Italian colonial issues were settled the drafts of peace treaties for Italy and the Balkans could be drawn up within a comparatively short time.

ILL FROM EXCITEMENT, William Heirens (center), charged with assault and burglary, and questioned at length concerning the Degnan kidnap-slaying case, is held by county jail attendants when he became ill and collapsed while being photographed for jail records.

Heirens Held Under $270,000 Bond On 25 Charges Of Assault Or Burglary

None Refer To Degnan Slaying Which Police Believe He Is Guilty

CHICAGO, July 3. (AP)—William Heirens, 17-year-old University of Chicago student whose finger and palm prints, prosecutors said, are identical to those on the Suzanne Degnan kidnap note, was held for the grand jury under $270,000 bond today on 25 charges of assault or burglary.

Although the action assured officials of further custody of the youth, pending further investigation of the Degnan case, they are prevented under the law from questioning him further without his consent.

Denies Slaying

Throughout nearly five days of intermittent questioning, Heirens has denied any knowledge of the kidnap-slaying last Jan. 7 of the six year old Degnan girl. He has undergone two lie-detector tests but prosecutors said he was "uncooperative" and that the results were "inconclusive."

The FBI and the Police Bureau of Identification have reported that Heirens' finger and palm print were identical to those found on a ransom note demanding $20,000 from the Degnans.

Evidence on the 25 charges will be placed before a grand jury Tuesday and Wednesday, Assistant State's Attorney Richard B. Austin said.

Bond was set at $15,000 today on each of four charges of assault to murder and at $10,000 on each of 21 burglary charges. Heirens' counsel said previously no effort would be made to provide bond. None of the charges involved the Degnan case.

Speaks One Word

Heirens collapsed while being photographed for jail records shortly after his court appearance and physicians attributed his illness to "excitement." The youth spoke only one word in court, saying "no," when asked if he had anything to say.

Chief of Detectives Walter Storms said the Chicago Police Crime Laboratory was studying stains resembling blood stains found on handkerchiefs in Heirens' room.

Storm said also that the laboratory was studying two hairs found on the Degnan girl's torso which, he said, had been determined by the FBI to be animal hairs, possibly from an overcoat.

The youth's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Heirens, visited him in the Cook County Jail Hospital again today and told him "we are still with you." Both have expressed faith in their son's innocence.

"Heirens Is Innocent, I Will Strike Again," Unsigned Note Warns

CHICAGO, July 3 (AP) — Chicago police who have been questioning William Heirens, 17, in connection with the Suzanne Degnan kidnap slaying January 7, said today they had received an unsigned note which said:

"Release Heirens at once or I will strike again. Heirens is innocent. This time it will be a girl 16 years old."

Written on blue lined paper, the note had been posted in the downtown district. It was turned over to the crime detection laboratory for comparison with the Degnan ransom note.

Governors Asked To Leave Hands Off Rent Prices

BALTIMORE, July 3. (AP)—The National Apartment Owners Association today asked governors of the states not to initiate executive orders or legislative action freezing rents.

In letters to the 48 chief executives, President George M. Englar of the association said:

"We sincerely urge that our industry be given a reasonable time to prove it can operate without government controls."

Englar said his appeal was promoted by the action of retiring Stabilization Director Chester Bowles in asking governors to freeze rents at last month's levels.

"The CIO-PAC combination that controlled our national economy through the OPA x x x would now invoke the aid of your state," he wrote.

"Rents are now 15 per cent below the level of 18 prewar years. Wages alone, before the recent increases, were 68 per cent above this average and practically everything that enters into the cost of operating rental properties also has increased."

Death Sentence Commuted For 2 Palestine Jews

By CHARTER L. DAVIDSON

JERUSALEM, July 3 (AP) — Sir Alan Cunningham, Palestine High Commissioner, today commuted to life imprisonment the death sentences passed on two Jewish youths for firing at British soldiers, and the underground organization Irgun Zvai Leumi promised that three British officers held as hostages for the pair would be "released as soon as possible."

A broadcast by the underground group expressed "gratification" at the clemency.

Meanwhile, the British army announced discovery of nine new caches of munitions in a fantastic underground arsenal at the Jewish village of Mesheq Yagur.

By noon today, the British said, it had unearthed more than 4,000 grenades, 2,200 mortar bombs, 30 rifles, 46 pistols, thousands of rounds of ammunition of all types, and 800 pounds of explosives at Mesheq Yagur in secret ammunition chambers.

With only half the area of the settlement explored, 19 caches of

Curzon Line Set As Poland's East Border By Reds

Negative Voters Hold Big Majority On Provisional Regime Issue

By LARRY ALLEN

WARSAW, July 3 (AP) — Soviet troops have driven stakes along Poland's eastern border, indicating permanent establishment of the Curzon line as the Polish-Russian frontier, even while the counting of Polish referendum ballots showed sharp disapproval of such a proposed western border.

In a visit to Bialystok yesterday, I saw the soldiers staking out the line where Russian and Polish commissioners have made minor rectifications along a three-mile stretch.

In the Bialystok area, an authoritative informant said, Poles voted heavily against the referendum questions on parliament and nationalization, and a straight 20 per cent voted against the question "do you approve establishment of Poland's western frontier on the Oder and Neisse rivers?"

The informant said 80 per cent of the ballots might be annulled because voters invalidated them by writing in such phrases as "we want back Lwow and Wilno."

(The referendum question asked approval of a western boundary gained at Germany's expense, but made no reference to the eastern boundary where Poland lost territory to Russia.)

In Warsaw today, government reports declared outlaw bands had terrorized large areas of Poland before and during the voting Sunday, burning villages and wounding and killing election officials.

Vice-Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, head of the Polish Peasant Party and former premier of the exiled Polish government in London, again charged election irregularities and asserted that thousands of his party members had been arrested, Mikolajcyzk had urged a negative vote on the first referendum question: "Do you want a one-house parliament?"

Chaplin-Barry Case Is In Court Again

LOS ANGELES, July 3 (AP) — Comedian Charles Chaplin petitioned the state supreme court today to review a judgment that he is the father of Carol Ann Berry, 2½-year-old daughter of his former protege, Joan Berry.

Chaplin appealed from a finding of the state court of appeal which upheld a superior court judgment in favor of the child. He alleged, in attacking the judgment:

1—That there was no showing that Joan Berry had not been with other men at about the time Carol Ann was conceived.

2—That as guardian of the baby, Miss Berry had the right to sign a prenatal agreement that blood tests would be employed to determine parentage.

3—That the blood tests should have been conclusive.

4—That when Chaplin was asked to stand trial beside Carol Ann, who was held in the arms of her mother, it might have prejudiced the jury because "Chaplin might have been an unpopular figure and this comparison might have aroused the passion and prejudice of the jury."

5—That the trial judge gave instructions to the jury which were open to argument.

The testimony of two doctors in the trial of the case that a blood test eliminated possibility of Chaplin being the father was rejected on the ground that the state supreme court has ruled against blood tests as a means of establishing parentage.

Roxas Takes Oath As New Philippine Republic Is Born

MacArthur Warns Independence Comes During Troubled Times

MANILA, Thursday, July 4 (AP) — The Republic of the Philippines was born today amid the rubble of war, cradled by the strong hand of Uncle Sam.

Happy, excited thousands attended the historic ceremony which cut the islands free from the United States and gave Filipinos their long-desired freedom.

Manuel A. Roxas was sworn in as president and Elpidio Quirino as vice president to guide the country in its first years of independence.

MacArthur Issues Warning

General of the Army Douglas MacArthur, who led the liberation of the islands from the Japanese, described the infant republic as coming into being amidst issues "which have never weighed more heavily upon the destiny of the human race."

"In their solution this new republic will be called upon to take its stand," he continued.

"God grant that it may raise its voice firmly and fearlessly in alignment with those great forces of right which seek to avoid the destructive influences which, despite our past victories, still harass the world."

Representatives of 50 nations attended the ceremonies marking independent under the Tydings-McGuffie Act. Freedom came to the archipelago after a 10-year transitional period as a commonwealth with a Filipino chief executive.

President Truman was represented by Postmaster General Robert E. Hannegan, W. Stuart Symington, assistant secretary of war for air, and J. Weldon Jones, assistant director of the budget bureau.

Separate committees represented the house and senate of the American congress. Paul V. McNutt attended as the first U. S. Ambassador to the new nation. He was the last high commissioner to the Philippines under the commonwealth.

Tydings Speaks

Senator Tydings, first to speak, called the granting of independence "one of the most unprecedented, most idealistic and most far-reaching events in all recorded history."

He said it established "a new example of human justice, human dignity and friendly relations between great people x x x and an entirely new concept of international relationships."

The republic will be nurtured in its first tender years by the strong economic hand of the United States. The Tidings bill for rehabilitation gives the islands cash, or its equivalent, of $620,000,000 for partial restoration of the tremendous war damage.

The Bell bill, implemented yesterday by the Commonwealth congress, sets up eight years of free trade with preferential trade treatment for 20 years thereafter. Tariffs are to become gradually higher year by year until the full levy is reached.

LABOR WILL PICKET STORES VIOLATING FORMER OPA PRICES

BALTIMORE, July 3. (AP)—Plans to picket retail stores where prices soar in the absence of OPA controls were announced by organized labor here today.

A labor delegation meeting with Mayor Theodore R. McKeldin told him the pickets would carry placards setting fourth the price situation at individual stores to warn the public in cases where unwarranted prices were being charged.

J. David McCordle, labor spokesman, also said a mass meeting was being arranged to organize buyers' strikes in an effort to check rising prices.

Truman Signs Bill Making Unions Subject To Anti-Racketeering Law

WASHINGTON, July 3 (AP) — President Truman today signed into law the Hobbs bill making unions subject to the national anti-racketeering law.

This act provides stiff penalties for those obstructing interstate commerce by robbery or extortion.

Mr. Truman announced his action in a special message to Congress in which he said:

"Section 11 of the Case (labor disputes) bill seriously weakened the protection afforded to labor by the Norris-LaGuardia act and correspondingly crippled the specific exceptions contained in section seven of the Case bill. The present act, standing alone, is not subject to this objection."

Mr. Truman vetoed the Case bill and was sustained in this action by the House.

In vetoing the Case bill the president approved the principle of the House clauses it contained but expressed fear that they might interfere with labor's right to strike and to picket peacefully.

"The attorney general," Mr. Truman told Congress today, "advises me that the present bill does not in any way interfere with the rights of unions in carrying out their legitimate objectives. He bases this conclusion upon the language of the bill, and upon the legislative history."

The new Hobbs law forbids anyone to obtain money or other valuables "by wrongful use of actual or threatened force, violence, or fear, or under color of official right."

It carries maximum penalties of 20 years imprisonment or $10,000 fine, or both.

Bitterly opposed by labor groups, it had been offered annually by Rep. Hobbs (D-Ala) since 1942.

The bill was designed to overcome a 1942 Supreme Court decision holding that labor unions were exempt from the Anti-Racketeering law.

The court decision was in a case involving members of an AFL truck drivers union in New York City. They were alleged to have used "strong arm" methods to compel farmers bringing their produce in from New Jersey to hire union drivers in the city or else pay the union a fee.

Spokesmen for organized labor contended the Hobbs act could be used to interfere with legitimate union activities. They argued too that it was unnecessary, on the ground that there already were enough laws to deal with any criminal activities by union members.

Andrei Gromyko Is More Co-Operative At Atomic Meeting

Soviet Representative Abandons Fight For Two-Thirds Majority Rule

By FRANCIS W. CARPENTER

NEW YORK, July 3—(AP)—Soviet Russian suddenly abandoned today her fight for a two-thirds majority rule in the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission and the commission unanimously decided that a simple majority of seven members would govern all its decisions.

Meeting for 39 minutes in a hotel ballroom, the commission adopted all rules of procedure presented by a committee of experts and then adjourned without a date for its next meeting.

Andrei A. Gromyko, Russia, showed a conciliatory spirit at the outset when he called for the commission to adopt a rule providing for a two-thirds vote—eight members of the commission of 12 nations—on matters of substance and a majority of seven on matters of procedure.

Previously his representative on the committee of experts had held out for a two-thirds vote on all questions.

Dr. Herbert V. Evatt of Australia, chairman, quickly opposed Gromygo. He referred to the involved debate in the security council last week in which Gromyko three times invoked the veto and said it had demonstrated there sometimes was difficulty in making a distinction between procedural and substantive matters.

At this point Gromyko gave up the fight.

"I am no more interested in this proposal than any other member of the commission and if the other members do not favor it I will not insist," he said.

He did not explain his reasons for desiring a two-thirds vote on substantive matters other than to say that "all decisions will not be of equal importance."

Housing Expeditor Gets AFL Promise

WASHINGTON, July 3. (AP)—An AFL agreement to "use every means within its power" to settle strikes and prevent work stoppages on any housing construction was announced today by Housing Expeditor Wilson Wyatt.

Negotiations are in progress with the CIO, he disclosed also, to cover its thousands of workers in plants where building materials are produced.

Outgrowth of weeks of effort by Wyatt to obtain a labor peace pact in furtherance of the emergency housing program, the agreement was signed by leaders of the AFL Building and Construction Trades Department in Wyatt's National Housing Agency Office.

It falls short of the expeditor's original hope for an outright no-strike pledge like the war-time agreement of organized labor, but he told reporters it was " a very satisfactory" understanding.

Illinois-Central Strikes

Military Court Acquits Lichfield Guard Of Beating

Tennessee GI Was Charged With Striking, Kicking Yank Prisoners

By DON DOANE

BAD NAUHEIM, Germany, July 3 (AP)—A military court today acquitted Pfc. Austin D. Gheens of Newport, Tenn., of charges that he struck and kicked American soldiers imprisoned in the Lichfield, England, guardhouse.

In a concurrent trial, a prosecution witness refused to testify against Col. James Kilian of Highland Park, Ill., former commander of the Lichfield camp charged with authorizing cruelty to imprisoned soldiers, because "I fear the things that may happen to me."

Gheens, who denied the charges, was the first Lichfield guard to be acquitted of participation in the beatings and other cruelties of which seven enlisted guards and one officer have been convicted so far.

The court took only 12 minutes to reach its verdict after a two-day trial in which three former Lichfield guards, previously convicted, supported Gheens' denial against accusations by several former prisoners.

Railroad Retirement, Expansion Act Is Up For Senate Approval

WASHINGTON, July 3. (AP)—An expansion of the railroad retirement and unemployment acts to increase the benefits and the number of employes covered was passed by the house today and sent to the senate.

The bill, passed by a rollcall vote of 234 to 49, was the original measure introduced by Rep. Crosser (D-Ohio). Changes proposed by Republicans and a number of Democrats were defeated.

The amendments would have rewritten the Crosser bill into a more conservative measure backed by the house interstate and foreign commerce committee. This had been defeated on June 20 by a vote of 136 to 129. The vote against the amendments today was 180 to 108.

Barkley Expects To Have Measure Ready For Senate Floor On Friday

Banking Committee Recesses After Four-Hour Session Behind Closed Doors

WASHINGTON, July 3. (AP)—The Senate Banking Committee failed to agree on a new OPA bill tonight but Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky.) announced he expects to have one ready for the Senate floor by Friday.

The committee recessed after a four-hour session behind closed doors but will resume work tomorrow despite the July Fourth holiday.

Barkley proposed eliminating two Republican-sponsored pricing amendments from the OPA extension bill vetoed by President Truman, then sending it back to the White House.

When that plan met resistance Barkley countered with a proposed substitute for manufacturers' pricing amendments sponsored by Senator Taft (R-Ohio) and singled out for bitter criticism by Mr. Truman in his veto message.

Barkley Plan Considered

The Barkley substitute still was under consideration when the committee recessed until tomorrow.

Barkley said that after a decision is reached on that proposal, he probably will offer a substitute for the other amendment criticized particularly by Mr. Truman—one by Senator Wherry (R-Neb) setting out a price policy for wholesalers and retailers.

The Taft provision declared in substance that maximum prices applicable to producers, processors and manufacturers must reflect their prices during the first half of October, 1941, plus the weighted average increase in unit cost among typical members of the industry in question.

The Barkley substitute differs in two major particulars: it makes the base period the calendar year 1940, and provides that the ceilings must provide "not less than the average dollar price of such commodity during the base period, plus the increase cost of producing, manufacturing or processing the same accuring since the base period."

Thus, under Barkley's plan, the average price of the commodity among the producers, etc., would govern, instead of each man's base period price.

Barkley announced his expectations of having a bill Friday on the Senate floor after Senator Pepper (D-Fla) called for action on the 20-day extension bill passed by the House.

Pepper first read a list of price rises in food and various commodities and then assured that the Senate should quickly approve a stop-gap extension and "quiet the fears of the people."

Barkley, who had been keeping members of the Senate Banking Committee in session throughout the afternoon, curtly replied that this was a question for the "banking committee to decide."

Will Have Some Bill Ready

In any event, Barkley said the committee would have some kind of an OPA bill—either stopgap or long range—ready tonight or by working on the Fourth of July holiday tomorrow.

He urged senators who planned to leave over the holiday to return ready for action Friday.

Barkley said the committee was trying to draft a bill that "will have reasonable chance for approval by the executive department."

For his own opinion, Barkley said he regarded it better to try and write such a bill than take "two bites at the same cherry or apple."

The OPA issue reached the senate committee after Senator O'Daniel (D-Tex) dropping delaying tactics.

Meanwhile the nation's wholesale markets steadied in a growing belief that congress might revive the OPA with a price roll-back to the June 30 ceilings. And Secretary of Agriculture Anderson asked the dairy industry to maintain former prices until congress acts, notwith-

Thousands Of Marylanders Make Plans To Celebrate The Fourth

[By The Associated Press]

Thousands of Marylanders took the Fourth of July holiday as an opportunity to go somewhere else.

It promised to be a quiet Fourth, even though the first since victory over the Axis and the first in peacetime since 1941.

No longer were the free state's fireworks plants totally engaged in turning out certain death for the nation's enemies. This preoccupation with Germans and Japs prevented them from supplying small and not-so-small boys with torpedoes and cannon crackers during the war years.

"No Sale" On Fireworks

In the lull, Maryland's state legislature rang up a "no sale" sign on their peace-time products with a state-wide fireworks ban passed at the behest of the Maryland league for the blind.

Now fireworks may be used only in organized displays permitted by the state commissioner of insurance after he has been satisfied that shooters and watchers alike will be safe.

Death still stood by ominously—on the state's highways.

Road jams started as early as Tuesday evening at such bottlenecks as the Sandy Point-Matapeake ferry, but the big movement began at the end of the working day Wednesday.

"It looks like everyone is going someplace," said an automobile association official. His office was swamped with requests for routings to oceanside resorts.

The Maryland State Police were out in full force to untangle traffic tieups, keep a check on holiday-happy drivers, and head off accidents if possible.

Ships' Steel Can't Be Made Thick Enough To Protect Crews From Atom

By DON WHITEHEAD

ABOARD U. S. S. APPALACHIAN, Thursday, July 4 (AP)—Ships cannot be built with steel thick enough to protect their crews from the terrific lethal radiation of a close atomic explosion, Col. Stafford Warren, Bikini safety officer, asserted today.

Some of the 73 target vessels remain dangerously radioactive even now, he declared—the fourth day after the ball-of-fire blast which sank five, heavily damaged nine and affected, in all, 59 warships.

He predicted it will be five or six days before all the ships of the guinea pig fleet became "entirely safe."

Radiation released by the bomb was "terrific," he told newsmen.

"Steel is not too good a protection for personnel," he added, "since if armor sufficiently thick to stop the lethal rays were used, "there would be no room in the ships for personnel."

Indications are that if the target fleet had been manned, the blast would have rendered it helpless—since "many not killed by the blast wave would have been unable to carry on their duties because of illness from radiation," Capt. George Lyon of the safety staff pointed out.

Many of the test animals—90 per cent of which survived—have begun to show a falling blood count which may lead to death, he observed.

Only one animal survived from the sunken Japanese cruiser Sakawa. Pig No. 311 was found swimming in the lagoon a half mile from the Sakawa's anchorage.

Radioactivity in the Lagoon just after the blast was so great it was recorded by planes flying at 2,000 feet, Col Warren reported.

The physical damage from the blast itself was growing, too.

In letters to the 48 chief executives, President George M. Englar of the association said:

"We sincerely urge that our industry be given a reasonable time to prove it can operate without government controls."

Englar said his appeal was promoted by the action of retiring Stabilization Director Chester Bowles in asking governors to freeze rents at last month's levels.

"The CIO-PAC combination that controlled our national economy through the OPA x x x would now invoke the aid of your state," he wrote.

"Rents are now 15 per cent below the level of 18 prewar years. Wages alone, before the recent increases, were 68 per cent above this average and practically everything that enters into the cost of operating rental properties also has increased."

Death Sentence Commuted For 2 Palestine Jews

By CHARTER L. DAVIDSON

JERUSALEM, July 3 (AP) — Sir Alan Cunningham, Palestine High Commissioner, today commuted to life imprisonment the death sentences passed on two Jewish youths for firing at British soldiers, and the underground organization Irgun Zvai Leumi promised that three British officers held as hostages for the pair would be "released as soon as possible."

A broadcast by the underground group expressed "gratification" at the clemency.

Meanwhile, the British army announced discovery of nine new caches of munitions in a fantastic underground arsenal at the Jewish village of Mesheq Yagur.

By noon today, the British said, it had unearthed more than 4,000 grenades, 2,200 mortar bombs, 36 rifles, 46 pistols, thousands of rounds of ammunition of all types, and 800 pounds of explosives at Mesheq Yagur in secret ammunition chambers.

With only half the area of the settlement explored, 19 caches of

Negative Voters Hold Big Majority On Provisional Regime Issue

By LARRY ALLEN

WARSAW, July 3 (AP) — Soviet troops have driven stakes along Poland's eastern border, indicating permanent establishment of the Curzon line as the Polish-Russian frontier, even while the counting of Polish referendum ballots showed sharp disapproval of such a proposed western border.

In a visit to Bialystok yesterday, I saw the soldiers staking out the line where Russian and Polish commissioners have made minor rectifications along a three-mile stretch.

In the Bialystok area, an authoritative informant said, Poles voted heavily against the referendum questions on parliament and nationalization, and a straight 20 per cent voted against the question "do you approve establishment of Poland's western frontier on the Oder and Neisse rivers?"

The informant said 80 per cent of the ballots might be annulled because voters invalidated them by writing in such phrases as "we want back Lwow and Wilno."

(The referendum question asked approval of a western boundary gained at Germany's expense, but made no reference to the eastern boundary where Poland lost territory to Russia.)

In Warsaw today, government reports declared outlaw bands had terrorized large areas of Poland before and during the voting Sunday, burning villages and wounding and killing election officials.

Vice-Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, head of the Polish Peasant Party and former premier of the exiled Polish government in London, again charged election irregularities and asserted that thousands of his party members had been arrested. Mikolajcyzk had urged a negative vote on the first referendum question: "Do you want a one-house parliament?"

Chaplin-Barry Case Is In Court Again

LOS ANGELES, July 3 (AP) — Comedian Charles Chaplin petitioned the state supreme court today to review a judgment that he is the father of Carol Ann Berry, 2½-year-old daughter of his former protege, Joan Berry.

Chaplin appealed from a finding of the state court of appeal which upheld a superior court judgment in favor of the child. He alleged, in attacking the judgment:

1—That there was no showing that Joan Berry had not been with other men at about the time Carol Ann was conceived.

2—That as guardian of the baby, Miss Berry had the right to sign a prenatal agreement that blood tests would be employed to determine parentage.

3—That the blood tests should have been conclusive.

4—That when Chaplin was asked to stand trial beside Carol Ann, who was held in the arms of her mother, it might have prejudiced the jury because "Chaplin might have been an unpopular figure and this comparison might have aroused the passion and prejudice of the jury."

5—That the trial judge gave instructions to the jury which were open to argument.

The testimony of two doctors in the trial of the case that a blood test eliminated possibility of Chaplin being the father was rejected on the ground that the state supreme court has ruled against blood tests as a means of establishing parentage.

Roxas Takes Oath As New Philippine Republic Is Born

MacArthur Warns Independence Comes During Troubled Times

MANILA, Thursday, July 4 (AP) — The Republic of the Philippines was born today amid the rubble of war, cradled by the strong hand of Uncle Sam.

Happy, excited thousands attended the historic ceremony which cut the islands free from the United States and gave Filipinos their long-desired freedom.

Manuel A. Roxas was sworn in as president and Elpidio Quirino as vice president to guide the country in its first years of independence.

MacArthur Issues Warning

General of the Army Douglas MacArthur, who led the liberation of the islands from the Japanese, described the infant republic as coming into being amidst issues "which have never weighed more heavily upon the destiny of the human race."

"In their solution this new republic will be called upon to take its stand," he continued.

"God grant that it may raise its voice firmly and fearlessly in alignment with those great forces of right which seek to avoid the destructive influences which, despite our past victories, still harass the world."

Representatives of 50 nations attended the ceremonies marking independent under the Tydings-McGuffie Act. Freedom came to the archipelago after a 10-year transitional period as a commonwealth with a Filipino chief executive.

President Truman was represented by Postmaster General Robert E. Hannegan, W. Stuart Symington, assistant secretary of war for air, and J. Weldon Jones, assistant director of the budget bureau.

Separate committees represented the house and senate of the American congress, Paul V. McNutt attended as the first U. S. Ambassador to the new nation. He was the last high commissioner to the Philippines under the commonwealth.

Tydings Speaks

Senator Tydings, first to speak, called the granting of independence "one of the most unprecedented, most idealistic and most far-reaching events in all recorded history."

He said it established "a new example of human justice, human dignity and friendly relations between great people x x x and an entirely new concept of international relationships."

The republic will be nurtured in its first tender years by the strong economic hand of the United States. The Tidings bill for rehabilitation gives the islands cash, or its equivalent, of $620,000,000 for partial restoration of the tremendous war damage.

The Bell bill, implemented yesterday by the Commonwealth congress, sets up eight years of free trade with preferential trade treatment for 20 years thereafter. Tariffs are to become gradually higher year by year until the full levy is reached.

LABOR WILL PICKET STORES VIOLATING FORMER OPA PRICES

BALTIMORE, July 3. (AP)—Plans to picket retail stores where prices soar in the absence of OPA controls were announced by organized labor here today.

A labor delegation meeting with Mayor Theodore R. McKeldin told him the pickets would carry placards setting fourth the price situation at individual stores to warn the public in cases where unwarranted prices were being charged.

J. David McCordle, labor spokesman, also said a mass meeting was being arranged to organize buyers' strikes in an effort to check rising prices.

Truman Signs Bill Making Unions Subject To Anti-Racketeering Law

WASHINGTON, July 3 (AP) — President Truman today signed into law the Hobbs bill making unions subject to the national anti-racketeering law.

This act provides stiff penalties for those obstructing interstate commerce by robbery or extortion.

Mr. Truman announced his action in a special message to Congress in which he said:

"Section 11 of the Case (labor disputes) bill seriously weakened the protection afforded to labor by the Norris-LaGuardia act and correspondingly crippled the specific exceptions contained in section seven of the Case bill. The present act, standing alone, is not subject to this objection."

Mr. Truman vetoed the Case bill and was sustained in this action by the House.

In vetoing the Case bill the president approved the principle of the House clauses it contained but expressed fear that they might interfere with labor's right to strike and to picket peacefully.

"The attorney general," Mr. Truman told Congress today, "advises me that the present bill does not in any way interfere with the rights of unions in carrying out their legitimate objectives. He bases this conclusion upon the language of the bill, and upon the legislative history."

The new Hobbs law forbids anyone to obtain money or other valuables "by wrongful use of actual or threatened force, violence, or fear, or under color of official right."

It carries maximum penalties of 20 years imprisonment or $10,000 fine, or both.

Bitterly opposed by labor groups, it had been offered annually by Rep. Hobbs (D-Ala) since 1942.

The bill was designed to overcome a 1942 Supreme Court decision holding that labor unions were exempt from the Anti-Racketeering law.

The court decision was in a case involving members of an AFL truck drivers union in New York City. They were alleged to have used "strong arm" methods to compel farmers bringing their produce in from New Jersey to hire union drivers in the city or else pay the union a fee.

Spokesmen for organized labor contended the Hobbs act could be used to interfere with legitimate union activities. They argued too that it was unnecessary, on the ground that there already were enough laws to deal with any criminal activities by union members.

Andrei Gromyko Is More Co-Operative At Atomic Meeting

By FRANCIS W. CARPENTER

NEW YORK, July 3—(AP)—Soviet Russian suddenly abandoned today her fight for a two-thirds majority rule in the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission and the commission unanimously decided that a simple majority of seven members would govern all its decisions.

Meeting for 39 minutes in a hotel ballroom, the commission adopted all rules of procedure presented by a committee of experts and then adjourned without a date for its next meeting.

Andrei A. Gromyko, Russia, showed a conciliatory spirit at the outset when he called for the commission to adopt a rule providing for a two-thirds vote—eight members of the commission of 12 nations—on matters of substance and a majority of seven on matters of procedure.

Previously his representative on the committee of experts had held out for a two-thirds vote on all questions.

Dr. Herbert V. Evatt of Australia, chairman, quickly opposed Gromygo. He referred to the involved debate in the security council last week in which Gromyko three times invoked the veto and said it had demonstrated there sometimes was difficulty in making a distinction between procedural and substantive matters.

"I am no more interested in this proposal than any other member of the commission and if the other members do not favor it I will not insist," he said.

He did not explain his reasons for desiring a two-thirds vote on substantive matters other than to say that "all decisions will not be of equal importance."

Housing Expeditor Gets AFL Promise

WASHINGTON, July 3. (AP)—An AFL agreement to "use every means within its power" to settle strikes and prevent work stoppages on any housing construction was announced today by Housing Expeditor Wilson Wyatt.

Negotiations are in progress with the CIO, he disclosed also, to cover its thousands of workers in plants where building materials are produced.

Outgrowth of weeks of effort by Wyatt to obtain a labor pesce pact in furtherance of the emergency housing program, the agreement was signed by leaders of the AFL Building and Construction Trades Department in Wyatt's National Housing Agency Office.

It falls short of the expeditor's original hope for an outright no-strike pledge like the war-time agreement of organized labor, but he told reporters it was " a very satisfactory" understanding.

Illinois-Central Strikes

CHICAGO, July 3. — (AP) — The Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen today called a strike at 10 a. m. July 26 against the Illinois Central System—only class I railroad in the country exempted from the nationwide railroad strike in May, because it was then under government control.

Military Court Acquits Lichfield Guard Of Beating

By DON DOANE

BAD NAUHEIM, Germany, July 3 (AP)—A military court today acquitted Pfc. Austin D. Gheens of Newport, Tenn., of charges that he struck and kicked American soldiers imprisoned in the Lichfield, England, guardhouse.

In a concurrent trial, a prosecution witness refused to testify against Col. James Kilian of Highland Park, Ill., former commander of the Lichfield camp charged with authorizing cruelty to imprisoned soldiers, because "I fear the things that may happen to me."

Gheens, who denied the charges, was the first Lichfield guard to be acquitted of participation in the beatings and other cruelties of which seven enlisted guards and one officer have been convicted so far.

The court took only 12 minutes to reach its verdict after a two-day trial in which three former Lichfield guards, previously convicted, supported Gheens' denial against accusations by several former prisoners.

Railroad Retirement, Expansion Act Is Up For Senate Approval

WASHINGTON, July 3. (AP)—An expansion of the railroad retirement and unemployment acts to increase the benefits and the number of employes covered was passed by the house today and sent to the senate.

The bill, passed by a rollcall vote of 234 to 49, was the original measure introduced by Rep. Crosser (D-Ohio). Changes proposed by Republicans and a number of Democrats were defeated.

The amendments would have rewritten the Crosser bill into a more conservative measure backed by the house interstate and foreign commerce committee. This had been defeated on June 20 by a vote of 136 to 129. The vote against the amendments today was 180 to 108.

Barkley Expects To Have Measure Ready For Senate Floor On Friday

Banking Committee Recesses After Four-Hour Session Behind Closed Doors

WASHINGTON, July 3. (AP)—The Senate Banking Committee failed to agree on a new OPA bill tonight but Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky.) announced he expects to have one ready for the Senate floor by Friday.

The committee recessed after a four-hour session behind closed doors but will resume work tomorrow despite the July Fourth holiday.

Barkley proposed eliminating two Republican-sponsored pricing amendments from the OPA extension bill vetoed by President Truman, then sending it back to the White House.

When that plan met resistance Barkley countered with a proposed substitute for manufacturers' pricing amendments sponsored by Senator Taft (R-Ohio) and singled out for bitter criticism by Mr. Truman in his veto message.

Barkley Plan Considered

The Barkley substitute still was under consideration when the committee recessed until tomorrow.

Barkley said that after a decision is reached on that proposal, he probably will offer a substitute for the other amendment criticized particularly by Mr. Truman—one by Senator Wherry (R-Neb) setting out a price policy for wholesalers and retailers.

The Taft provision declared in substance that maximum prices applicable to producers, processors and manufacturers must reflect their prices during the first half of October, 1941, plus the weighted average increase in unit cost among typical members of the industry in question.

The Barkley substitute differs in two major particulars: it makes the base period the calendar year 1940, and provides that the ceilings must provide "not less than the average dollar price of such commodity during the base period, plus the increase cost of producing, manufacturing or processing the same accuring since the base period."

Thus, under Barkley's plan, the average price of the commodity among the producers, etc., would govern, instead of each man's base period price.

Barkley announced his expectations of having a bill Friday on the Senate floor after Senator Pepper (D-Fla) called for action on the 20-day extension bill passed by the House.

Pepper first read a list of price rises in food and various commodities and then assured that the Senate should quickly approve a stopgap extension and "quiet the fears of the people."

Barkley, who had been keeping members of the Senate Banking Committee in session throughout the afternoon, curtly replied that this was a question for the "banking committee to decide."

Will Have Some Bill Ready

In any event, Barkley said the committee would have some kind of an OPA bill—either stopgap or long range—ready tonight or by working on the Fourth of July holiday tomorrow.

He urged senators who planned to leave over the holiday to return ready for action Friday.

Barkley said the committee was trying to draft a bill that "will have reasonable chance for approval by the executive department."

For his own opinion, Barkley said he regarded it better to try and write such a bill than take "two bites at the same cherry or apple."

The OPA issue reached the senate committee after Senator O'Daniel (D-Tex) dropping delaying tactics.

Meanwhile the nation's wholesale markets steadied in a growing belief that congress might revive the OPA with a price roll-back to the June 30 ceilings. And Secretary of Agriculture Anderson asked the dairy industry to maintain former prices until congress acts, notwithstanding

Thousands Of Marylanders Make Plans To Celebrate The Fourth

[By The Associated Press]

Thousands of Marylanders took the Fourth of July holiday as an opportunity to go somewhere else.

It promised to be a quiet Fourth, even though the first since victory over the Axis and the first in peacetime since 1941.

No longer were the free state's fireworks plants totally engaged in turning out certain death for the nation's enemies. This preoccupation with Germans and Japs prevented them from supplying small and not-so-small boys with torpedoes and cannon crackers during the war years.

"No Sale" On Fireworks

In the lull, Maryland's state legislature rang up a "no sale" sign on their peace-time products with a state-wide fireworks ban passed at the behest of the Maryland league for the blind.

Now fireworks may be used only in organized displays permitted by the state commissioner of insurance after he has been satisfied that shooters and watchers alike will be safe.

Death still stood by ominously—on the state's highways.

Road jams started as early as Tuesday evening at such bottlenecks as the Sandy Point-Matapeake ferry, but the big movement began at the end of the working day Wednesday.

"It looks like everyone is going someplace," said an automobile association official. His office was swamped with requests for routings to oceanside resorts.

The Maryland State Police were out in full force to untangle traffic tieups, keep a check on holiday-happy drivers, and head off accidents if possible.

Ships' Steel Can't Be Made Thick Enough To Protect Crews From Atom

By DON WHITEHEAD

ABOARD U. S. S. APPALACHIAN, Thursday, July 4 (AP)—Ships cannot be built with steel thick enough to protect their crews from the terrific lethal radiation of a close atomic explosion, Col. Stafford Warren, Bikini safety officer, asserted today.

Some of the 73 target vessels remain dangerously radioactive even now, he declared—the fourth day after the ball-of-fire blast which sank five, heavily damaged nine and affected, in all, 59 warships.

He predicted it will be five or six days before all the ships of the guinea pig fleet became "entirely safe."

Radiation released by the bomb was "terrific," he told newsmen.

"Steel is not too good a protection for personnel," he added, "since if armor sufficiently thick to stop the lethal rays were used, "there would be no room in the ships for personnel."

Indications are that if the target fleet had been manned, the blast would have rendered it helpless—since "many not killed by the blast wave would have been unable to carry on their duties because of illness from radiation," Capt. George Lyon of the safety staff pointed out.

Many of the test animals—90 per cent of which survived—have begun to show a falling blood count which may lead to death, he observed.

Only one animal survived from the sunken Japanese cruiser Sakawa. Pig No. 311 was found swimming in the lagoon a half mile from the Sakawa's anchorage.

Radioactivity in the Lagoon just after the blast was so great it was recorded by planes flying at 2,000 feet, Col Warren reported.

The physical damage from the blast itself was growing, too.

She wants me to write to "these selfish modern children" . . . "scold them for their ingratitude" . . . "remind them of all their mothers have done for them" . . . "make them more appreciative."

Perhaps you'd be touched by her letter. I would have been—once. The cheap, lined paper is blistered with tears. There are smears on it, too—coffee, jam, egg. You can see her plainly between the lines: pushing back the dirty breakfast dishes, grabbing the first pencil that came handy, pouring out her hurt and anger; gray hair straggling, tears welling slowly over the reddened lids sliding down her unpowdered face.

She hasn't bothered to dress yet. Just pulled an old kimona over her nightgown. Slipped her feet into Janet's cast-off party slippers, those blue satin ones with the rhinestone buckles. Janet had stormed at her for wearing them. "Whatja go around looking like that for, Mom. . . .wearing my old junk?" Nineteen-year-old Janet's voice was merciless with exasperation. "Why'n't you fix yourself up nice . . . . look like something?"

"Somebody around this house has gotta save!" she'd answered, her lips trembling. How cruel Janet was, talking to her like that! She wouldn't have dared talk to her mother that way! Why didn't Janet put her arms around her. . .kiss her. . . tell her she was still too pretty to wear cast-offs? She was only 41, that wasn't so old! And she could have a real nice figure if she wasn't feeling so miserable.

Why didnt some of them—Al or Dad or even little Fred—fuss over her? Bring her little surprises, the way some families did for their mothers? Ask her opinion about things? Invite her out with them to the movies? But they didn't . . . not ever. She might's well be running an auto camp, for all the attention any of them paid to their homes. Just dash in and out again.

The tears drip faster on the sleazy paper. The pale, stubby pecil whines its way through the coffee stains. She snivels shoves back her oily hair. Oughtta gt a shampoo. Oughtta have a manicure. Getta new girdle. Fix up'n go to the PTA party. But whatsa use? Who cares how she looks . . .who cares what happens to her? Nobody . . . nobody! The pencil drops from the lax fingers with the broken nails. She puts her head on her folded arms. Her sleeve trails into the bacon grease. She cries slowly, wearily. She wishes she were dead. Then maybe they'd be sorry . . . .maybe they'd appreciate her then!

Yes, maybe. But I've a deep dark, suspicion that they wouldn't and why should they? Why should any family respect a woman who doesn't respect herself. . . .Seek the opinions of a woman who has none to give . . . .Offer laughter to a woman who prefers self-pity and bacon grease?

No, I'm not some mouthy, ungrateful young smartie, talking out of turn. I'm 63 years old, have been holding down a full-time, homemaking job for 44 of these years, and have learned just one fact which I'd like to broadcast to every wife and mother. Namely, YOU WRITE YOUR OWN TICKET, SISTER! You make your own rating in the home as the business woman makes hers in the office.

No one's going to canonize you merely because you've reproduced the species and dished up some groceries. That's your job. You've got to do more than that if you expect to meet competition in 1946. You've got to be current . . . know your world, and be a part of it. . . . And if you don't, THAT'S YOUR BAD LUCK AND YOU'VE NO ONE TO BLAME BUT YOURSELF. There's no reason on earth why a wife over 40 shouldn't have as full and colorful a life as her own daughter, with as many vitalizing interests.

Janet had stormed at her for wearing them. "Whatja go around looking like that for, Mom . . . .wearing my old junk?" Nineteen-year-old Janet's voice was merciless with exasperation. "Why'n't you fix yourself up nice . . . . look like something?"

"Somebody around this house has gotta save!" she'd answered, her lips trembling. How cruel Janet was, talking to her like that! She wouldn't have dared talk to her mother that way! Why didn't Janet put her arms around her. . .kiss her. . . tell her she was still too pretty to wear cast-offs? She was only 41, that wasn't so old! And she could have a real nice figure if she wasn't feeling so miserable.

Why didnt some of them—Al or Dad or even little Fred—fuss over her? Bring her little surprises, the way some families did for their mothers? Ask her opinion about things? Invite her out with them to the movies? But they didn't . . . not ever. She might's well be running an auto camp, for all the attention any of them paid to their homes. Just dash in and out again.

The tears drip faster on the sleazy paper. The pale, stubby pecil whines its way through the coffee stains. She snivels shoves back her oily hair. Oughtta gt a shampoo. Oughtta have a manicure. Getta new girdle. Fix up'n go to the PTA party. But whatsa use? Who cares how she looks . . .who cares what happens to her? Nobody . . . nobody! The pencil drops from the lax fingers with the broken nails. She puts her head on her folded arms. Her sleeve trails into the bacon grease. She cries slowly, wearily. She wishes she were dead. Then maybe they'd be sorry . . . maybe they'd appreciate her then!

Yes, maybe. But I've a deep dark, suspicion that they wouldn't and why should they? Why should any family respect a woman who doesn't respect herself. . . .Seek the opinions of a woman who has none to give . . . .Offer laughter to a woman who prefers self-pity and bacon grease?

No, I'm not some mouthy, ungrateful young smartie, talking out of turn. I'm 63 years old, have been holding down a full-time, home-making job for 44 of these years, and have learned just one fact which I'd like to broadcast to every wife and mother. Namely, YOU WRITE YOUR OWN TICKET, SISTER! You make your own rating in the home as the business woman makes hers in the office.

No one's going to canonize you merely because you've reproduced the species and dished up some groceries. That's your job. You've got to do more than that if you expect to meet competition in 1946. You've got to be current . . . know your world, and be a part of it. . . And if you don't, THAT'S YOUR BAD LUCK AND YOU'VE NO ONE TO BLAME BUT YOURSELF. There's no reason on earth why a wife over 40 shouldn't have as full and colorful a life as her own daughter, with as many vitalizing interests.

The Pursuit Of Happiness

Today's holiday will be marked again by an intensive pursuit of happiness, now that war's sobering presence and restrictions are gone, the quest will bring its usual violent harvest of death and injury, and its inevitable host of minor mishaps. But the great majority of Americans, escaping with nothing more serious than sunburn, will have fun. And they properly should.

The rather feverish activities which exemplify a typical Fourth of July may not be quite what Thomas Jefferson had in mind when, in writing the Declaration of Independence, he included the pursuit of happiness among man's inalienable rights. But it is not safe to assume that he would disapprove.

Jefferson, in his wisdom, knew not only the inestimable importance of happiness, but also the quality and condition of happiness at its fullest. Some statesmen today would insist that the gift of happiness, ready-made, prescribed and presented, was an obligation of a paternalistic government. But Jefferson knew the inspiration and value of the quest itself, and the brevity of its reward. So he insisted that the pursuit of happiness was the right of individual man, and that government's role was to protect that right.

It would be understandable if Jefferson had failed to recognize the fundamental importance of the pursuit of happiness. He was young (33) and a radical. Fortunately, however, he was not like so many young radicals of the later day who have the grimly earnest conviction that the betterment of man is best achieved in an atmosphere of hatred, bitterness and bloodshed.

It is equally remarkable that the Continental Congress, which established this nation by approving Jefferson's declaration 170 years ago today, did not include one dour dissenter to insist that the phrase about happiness be deleted. Puritan views on worldly happiness were not dead. Also, July of 1776 was not a happy time for Americans. The colonies were poor and split by dissension. And their war for independence wasn't going any too well.

The minds of the Continental Congressmen were filled with righteous anger at the prolonged and grievous injuries of a tyrannical king, as their Declaration of Independence shows. Their thoughts must have been on a grim present. Yet they could remember and approve the ageless, endless pursuit of happiness which moves the world.

In the past 170 years our pursuit of happiness has often been selfish and thoughtless. Yet it has been a great motive force in the banishment of economic servitude. It has added untold comforts to our existence, and prolonged and enriched our lives. It has created an ever pleasanter atmosphere in which the inevitable sorrows of individual man are easier to bear.

We have fought wars to protect our right to pursue happiness as well as to protect life and liberty. But the promise of happiness has sustained men in battle. And it is fulfilled today for thousands who last year faced death in the Pacific, or, a year before, on the coast of France and the hills of Italy.

July of 1946 is not in many ways a happy time, either. Universal doubt and discontent invade the individual peace of mind. But today's struggle for pursuit of happiness is only an intensification of the continuing struggle. The inalienable right remains. This is a good day to recall that right, reaffirm our intentions of protecting it, and exercise it in the present by enjoying ourselves.

Make Sure You Are Alive On The Fifth

For the first time in five years, America will be at peace tomorrow—on the day dedicated to her independence—an independence just reaffirmed and strengthened in the costliest and bloodiest wars in her history.

It should be a great day.

It can be a great day—if it is a day of sane and joyful thanksgiving that the courage and resolution of the United States have once again kept her free from tyranny.

But it will be a tragic day if—as has happened so often in the past—hundreds die of accidents due to carelessness.

Many will die.

National Safety Council Records show that last July 3,700 persons were killed by accidents, a large number of them as a result of the Independence day celebration. Perhaps it is even more significant today to remember 1941 and our last peacetime July. That month brought 9,700 accidental deaths.

Peace brought an end to killing only on the battlefields. Since V-J day the accident toll has skyrocketed to near-record highs—up to 44 percent in traffic alone.

Why? The reasons are natural. Plenty of gas and more leisure. Release from restraint and restrictions. No wartime patriotic urge. A long deferred desire to blow off steam with a little fun and relaxation.

Add to that worn out cars and tires, deteriorated highways, a carefree spirit that too often becomes a careless spirit, and you have a dark prospect for this Fourth of July and the entire vacation season.

The tragic and ironic part of it is that so many Americans, after sacrificing and risking so much to preserve life and freedom, will lose it irrevocably and needlessly in a moment of carelessness.

It's a plain, simple fact that 8,000 to 10,000 of us will be killed in July accidents this year, unless we do something about it. If enough people recognize the fact that accidents can and do happen to anyone, not just to an unknown John Jones, then the July toll could be 6,000 or 5,000, or even lower.

Let's celebrate the Fourth this year in the true spirit — let's make it a joyous holiday dedicated to the freedom of our country. And let's make that freedom a reality by avoiding accidents that threaten to rob many Americans of their precious and hard-won heritage.

To help you, the National Safety Council offers a few simple suggestions. Study and follow them. They are as follows:

1—Take that trip or vacation if you wish, but drive with care. Above all, take it easy and don't speed.

2—Wait an hour after a meal before swimming. Don't go in the water alone, stay within your depth, and don't show off.

3—You may be out of condition after your stay-at-home years. Avoid over-exertion and over-exposure to sun.

4—The only safe way to handle fireworks is to leave them alone. Go instead to supervised public displays.

It has been a long time since America enjoyed a real summer holiday and vacation season. Everyone deserves that relaxation.

So go ahead and have all the fun you can on the Fourth. But be alive on the Fifth.

Orderly, Gradual Termination Of OPA Desired

By MARK SULLIVAN

In the welter that has been created, there is one thing that is wanted by the largest number of members of Congress. It must be stated carefully. It is, termination of price control — but orderly and gradual termination. The number who, throughout the months of controversy, wanted an abrupt and complete termination on June 30th, was negligible.

For orderly termination of the Office of Price Administration, the plain first step, in the condition that has been created, is to extend OPA as is for a brief stop-gap period, with use of the time thus gained to write a permanent bill.

For the stop-gap bill, the House has voted overwhelmingly. Even after chaos had been created, and angry emotion had arisen, the number who opposed the stop-gap bill —the number, that is, who voted in effect for complete and immediate termination—was only 61. The vote for temporary emergency extension of OPA as is, was 283.

Few Can Block Legislation

In the Senate, the proportion favoring either temporary extension, or immediate writing of permanent legislation, is probably as large as in the House. But the Senate rules make it possible for action to be blocked or delayed by the very small number who throughout have wanted complete and immediate termination.

This brings up one of the far-reaching questions forced to the front by the present condition. It is, to put it starkly, the ability of Congress to function. Something can be said for a Senate rule which gives much power to a minority—when the rule is used for the purpose for which it exists, namely to prevent hasty action on long-range legislation. To use the power to prevent promptness in an emergency is different, and indefensible.

The most thoughtful men in the Senate, and a large majority of the body, know that the ability of legislative government to function in the modern world is a present problem. To the end that Congress be able to function adequately, the Senate recently passed a bill reorganizing the Congressional mechanism. The present postponing of action upon a measure dealing with a serious and immediate emergency makes the problem concrete. If the Senate is determined, it can get action on OPA. It can show that the Senate can function.

But there is also a question of proper functioning on the part of the executive.

To describe what Congress wants as an orderly and gradual termination of OPA, is to go to the heart of the hot contention now boiling. For what actually exists, until and unless Congress acts, is the opposit, it is abrupt and complete termination of OPA. For this, who is responsible?

Did Not Want Abrupt Ending

Plainly Congress did not want abrupt and complete termination — if Congress had wanted that, it would have legislated that. What Congress legislated was extension of OPA, in modified form, until next year. What brought about immediate termination was President Truman's vote.

But instantly the President and those who counseled him to veto, including persons responsible for conducting OPA, make charges against the act that Congress passed. They say it would have been impossible to administer successfully, that it would have resulted in chaotic conditions.

Yet the President is in the position of choosing immediate and certain chaos, as against what might have been—assuming the charges against the bill are sound, which is by no means admitted—potential and delayed chaos.

President Had Better Course

In the contention now boiling, and likely to be a political issue for a long time, it will be difficult to deny there was a better course for the President and the administrators of OPA. It would have been to accept the bill that Congress wrote, and do the best possible under it, with expectation that, in a spirit of co-operation with Congress, new legislation could be asked for if needed.

Whether the bill Congress wrote was what Mr. Truman says it is, or was wise and well-considered, is a thing the average person cannot readily decide. A Senator who is a Democrat who is more or less impartial on the present question, and who has been in the Senate many years, says that in all his experience he has never seen any House or Senate committee give more intent or more thoughtful deliberation to any bill, than was given to the present OPA bill by the Senate and House committee that handled it.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Philippine Independence Will Reap Goodwill Dividends to U. S.; OPA's Paul Porter "On Bikini;" West Virginia's Kilgore Gets Senate Praise.

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, The writer, having visited many parts of the Far East, including the Philippines, has sometimes wondered whether the American people fully appreciate the historic event taking place in Manila today.

In the world which has seen the Dutch East Indies torn by civil war over the issue of independence, where Roumania and Bulgaria have lost part of their sovereignty to a domineering neighbor, where even Greece and Czechoslovakia are still occupied by foreign troops, it is worth thinking twice about the fact that the Philippines today becomes a free nation.

In other words, the United States has kept faith.

It would have been easy to justify a contrary course. There is still plenty of unrest in the Philippines, and we might easily have talked ourselves into remaining there.

The French are holding a tight grip on Indo-China. Winston Churchill when asked by FDR to give Hongkong back to China, replied: "I was not made Prime Minister to liquidate the British Empire."

But the fact that we carried out our pledge to the Filipino people will reap dividends of goodwill not only in the Orient, but throughout the world. It is a double reason for celebrating the Fourth.

Paul Porter A-Bombed

Chester Bowles, who stepped out of Government after tough and unappreciated years of battling against inflation, is a close friend of Paul Porter. The two fought side by side —Bowles as Economic Stabilizer, Porter as Administrator of OPA.

When Bowles resigned, Porter, left to fight the inflation battle alone, wrote a note expressing his appreciation of past co-operation and regretting Bowles' departure.

"I now feel," Porter told his former Chief, "like a native whom the Navy forgot to remove from Bikini just before the atom bomb exploded."

It wasn't announced, but Prime Minister Attlee sent a confidential message to President Truman informing him that British troops had taken repressive measures against Jewish elements in Palestine. However, the message arrived only after the British troops had already moved in.

Attlee asked Truman for a public statement of support, but the President was so irked by the way Attlee acted first and advised him afterward, that he phoned Acting Secretary of State Dean Acheson and told him to issue a statement keeping American skirts clear of the British move.

John Snyder kept bobbing into the Cabinet Room during the drafting of Truman's OPA veto message. He seemed nervous and wanted to lend a hand in writing the speech. Nobody gave him any encouragement and he went out. . . The speech was largely written by OPA Boss Paul Porter, Reconversion Czar John Steelman and Judge Sam Rosenman . . . The FBI is already digging into large-scale hoarding. Truman gave a hint of this in his veto message but he didn't go into details. The details are that some very big—and respectable —manufacturing concerns may be hauled into the FBI net, particularly in the meat, shirt, textile, butter, processed foods and suit industry.

Sen. Jim Murray of Montana walked over and threw his right arm around Sen. Harley Kilgore and started praising the West Virginia Democrat. Turning to Biffle, Murray said:

"Harley here is the only man who really knew that this trouble was coming."

"What do you mean?" asked Biffle.

"Well, if the Senate had listened to Harley two years ago when he brought out his Reconversion Bill we wouldn't be in this mess now," replied the Senator from Montana.

Murray was referring to Kilgore's legislation to provide for careful post-war planning to make sure that materials and men were released in an orderly fashion after the war.

Kilgore had the foresight to release this reconversion bill as early as March 1944, and it gained the support of Senators Thomas of Utah, Johnson of Colorado, Hill of Alabama, Wagner of New York, LaFollette of Wisconsin, Pepper of Florida, Walgren of Washington (now Governor), and Harry Truman, then Senator.

Overriding the opposition of Kilgore's bitter Republican enemy, Revercomb of West Virginia, the bill got through the Military Affairs Committee, after which big-business supporters in the Senate, led by George of Georgia and Vandenberg of Michigan, chopped out its heart.

The original bill called for a program bureau to sit down with a national production - employment board, consisting of leaders of management, labor, agriculture and the general public, to work out the details of an orderly, harmonious transition period after the war. Had the Kilgore bill passed, we might be in a different position than in the turmoil of today.

It's Southerners who have the reputation for filibustering, but three Northern Republicans are conducting a filibuster more secret and just as skillful as that of any Dixie Democrat. It's against the Atom Control Bill—vital to the Nation.

I know the House will pass the Senate-approved McMahon Bill for control of atomic energy if it comes to a vote; so for two weeks three Republicans have kept the bill bottled up in the Military Affairs Committee by stalling at every turn.

The three filibusterers are: Parnell Thomas of New Jersey, Forrest Harness of Indiana and Charles Elston of Ohio.

Many committee members gave up their evening Friday for a special session in order to complete the bill and give the United States a policy to back up Barney Baruch in the United Nations. Half an hour after the time set for the meeting they lacked a quorum, and Ohio's recalcitrant Elston would not let them proceed. Only one more member was needed.

Finally Congresswoman Clare Booth Luce of Connecticut phoned that she was on her way to the Committee Room from her office five floors above. But while she was in the elevator, Elston grabbed his hat and left so there would still be no quorum.

Thus a dozen conscientious Congressmen were left to waste more than an hour, and Bernard Baruch was left high and dry before the United Nations with no law on the statute books to back him up.

IS THAT METER STILL RUNNING?

Country Will Benefit By Present Period Of Enforced Re-Adjustment

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, July 3 — The public is asking what ought to be done to clear up the confusion resulting from President Truman's veto of the price control bill which had passed Congress by an overwhelming vote of both houses.

The answer lies in asking a simple question: Does the citizen favor a policy of stabilization operated by the federal government that really keeps costs down to a reasonable basis or does he favor relaxation of all controls and letting the people—the buyers—determine their prices in a natural market?

If the citizen favors continued controls because of the shortage of goods and the inevitable tendency of some producers to charge as much as they can, then what he really wants is a policy of government stabilization of costs.

There can be no price control unless all costs are controlled. Yet very few of the persons who are telegraphing to the White House their approval of the veto message or crying out for a return of the OPA really want stabilization of costs. Very few of them want to see wages controlled or stabilized, and yet wage costs are as much an item in the making of a price as any other factor.

People Have Two Choices

So if the people want price control, they must, in all fairness, approve of wage and salary control. Strictly speaking, that's what ought to be done. The President ought to ask Congress for authority to fix wages and salaries as well as prices if there is to be a controlled economy.

If, on the other hand, the citizen wants to see normal times come back soon, he will favor the return of a free market in which supply and demand fix the prices of goods that are not scarce and in which sensible marketing practices fix the prices of goods that are scarce.

There can be no sensible marketing practices when a black market is permitted to flourish. The only reason meat is scarce today is because the legitimate producers cannot charge enough to cover their costs. The moment the OPA bill was vetoed, there began a flow of livestock to market which was unparalleled. The prices jumped, as inevitably they had to in order to clean out the black-market meat quickly. The black-market operators unloaded promptly. With no price ceilings to bother them, the cattlemen of the country now will supply the meat needed by the American people. If price ceilings are restored, meats will be scarce again.

High Prices Can Be Temporary

High prices can be a temporary phenomenon. What Congress ought to do is wait a fortnight and see how quickly prices will readjust themselves to the new situation. The history of price operations shows that when prices are out of line, production for the time being is feverishly increased, only to fall again as the people stop buying. The risk of being caught with a supply that can't move prompts many a producer to hold his prices within bounds.

The psychology of the country at present, unfortunately, is that of a controlled economy. One suspects that many people never expected price controls to end nor did they think of the consequences of letting wage costs skyrocket while ceilings were placed on sales prices. Yet production has been stunted in recent months because of this very factor.

Sooner or later there had to be a brief period of readjustment while price controls were thrown off and the producers and distributors were compelled to find a natural market. A few days of confusion were inevitable, but it is better to have that readjustment now than to postpone it indefinitely and encourage black markets and retard production in the meantime.

Rent Control Needed

The Congress ought, of course, to pass a rent control bill at once, but the administration supporters are blocking such action. Only a few days ago the Democratic leadership was arguing for a compromise bill which included rent control. Now it is opposed to rent control unless other controls are put in the same legislation.

The more time and opportunity the businessmen of the country are given to readjust their prices on a fair basis to absorb government-encouraged rises in costs, the more quickly will a period of stabilization be reached without the OPA.

In order to control rents and certain other products related to housing shortages, however, there will be some form of OPA restored but it will be much less than President Truman could have had if he had signed the bill Congress transmitted to him last week. OPA will owe its curtailment largely to Mr Truman's mistake but in the long run the country will benefit by this present period of enforced readjustment to de-control of prices by the government.

IT SAYS HERE - - - - By Bob Hope

The army is trying to sell some of its horses and I made some inquiries. The first question the sergeant asked me was, "What do you want 'em for, riding or eating?"

Yep, the meat shortage is with us again. I went into a restaurant and ordered a steak and I won't say it was horsemeat, but the steak beat the waitress to my table by a nose.

I went riding in the park on one of those army horses. I'm sure he was an army horse . . . when we came to the zoo and passed the zebra's cage, he saluted.

They said he was supposed to be a cavalry horse. I'm not so sure about that . . . I yelled, "Charge!" . . . and he ran into a department store and bought himself a new set of horseshoes.

The army experts have had a difference of long standing on the relative merits of the horse and the jeep. I don't know why there should be a difference. No matter which you ride, you're in for a stretch of long standing.

But these days a horse hasn't got a chance. I hitched him up and tried to buck that Hollywood Boulevard traffic, and two minutes later I was riding a surrey with the fringe on the bottom.

Evidence of God

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

I am a believer of the Kingdom of Heaven in one's heart. We know nothing of a Heaven beyond this life, but I am certain that I have felt it a reality in the inward lives of many. And I, personally, am more concerned about experiencing that Kingdom in my own heart than I am of the dream of a Heaven when all is silent and these bodily elements have woven their last silken strings into the warp of Mother Earth.

So vibrant was the personality and the inward spirituality of William T. Stead that after meeting Carlyle this irritable genius termed him "that good man Stead!" You see, he carried God in his heart, and folks immediately recognized the fact. This same Stead was one of those who stood, calm and resigned, going down to their watery grave from the sinking Lusitania, that others might be saved.

The evidence of God is everywhere in Nature. In every green grass blade, in every flower, in every gem mined from the deep earth, in the stars, and their regularity in the ether, and in every burst of song from the throat of a bird—there is the whisper of God.

Lovers of beauty are agents of God, whether they acknowledge it or not. Most human beings are far better in heart than they would wish to confess. Rather do they prefer to let their light so shine as to make it a beacon for guidance to those lesser in hope, faith, or courage.

You can almost spot the people you meet and pass upon the street who carry God around in their heart. They walk with surer step, their view is confidently forward, and there is an expression upon their faces that they are victory bound!

The invisible love of a mother, long gone, guides many of us throughout life. In like manner the love of God, and all His creatures and creations, is a guide to us in our thoughts, our plans, and our unselfish dreams. More noble and enduring things come to pass for people who carry God in their heart than is ever suspected.

You don't have to tell people about this fact. They feel it, and know it, just as though told in words, for, you see, deeds have a language. Actions speak louder than words!

The Pursuit Of Happiness

Today's holiday will be marked again by an intensive pursuit of happiness, now that war's sobering presence and restrictions are gone, the quest will bring its usual violent harvest of death and injury, and its inevitable host of minor mishaps. But the great majority of Americans, escaping with nothing more serious than sunburn, will have fun. And they properly should.

The rather feverish activities which exemplify a typical Fourth of July may not be quite what Thomas Jefferson had in mind when, in writing the Declaration of Independence, he included the pursuit of happiness among man's inalienable rights. But it is not safe to assume that he would disapprove.

Jefferson, in his wisdom, knew not only the inestimable importance of happiness, but also the quality and condition of happiness at its fullest. Some statesmen today would insist that the gift of happiness, ready-made, prescribed and presented, was an obligation of a paternalistic government. But Jefferson knew the inspiration and value of the quest itself, and the brevity of its reward. So he insisted that the pursuit of happiness was the right of individual man, and that government's role was to protect that right.

It would be understandable if Jefferson had failed to recognize the fundamental importance of the pursuit of happiness. He was young (33) and a radical. Fortunately, however, he was not like so many young radicals of the later day who have the grimly earnest conviction that the betterment of man is best achieved in an atmosphere of hatred, bitterness and bloodshed.

It is equally remarkable that the Continental Congress, which established this nation by approving Jefferson's declaration 170 years ago today, did not include one dour dissenter to insist that the phrase about happiness be deleted. Puritan views on worldly happiness were not dead. Also, July of 1776 was not a happy time for Americans. The colonies were poor and split by dissension. And their war for independence wasn't going any too well.

The minds of the Continental Congressmen were filled with righteous anger at the prolonged and grievous injuries of a tyrannical king, as their Declaration of Independence shows. Their thoughts must have been on a grim present. Yet they could remember and approve the ageless, endless pursuit of happiness which moves the world.

In the past 170 years our pursuit of happiness has often been selfish and thoughtless. Yet it has been a great motive force in the banishment of economic servitude. It has added untold comforts to our existence, and prolonged and enriched our lives. It has created an ever pleasanter atmosphere in which the inevitable sorrows of individual man are easier to bear.

We have fought wars to protect our right to pursue happiness as well as to protect life and liberty. But the promise of happiness has sustained men in battle. And it is fulfilled today for thousands who last year faced death in the Pacific, or, a year before, on the coast of France and the hills of Italy.

July of 1946 is not in many ways a happy time, either. Universal doubt and discontent invade the individual peace of mind. But today's struggle for pursuit of happiness is only an intensification of the continuing struggle. The inalienable right remains. This is a good day to recall that right, reaffirm our intentions of protecting it, and exercise it in the present by enjoying ourselves.

Make Sure You Are Alive On The Fifth

For the first time in five years, America will be at peace tomorrow—on the day dedicated to her independence—an independence just reaffirmed and strengthened in the costliest and bloodiest wars in her history.

It should be a great day.

It can be a great day—if it is a day of sane and joyful thanksgiving that the courage and resolution of the United States have once again kept her free from tyranny.

But it will be a tragic day if—as has happened so oftep in the past—hundreds die of accidents due to carelessness.

Many will die.

National Safety Council Records show that last July 5,700 persons were killed by accidents, a large number of them as a result of the Independence day celebration. Perhaps it is even more significant today to remember 1941 and our last peacetime July. That month brought 9,700 accidental deaths.

Peace brought an end to killing only on the battlefields. Since V-J day the accident toll has skyrocketed to near-record highs—up to 44 percent in traffic alone.

Why? The reasons are natural. Plenty of gas and more leisure. Release from restraint and restrictions. No wartime patriotic urge. A long deferred desire to blow off steam with a little fun and relaxation.

Add to that worn out cars and tires, deteriorated highways, a carefree spirit that too often becomes a careless spirit, and you have a dark prospect for this Fourth of July and the entire vacation season.

The tragic and ironic part of it is that so many Americans, after sacrificing and risking so much to preserve life and freedom, will lose it irrevocably and needlessly in a moment of carelessness.

It's a plain, simple fact that 8,000 to 10,000 of us will be killed in July accidents this year, unless we do something about it. If enough people recognize the fact that accidents can and do happen to anyone, not just to an unknown John Jones, then the July toll could be 4,000 or 5,000, or even lower.

Let's celebrate the Fourth this year in the true spirit — let's make it a joyous holiday dedicated to the freedom of our country. And let's make that freedom a reality by avoiding accidents that threaten to rob many Americans of their precious and hard-won heritage.

To help you, the National Safety Council offers a few simple suggestions. Study and follow them. They are as follows:

1—Take that trip or vacation if you wish, but drive with care. Above all, take it easy and don't speed.

2—Wait an hour after a meal before swimming. Don't go in the water alone, stay within your depth, and don't show off.

3—You may be out of condition after your stay-at-home years. Avoid over-exertion and over-exposure to sun.

4—The only safe way to handle fireworks is to leave them alone. Go instead to supervised public displays.

It has been a long time since America enjoyed a real summer holiday and vacation season. Everyone deserves that relaxation.

So go ahead and have all the fun you can on the Fourth. But be alive on the Fifth.

By MARK SULLIVAN

In the welter that has been created, there is one thing that is wanted by the largest number of members of Congress. It must be stated carefully. It is, termination of price control — but orderly and gradual termination. The number who, throughout the months of controversy, wanted an abrupt and complete termination on June 30th, was negligible.

For orderly termination of the Office of Price Administration, the plain first step, in the condition that has been created, is to extend OPA as is for a brief stop-gap period, with use of the time thus gained to write a permanent bill.

For the stop-gap bill, the House has voted overwhelmingly. Even after chaos had been created, and angry emotion had arisen, the number who opposed the stop-gap bill—the number, that is, who voted in effect for complete and immediate termination—was only 61. The vote for temporary emergency extension of OPA as is, was 283.

Few Can Block Legislation

In the Senate, the proportion favoring either temporary extension, or immediate writing of permanent legislation, is probably as large as in the House. But the Senate rules make it possible for action to be blocked or delayed by the very small number who throughout have wanted complete and immediate termination.

This brings up one of the far-reaching questions forced to the front by the present condition. It is, to put it starkly, the ability of Congress to function. Something can be said for a Senate rule which gives much power to a minority—when the rule is used for the purpose for which it exists, namely to prevent hasty action on long-range legislation. To use the power to prevent promptness in an emergency is different, and indefensible.

The most thoughtful men in the Senate, and a large majority of the body, know that the ability of legislative government to function in the modern world is a present problem. To the end that Congress be able to function adequately, the Senate recently passed a bill reorganizing the Congressional mechanism. The present postponing of action upon a measure dealing with a serious and immediate emergency makes the problem concrete. If the Senate is determined, it can get action on OPA. It can show that the Senate can function.

But there is also a question of proper functioning on the part of the executive.

To describe what Congress wants as an orderly and gradual termination of OPA, is to go to the heart of the hot contention now boiling. For what actually exists, until and unless Congress acts, is the opposit, it is abrupt and complete termination of OPA. For this, who is responsible?

Did Not Want Abrupt Ending

Plainly Congress did not want abrupt and complete termination — if Congress had wanted that, it would have legislated that. What Congress legislated was extension of OPA, in modified form, until next year. What brought about immediate termination was President Truman's vote.

But instantly the President and those who counseled him to veto, including persons responsible for conducting OPA, make charges against the act that Congress passed. They say it would have been impossible to administer successfully, that it would have resulted in chaotic conditions.

Yet the President is in the position of choosing immediate and certain chaos, as against what might have been—assuming the charges against the bill are sound, which is by no means admitted—potential and delayed chaos.

President Had Better Course

In the contention now boiling, and likely to be a political issue for a long time, it will be difficult to deny there was a better course for the President and the administrators of OPA. It would have been to accept the bill that Congress wrote, and do the best possible under it, with expectation that, in a spirit of co-operation with Congress, new legislation could be asked for if needed.

Whether the bill Congress wrote was what Mr. Truman says it is, or was wise and well-considered, is a thing the average person cannot easily decide. A Senator who is a Democrat who is more or less impartial on the present question, and who has been in the Senate many years, says that in all his experience he has never seen any House or Senate committee give more intent or more thoughtful deliberation to any bill, than was given to the present OPA bill by the Senate and House committee that handled it.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Philippine Independence Will Reap Goodwill Dividends to U. S.; OPA's Paul Porter "On Bikini;" West Virginia's Kilgore Gets Senate Praise.

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, The writer, having visited many parts of the Far East, including the Philippines, has sometimes wondered whether the American people fully appreciate the historic event taking place in Manila today.

In the world which has seen the Dutch East Indies torn by civil war over the issue of independence, where Roumania and Bulgaria have lost part of their sovereignty to a domineering neighbor, where even Greece and Czechoslovakia are still occupied by foreign troops, it is worth thinking twice about the fact that the Philippines today becomes a free nation.

In other words, the United States has kept faith.

It would have been easy to justify a contrary course. There is still plenty of unrest in the Philippines, and we might easily have talked ourselves into remaining there.

The French are holding a tight grip on Indo-China. Winston Churchill when asked by FDR to give Hongkong back to China, replied: "I was not made Prime Minister to liquidate the British Empire."

But the fact that we carried out our pledge to the Filipino people will reap dividends of goodwill not only in the Orient, but throughout the world. It is a double reason for celebrating the Fourth.

Paul Porter A-Bombed

Chester Bowles, who stepped out of Government after tough and unappreciated years of battling against inflation, is a close friend of Paul Porter. The two fought side by side—Bowles as Economic Stabilizer, Porter as Administrator of OPA.

When Bowles resigned, Porter, left to fight the inflation battle alone, wrote a note expressing his appreciation of past co-operation and regretting Bowles' departure.

"I now feel," Porter told his former Chief, "like a native whom the Navy forgot to remove from Bikini just before the atom bomb exploded."

—o—

It wasn't announced, but Prime Minister Attlee sent a confidential message to President Truman informing him that British troops had taken repressive measures against Jewish elements in Palestine. However, the message arrived only after the British troops had already moved in.

Attlee asked Truman for a public statement of support, but the President was so irked by the way Attlee acted first and advised him afterward, that he phoned Acting Secretary of State Dean Acheson and told him to issue a statement keeping American skirts clear of the British move.

—o—

John Snyder kept bobbing into the Cabinet Room during the drafting of Truman's OPA veto message. He seemed nervous and wanted to lend a hand in writing the speech. Nobody gave him any encouragement and he went out. . . The speech was largely written by OPA Boss Paul Porter, Reconversion Czar John Steelman and Judge Sam Rosenman . . . The FBI is already digging into large-scale hoarding. Truman gave a hint of this in his veto message but he didn't go into details. The details are that some very big—and respectable —manufacturing concerns may be hauled into the FBI net, particularly in the meat, shirt, textile, butter, processed foods and suit industry.

—o—

During a brief lull in a recent Senate night debate, several solons were taking a brief rest in the office of Senate Secretary Les Biffle.

Sen. Jim Murray of Montana walked over and threw his right arm around Sen. Harley Kilgors and started praising the West Virginia Democrat. Turning to Biffle, Murray said:

Harley here is the only man who really knew that this trouble was coming."

"What do you mean?" asked Biffle.

"Well, if the Senate had listened to Harley two years ago when he brought out his Reconversion Bill we wouldn't be in this mess now," replied the Senator from Montana.

Murray was referring to Kilgore's legislation to provide for careful post-war planning to make sure that materials and men were released in an orderly fashion after the war.

Kilgore had the foresight to release this reconversion bill as early as March 1944, and it gained the support of Senators Thomas of Utah, Johnson of Colorado, Hill of Alabama, Wagner of New York, LaFollette of Wisconsin, Pepper of Florida, Wallgren of Washington (now Governor), and Harry Truman, then Senator.

Overriding the opposition of Kilgore's bitter Republican enemy, Revercomb of West Virginia, the bill got through the Military Affairs Committee, after which big-business supporters in the Senate, led by George of Georgia and Vandenberg of Michigan, chopped out its heart.

The original bill called for a program bureau to sit down with a national production - employment board, consisting of leaders of management, labor, agriculture and the general public, to work out the details of an orderly, harmonious transition period after the war. Had the Kilgore bill passed, we might be in a different position than in the turmoil of today.

It's Southerners who have the reputation for filibustering, but three Northern Republicans are conducting a filibuster more secret and just as skillful as that of any Dixie Democrat. It's against the Atom Control Bill—vital to the Nation.

I know the House will pass the Senate-approved McMahon Bill for control of atomic energy if it comes to a vote: so for two weeks three Republicans have kept the bill bottled up in the Military Affairs Committee by stalling at every turn.

The three filibusterers are: Parnell Thomas of New Jersey, Forrest Harness of Indiana and Charles Elston of Ohio.

Many committee members gave up their evening Friday for a special session in order to complete the bill and give the United States a policy to back up Barney Baruch in the United Nations. Half an hour after the time set for the meeting they lacked a quorum, and Ohio's recalcitrant Elston would not let them proceed. Only one more member was needed.

Finally Congresswoman Clare Booth Luce of Connecticut phoned that she was on her way to the Committee Room from her office five floors above. But while she was in the elevator, Elston grabbed his hat and left so there would still be no quorum.

Thus a dozen conscientious Congressmen were left to waste more than an hour, and Bernard Baruch was left high and dry before the United Nations with no law on the statute books to back him up.

IS THAT METER STILL RUNNING?

Country Will Benefit By Present Period Of Enforced Re-Adjustment

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, July 3 — The public is asking what ought to be done to clear up the confusion resulting from President Truman's veto of the price control bill which had passed Congress by an overwhelming vote of both houses.

The answer lies in asking a simple question: Does the citizen favor a policy of stabilization operated by the federal government that really keeps costs down to a reasonable basis or does he favor relaxation of all controls and letting the people—the buyers—determine their prices in a natural market?

If the citizen favors continued controls because of the shortage of goods and the inevitable tendency of some producers to charge as much as they can, then what he really wants is a policy of government stabilization of costs.

There can be no price control unless all costs are controlled. Yet very few of the persons who are telegraphing to the White House their approval of the veto message or crying out for a return of the OPA really want stabilization of costs. Very few of them want to see wages controlled or stabilized, and yet wage costs are as much an item in the making of a price as any other factor.

People Have Two Choices

So if the people want price control, they must, in all fairness, approve of wage and salary control. Strictly speaking, that's what ought to be done. The President ought to ask Congress for authority to fix wages and salaries as well as prices if there is to be a controlled economy.

If, on the other hand, the citizen wants to see normal times come back soon, he will favor the return of a free market in which supply and demand fix the prices of goods that are not scarce and in which sensible marketing practices fix the prices of goods that are scarce.

There can be no sensible marketing practices when a black market is permitted to flourish. The only reason meat is scarce today is because the legitimate producers cannot charge enough to cover their costs. The moment the OPA bill was vetoed, there began a flow of livestock to market which was unparalleled. The prices jumped, as inevitably they had to in order to clean out the black-market meat quickly. The black-market operators unloaded promptly. With no price ceilings to bother them, the cattlemen of the country now will supply the meat needed by the American people. If price ceilings are restored, meats will be scarce again.

High Prices Can Be Temporary

High prices can be a temporary phenomenon. What Congress ought to do is wait a fortnight and see how quickly prices will readjust themselves to the new situation. The history of price operations shows that when prices are out of line, production for the time being is feverishly increased, only to fall again as the people stop buying. The risk of being caught with a supply that can't move prompts many a producer to hold his prices within bounds.

The psychology of the country at present, unfortunately, is that of a controlled economy. One suspects that many people never expected price controls to end nor did they think of the consequences of letting wage costs skyrocket while ceilings were placed on sales prices. Yet production has been stunted in recent months because of this very factor.

Sooner or later there had to be a brief period of readjustment while price controls were thrown off and the producers and distributors were compelled to find a natural market. A few days of confusion were inevitable, but it is better to have that readjustment now than to postpone it indefinitely and encourage black markets and retard production in the meantime.

Rent Control Needed

The Congress ought, of course, to pass a rent control bill at once, but the administration supporters are blocking such action. Only a few days ago the Democratic leadership was arguing for a compromise bill which included rent control. Now it is opposed to rent control unless other controls are put in the same legislation.

The more time and opportunity the businessmen of the country are given to readjust their prices on a fair basis to absorb government-encouraged rises in costs, the more quickly will a period of stabilization be reached without the OPA.

In order to control rents and certain other products related to housing shortages, however, there will be some form of OPA restored but it will be much less than President Truman could have had if he had signed the bill Congress transmitted to him last week. OPA will owe its curtailment largely to Mr Truman's mistake but in the long run the country will benefit by this present period of enforced readjustment to de-control of prices by the government.

IT SAYS HERE - - - - By Bob Hope

The army is trying to sell some of its horses and I made some inquiries. The first question the sergeant asked me was, "What do you want 'em for, riding or eating?"

Yep, the meat shortage is with us again. I went into a restaurant and ordered a steak and I won't say it was horsemeat, but the steak beat the waitress to my table by a nose.

I went riding in the park on one of those army horses. I'm sure he was an army horse . . . when we came to the zoo and passed the zebra's cage, he saluted.

They said he was supposed to be a cavalry horse. I'm not so sure about that . . . I yelled, "Charge!" . . . and he ran into a department store and bought himself a new set of horseshoes.

The army experts have had a difference of long standing on the relative merits of the horse and the jeep. I don't know why there should be a difference. No matter which you ride, you're in for a stretch of long standing.

But these days a horse hasn't got a chance. I hitched him up and tried to buck that Hollywood Boulevard traffic, and two minutes later I was riding a surrey with the fringe on the bottom.

Evidence of God

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

I am a believer of the Kingdom of Heaven in one's heart. We know nothing of a Heaven beyond this life, but I am certain that I have felt it a reality in the inward lives of many. And I, personally, am more concerned about experiencing that Kingdom in my own heart than I am of the dream of a Heaven when all is silent and these bodily elements have woven their last silken strings into the warp of Mother Earth.

So vibrant was the personality and the inward spirituality of William T. Stead that after meeting Carlyle this irritable genius termed him "that good man Stead!" You see, he carried God in his heart, and folks immediately recognized the fact. This same Stead was one of those who stood, calm and resigned, going down to their watery grave from the sinking Lusitania, that others might be saved.

The evidence of God is everywhere in Nature. In every green grass blade, in every flower, in every gem mined from the deep earth, in the stars, and their regularity in the ether, and in every burst of song from the throat of a bird—there is the whisper of God.

Lovers of beauty are agents of God, whether they acknowledge it or not. Most human beings are far better in heart than they would wish to confess. Rather do they prefer to let their light so shine as to make it a beacon for guidance to those lesser in hope, faith, or courage.

You can almost spot the people you meet and pass upon the street who carry God around in their heart. They walk with surer step, their view is confidently forward, and there is an expression upon their faces that they are victory bound!

The invisible love of a mother, long gone, guides many of us throughout life. In like manner the love of God, and all His creatures and creations, is a guide to us in our thoughts, our plans, and our unselfish dreams. More noble and enduring things come to pass for people who carry God in their heart than is ever suspected.

You don't have to tell people about this fact. They feel it, and know it, just as though told in words, for, you see, deeds have a language. Actions speak louder than words!

Girl Is Advised To Give Sailor Another Chance

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Not long ago the boy I have been going with since last September came home on liberty after being gone two months. He had a five-day leave, and during that time he only took me out twice. After that I didn't see him, and I didn't hear from him for three weeks. Now he writes regularly, and says he still loves me and asks me to wait for him. I'd like to know what to do.

CONFUSED.

I think you are the only one who can answer your own question satisfactorily. For how can anyone else tell how much you care for this boy, or whether or not he is worth waiting for? You don't give even a clue on either of these points, which I should think would be the determining factors in any decision, if you really have to make a decision right now, which I doubt.

If you feel that this boy is a worth-while person, and if he means a great deal to you, then I should think you would naturally want to wait and see if he, in turn, really cares for you. But maybe you don't care that much for him, and maybe you feel that he is not very dependable in his feelings, and so you might be wasting your time in taking him seriously. Only you can tell about this.

Don't you think, in any event, that you expect quite a lot of him? When a boy has only five days leave, he's got to crowd a lot into a short time, and it seems to me he did pretty will by you in taking you out twice. Why don't you give him a chance instead of trying to pin him down? He'll like you much better if you're not too possessive.

Wants More Attention

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 19 years old and in love with a girl of 18.

I went through high school with her and saw her pretty often, and once in awhile got to talk to her. Since school I get to talk to her on the phone, but never get to take her out. She goes with a boy from work about twice a week, and then the rest of her time goes to her other friends. Whenever she sees me, she seems very glad, and as though she likes to be with me.

How can I get her to go out with me more often? I've really been in love with her since my last year in high school, and I know she likes me a lot. Do you think I ought to tell her that I'm in love with her? How can I go about asking her if she likes me and if I can have a certain amount of time with her?

HEARTSICK

It's hard when the person you'd most like to interest just doesn't seem to respond. But there isn't very much you can do about it, I'm afraid. No one can force his way into anybody else's affections, or make her eager to be with him.

And I don't think you'd get anywhere by asking this young woman directly if she likes you. She's likely too kind-hearted to hurt anybody's feelings and wouldn't be willing to give either a yes or no answer. I think all you can do is to keep inviting her out, and if she accepted an invitation now and then, you can be encouraged to ask her again. But if she keeps turning you down, then I'm afraid you'll have to take that as a gentle hint that she just isn't interested in developing the friendship, accept that fact and transfer your interest to someone else.

Should Return Ring

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Will you please tell me if a girl should return a friendship ring given to her as a birthday gift by a fellow she was going with but has now broken off with?

I've already asked him if he would like it back and he said it was up to me. What shall I do?

UNDECIDED.

It would seem to me that since this was a "friendship ring," and the two of you are apparently no longer "friends," the whole thing has lost its point and it would be rather illogical to keep it. Don't you think so?

Also, would you really want to hang on to such a reminder of a romance that flopped? You wouldn't keep wearing this boy's ring, would you, when there is nothing between you any longer to justify it? And you don't want to just put it away in a box of tender memories, do you, and treasure a souvenir of something that's all washed up?

If it were a question of some casual gift such as any friend might give another without it having any special significance, it would be different. There would be no point in returning such things. But when it's something that was intended to symbolize a special feeling that no longer exists, then I think it's in a little better taste to return it Unless, of course, you want the boy to believe that you still hanker for him and are just waiting in the hope that things will be patched up.

HEARTSICK

It's hard when the person you'd most like to interest just doesn't seem to respond. But there isn't very much you can do about it, I'm afraid. No one can force his way into anybody else's affections, or make her eager to be with him.

And I don't think you'd get anywhere by asking this young woman directly if she likes you. She's likely too kind-hearted to hurt anybody's feelings and wouldn't be willing to give either a yes or no answer. I think all you can do is to keep inviting her out, and if she accepted an invitation now and then, you can be encouraged to ask her again. But if she keeps turning you down, then I'm afraid you'll have to take that as a gentle hint that she just isn't interested in developing the friendship, accept that fact and transfer your interest to someone else.

Should Return Ring

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Will you please tell me if a girl should return a friendship ring given to her as a birthday gift by a fellow she was going with but has now broken off with?

I've already asked him if he would like it back and he said it was up to me. What shall I do?

UNDECIDED.

It would seem to me that since this was a "friendship ring," and the two of you are apparently no longer "friends," the whole thing has lost its point and it would be rather illogical to keep it. Don't you think so?

Also, would you really want to hang on to such a reminder of a romance that flopped? You wouldn't keep wearing this boy's ring, would you, when there is nothing between you any longer to justify it? And you don't want to just put it away in a box of tender memories, do you, and treasure a souvenir of something that's all washed up?

If it were a question of some casual gift such as any friend might give another without it having any special significance, it would be different. There would be no point in returning such things. But when it's something that was intended to symbolize a special feeling that no longer exists, then I think it's in a little better taste to return it Unless, of course, you want the boy to believe that you still hanker for him and are just waiting in the hope that things will be patched up.

Hollywood Gossip By Dot Manners

HOLLYWOOD, July 3—At last, 20th Century-Fox has settled on Richard Greene's first picture since the war, and it is an unusual decision, taking him completely away from his British drawing room roles of the past. Gene Markey will produce, and Dick star in, "The Night the World Shook," a screen story by Nunnally Johnson from a French novel. It's he-man action from start to finish—about convicts in a Caribbean prison camp and strangely enough, for this setting, there's a strong romantic theme.

Greene, you know, was one of the first actors to return to his native England, in the early days of the war. He rose from a private to a captain, seeing action in France, Holland and Belgium. His last American movie was "I Married an Adventuress," a smoothie — but there's no reason he can't go earthy with the best of them since he's a very rugged individual standing six feet tall and weighing in at 170. Markey starts the movie with Dick as soon as he finishes, "No Wedding Ring."

—o—

Now the movie fans get a chance to squeal over Charles Trenett, the French cafe singer, who has had the bobby-soxers jumping in New York for the past few months and who, before that, had the French belles in a spin. Brynie Foy has caged the virile thrush on a contract for his Eagle-Lion company and is so pleased over the contract that he agreed to star Trenett in his own original screen story, "Of Thee I Dream." Permitting actors to write their own screen material is really enthusiasm at high pitch. Charles won't be in Hollywood until September because he wants to catch up on his English before starting his screen career.

When Ruth Hussey steps out of "State of the Union" to await the arrival of her baby, Kay Francis steps in replacing her in the hit political satire. In fact, Kay hurries to Broadway the minute she finishes "Wife Wanted," to sit on the sidelines about a month before Ruth leaves. The timing is good because "Wife Wanted" is set for a big New York premiere this fall and Kay will be on hand to help put over the movie in which she stars, and co-produces with Jeffrey Bernerd for Monogram.

—o—

Barry Fitzgerald's brother, Arthur Shields, has been handed a role that may make him a potential rival of his more celebrated relative. Shields, a former Abbey player actor, was signed for the father in "The Fabulous Dorseys"—a part previously hinted and rumored for Barry. It has all the sentimental comedy angles to put him over as a top character comedian in one performance—just as "Going My Way" put over Fitzgerald. Sara Allgood is the "mother" in Charlie Rogers musical about the swing kings, Jimmmy and Tommy Dorsey.

That busy girl Bebe Daniels gets busier and busier. Now producing comedies for Hal Roach, Bebe has signed with Little Folks Favorites, a recording company, to make a series of albums of children's tales. The first two are "Aladdin's Lamp" and "The Little Doll That Ran Away." George R. Bacheller, head of the record company, comes from the movie pioneer family. Bebe is the first Hollywood name to sign for the albums appealing strictly to the child audience.

It will cost Dick Haymes a neat $250,000 to loaf for three months—from now through September. The minute the hint was out that the studios might shudder because of another strike, Haymes was besieged with night club offers, theater contracts, personals, and the biggest of all—a national tour with a top band. To all of this, Dick has said "no." "I haven't had a real vacation in 10 years," he added. "It's the first time in my life I've ever been in a financial spot where I could take time to get acquainted with my children, spend a lot of time at home and take it easy, and that's what I'm going to do," so everybody's happy except, possibly, Haymes' agent.

Hollywood in sorts Skitch Henderson "The Music" confiding to close friends that he and Anita Colby "The Face" would be married, was a bit on the premature side—for the lady says "No." So she won't face the music, huh? Gladys Robinson (Mrs. Eddie G.) who has been ill a long time, is so improved that she accompanies Eddie and their son to Honolulu Thursday—the first family vacation in years; Sir Stewart Duke Elder, ophthalmologist to the king of England, arrived in Hollywood for a look around, unfortunately, just as the strike broke. He's an optical specialist or eye doctor—if you are reaching for a dictionary; Carole Landis' groom, Horace Schmidlapp, is in dead seriousness about luring Hollywooders back to his new studio in New York to make movies. He's just sent Ed Jaffee to the coast to scout talent and bring home the biggest catches he can land; something has happened to B. Stanwyck—and it's all to the glamorous. Barbara, who cared little for clothes for years, was a dream puss, at a small dinner party the other night, in a short skirted black cocktail dress with a white print top. Along with Bob Taylor, Gene Raymond, the D. A. Dorans and Paul Short—Barbara had her fortune told and if the seer didn't tell her she's a candidate for the "best dresed" lists—she's no prophet; no actor in Hollywood has ever been more co-operative with the press and studio publicity department than Ronald Colman during his stint at 20th for "The Late George Apley." The studio whipping boys can't get over his graciousness about interviews, appointments and portrait sittings—all right on the dot of the hours set for him; The Lecuona Cuban boys, opening at the Troc Thursday night, follow with a movie, "Christmas in Havana" for 20th Century-Fox; Rosemary de Camp's baby expected hourly. That's all today. See you Saturday.

Allegany County Well Drillers Help Conserve Water

The Maryland Department of Geology, Mines and Water Resources yesterday, in urging co-operation in the Maryland program to conserve the important natural resource of ground water, announced that Allegany county has five licensed well drillers.

The department cited that increased population and heavier needs by modern industries are demanding rapidly increasing amounts of water. Although ground water is a replenishable natural resource, the supply is not unlimited and for this reason controls have been set up over the drilling of wells.

All persons engaged in drilling wells are now required to secure a license from the department, and this in turn provides a check over the number of wells drilled, and the places where they have been sunk.

Those licensed to do this work in Allegany county are Frank V. Carpenter, of the Carpenter Well Drilling Company, Cumberland; Henry W. Ford, of Corriganville; Emanuel R. Irwin, of 79 Hill street, Frostburg; John H. Johnson, of Route 3, Cumberland; Jacob Miller, of Cresaptown.

In Garrett county, the licensed drillers are Aubrey C. Brenneman, of Star Route, Oakland; John B. Tressler of Route 1, Grantsville; Resley Tressler, of Route 1, Grantsville.

In nearby West Virginia, the licensed drillers are Chester H. Buser, of Route 1, Ridgeley; W. F. Kelley, of 110 Second street, Terra Alta, and Edgar W. Northcraft, Route 1, Ridgeley.

Joseph T. Singewald, Jr., director of the department, reported that since the well drilling act became effective last July 1, that over 550 wells have been drilled. Most of the wells are for farming and domestic purposes, he added.

New industrial wells during that period took additional 6,000,000 gallons of water a day, he said, and this indicates the need of control over the amount of ground-water taken in order to protect the natural resource for the welfare of all the people of Maryland.

MONTGOMERY WARD

On Independence Day, the Liberty Bell will again ring out its glad tidings of freedom throughout the land. Today, more than ever in our 170 year history, the whole world is listening. Our republic is on trial just as surely as it has been since 1776. Let us assume the leadership the world is thrusting upon us .... and lead all nations to lasting Peace!

Today we live in a land of plenty, while our brothers-in-arms of last year are starving. Through the combined efforts of every American we can feed these people and help prevent millions of deaths in Europe and Asia. It is up to us to prove to them that a free democracy is not just a hollow phrase, but a reality worth fighting for and building toward.

America has proved she is still a "home of the brave." No American is afraid to fight for what he thinks is right, even though it be just an ideal. He is even willing to sacrifice his life to maintain his freedom or obtain freedom for other oppressed peoples. With such a heritage, America will always be free!

That all the world may hear...

On Independence Day, the Liberty Bell will again ring out its glad tidings of freedom throughout the land. Today, more than ever in our 170 year history, the whole world is listening. Our republic is on trial just as surely as it has been since 1776. Let us assume the leadership the world is thrusting upon us . . . . and lead all nations to lasting Peace!

Today we live in a land of plenty, while our brothers-in-arms of last year are starving. Through the combined efforts of every American we can feed these people and help prevent millions of deaths in Europe and Asia. It is up to us to prove to them that a free democracy is not just a hollow phrase, but a reality worth fighting for and building toward.

America has proved she is still a "home of the brave." No American is afraid to fight for what he thinks is right, even though it be just an ideal. He is even willing to sacrifice his life to maintain his freedom or obtain freedom for other oppressed peoples. With such a heritage, America will always be free!

Parking Meters To Be Installed On West Side

Parking meter standards are being installed on Washington, Greene, South Centre, Salem and South George streets, as well as on Cumberland street from the Algonquin hotel to Johnson street, Chief of Police Oscar A. Eyerman said yesterday.

The meters will be installed on the south side of Washington street from the Algonquin hotel to Prospect square. They will be installed on both sides of Greene street from Water street to Johnson street.

Meters will also be installed on the north side of Baltimore street along Central YMCA from Park street to Altamont terrace; on both sides of Laing avenue from Virginia avenue to the Keyes hotel; and on the west side of Virginia avenue between First street and Laing avenue.

Chief Eyerman said 258 meters will be installed, adding that the total includes both replacements and new meters. All meters below Harrison street and all those on the West Side will be two-hour meters.

Work on installation is expected to be finished next week, after which additional work will be started in removing meters on the east side of North Centre street from Baltimore to Market street; all meters on North Centre from Baltimore to Bedford street; all meters on Liberty street except for those on the east side of South Liberty street; and all meters on Pershing street.

A total of 66 old mettrs will be taken out, Chief Eyerman said.

Local Recruiters Get Commendation On Work

Major General Eddy, commander of the Second Army, has officially commended Capt. N. S. P. Stitt, and his staff of recruiters, for the excellent record established in June in enlistments.

The local recruiting office enlisted 89 men during the month, and scored about 105 per cent, based upon the monthly quota. Cumberland was the only office in the area to exceed its June quota by such a wide margin.

Capt. Stitt also announced that he has been officially notified that enlistments for the Mediterranean theater are now limited to men who have qualified and actually served six months or more in the following military occupations: radio operator, medical laboratory technician, dental technician, stenographer and investigator.

For negroes jobs open cover draftsman, surveyor, medical technician, surgical technician and cable splicer, (telephone and telegraph).

the State Police Collision Statistics Bureau, said he anticipated a rough time until after Monday. He expressed a belief, however, that accidents would be fewer than if the holiday had come on Friday or Monday.

The state's two principal railroads reported traffic was becoming heavier by the hour, but not beyond the capacity of equipment that had been added.

The Pennsylvania reported an extremely heavy rush in its Baltimore terminal at noon. The Baltimore and Ohio ran two extra trains from Baltimore to Pittsburgh and added cars to regular schedules.

Ocean City expected to entertain 25,000 visitors if the weather held fair. The forecast along the Delmarva coast was for cloudiness and occasional showers. Hotels and rooming houses there were booked solid.

The Sandy Point-Matapeake ferry service abandoned all thought of scheduled operation and shuttled its craft back and forth as fast as they could be loaded. Even so, there were waiting lines of cars.

Inland communities were promised clear skies for picnics, sports events and other outings.

Biggest event scheduled in northwest Maryland was an all-day frolic by Celanese Local 1874 of the Textile Workers of America at Frostburg. The program includes baseball games, dancing and a race after a greased pig.

Coney Has Homecoming

At Lonaconing there's a gala four-day homecoming celebration for returned servicemen.

Baltimore residents have their choice of five big fireworks displays in the evening. Most famous of these is the party thrown at the stadium by the Greater Northeast Baltimore Association.

It gets under way at 7 with a drum and bugle corps contest and swings into Fourth-of-July tradition with talks—but short ones—by Governor O'Conor and Mayor McKeldin, both candidates in the fall elections, O'Conor for the United States Senate and McKeldin for governor.

The state's government offices and commercial institutions are observing the holiday by closing. Federal government employes, of which there are many thousands on the fringes of Washington in Montgomery and Prince Georges counties, are free until Monday, but state employes will return to work Friday and most shops will reopen.

Despite the fireworks ban, things are going to be popping in one Baltimore neighborhood celebration. The kids there are turning out to march in a big parade—each with a toy balloon.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) issued a statement declaring that "Chester Bowles and others of the Truman administration are issuing hysterical statements to force a buying rush x x x as propaganda for their OPA position." He urged the public not to be "stampeded while the congress is attempting to straighten out the confusion into which President Truman's veto of the OPA bill has thrown the country."

Democrats Change Attitude

Before the banking committee met, Senator Murdock (D-Utah) reported indications that some Democrats who supported restrictions in the original bill now have changed their attitude.

"I think the President has solidified his party behind his position on the price control question as it never was soldified before," he told a reporter, pointing to the House vote on a 20-day extension which only one Democrat opposed.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio), whose amendment to raise manufacturers' ceilings to cover increased costs was specifically assailed by the President, said he is willing to compromise on some provisions. He added, however, that many Republicans want to stand by the provisions of the vetoed bill.

The committee had two identical measures before it providing for an emergency extension of the OPA in its original form until July 20—the one passed by the House Monday and another introduced by Chairman Wagner (D-NY). But there was no prospect of senate action on temporary legislation.

Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky) sought agreement on a one-year extension with as many modifications of the vetoed bill as he could gain.

"Pyorrhea" Does Not Fit Meaning, Doctor Declares

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

Pity the poor doctor. He has not only to treat diseases but must think up all the jaw-breaking names for them as well. It's more of a job than you might think because the name of a disorder should locate it in the body, tell something of its results, and even sugegst its cause.

However hard they may be to pronounce, that's a big order to fill with one or two words so it is not surprising if once in a while somebody slips up in this game of making the name fit the disease.

Doesn't Fit Meaning

"Pyorrhea" is one that doesn't, not quite. "Pyo" means pus, and "rrhea" means discharge, which would imply that in all cases of pyorrhea there is a discharge of infected material from the gums. However, this is by no means the case. What really happens in pyorrhea is that there is some inflammation of the gums and a separation of them from the teeth so that pockets form.

The exact cause of pyorrhea is not known. It is suggested that because persons chew soft foods, the gums become soft and are cut by hard particles of food. Then little ulcers form on the gums and germs get in between the gums and the teeth, destroying the material which attaches the tooth to the gum. Then pockets form and pyorrhea is said to be present.

However, there are many others who do not subscribe to this opinion, but who think that perhaps some disturbance of the way in which the chemical activities go on in the body may be responsible for the development of the condition. Pyorrhea occurs most often during the middle-aged period.

Pale Gums

In pyorrhea the gums appear pale and shrunken. In between the gums and the teeth there are deep pockets. Practically all of the teeth are affected. There is some wasting of the jawbone around the teeth and the teeth are loose. Thick, infected material may come from the pockets.

An x-ray examination is helpful in making a diagnosis. The treatment is best carried out, under the directions of a specialist, according to Dr. J. D. Hamilton Jamieson, Edinburgh. However, the treatment is always lengthy.

He suggests that those with pyorrhea avoid the use of tobacco, alcoholic beverages, extremely hot or cold foods and highly seasoned ones. The next step in the treatment is the removal by the dentist of all sources of irritation such as tartar, hopelessly loose teeth and rough edges on crowns or on fillings.

The patient is given a mouth wash made up of a soap solution with hydrogen peroxide. This is used for at least two minutes after each meal. After a week of this treatment, the gums are painted with zinc chloride daily for a week.

In the more severe cases chromic acid followed by hydrogen peroxide is employed. Deep pockets are removed surgically. The patient is not allowed to use the tooth brush until after the completion of this treatment.

Meadville Viscose Plant Is At Standstill

MEADVILLE, Pa., July 3 (AP) — Operations at the Meadville plant of the American Viscose plant were at a standstill today with 1,800 employes idle in a dispute which a CIO union spokesman termed a "lockout" following a work stoppage.

Textile Workers Union, Local 8, voted last night to support the work stoppage although business agent Edward L. Pearson and Local President William R. Ewing said earlier in a joint statement that:

"We tried to get the men back to work and they (the company) wouldn't take them back. The strike is not sanctioned by the union."

The union said 600 spinners voted to strike last Saturday only to call the strike off Sunday. Then, the unionists said, they were "locked out" when they reported for work Monday. The company denied a lockout saying the plant was "undergoing repairs."

Issue in the dispute is the spinners' contention that day and night pay differentials had been eliminated.

Meadville Viscose Plant Is At Standstill

MEADVILLE, Pa., July 3 (AP) — Operations at the Meadville plant of the American Viscose plant were at a standstill today with 1,800 employes idle in a dispute which a CIO union spokesman termed a "lock-out" following a work stoppage.

Textile Workers Union, Local 8, voted last night to support the work stoppage although business agent Edward L. Pearson and Local President William R. Ewing said earlier in a joint statement that:

"We tried to get the men back to work and they (the company) wouldn't take them back. The strike is not sanctioned by the union."

The union said 600 spinners voted to strike last Saturday only to call the strike off Sunday. Then, the unionists said, they were "locked out" when they reported for work Monday. The company denied a lockout saying the plant was "undergoing repairs."

Issue in the dispute is the spinners' contention that day and night pay differentials had been eliminated.

Young People's Institute To Be Held Next Month

Staff For Camp At Pleasant Valley Is Announced By Minister

By RUDOLPH NICKEL

FROSTBURG, July 3—The Rev. Watson E. Holley, pastor of First Methodist church, this city, and manager and treasurer of a young people's institute to be held at Pleasant Valley, Garrett county, from August 12 to 18 inclusive, stated today that the staff in charge of the affair will open the camp Sunday, August 11.

Mrs. Holley, who had been selected as dean of women, has withdrawn on account of her health and Mrs. Eddy Ford, Baltimore, will take her place: Mrs. Ford will be accompanied by her husband who is pastor of Strawbridge Methodist church, Baltimore.

The institute, previously held at Westminster, Md., is expected to be larger than ever. The site in Garrett county, considered one of the most beautiful in the state, offers all the advantages of a summer camp, including a lake that is ideal for bathing and swimming.

The institute, a new venture in this type of religious training, will be conducted as a summer camp with each camper selecting a field of study. The three topic are "My God and I," including "Convictions," "God," "Bible," "Church,' and "Discipleship;" "My Life with Others,' "The Abundant Life," "Work, Play and Friendship," "Choice of a Life Mate," and "Christian Home;" and "My Attitude on Social Issues," "World Government," "Labor," "Race," "Liquor,' "Juvenile Delinquency" and "Divorce."

The institute will be open to young people of the Methodist churches from the district, and is especially designed for those between the ages of 18 and 24, who have graduated from high school.

Members of the staff, besides the Rev. Mr. Holley and the Rev. and Mrs. Ford, will include the Rev. W. W. Delaplane, Baltimore, dean; the Rev. Edgar W. Beckett, Hyattsville, dean; the Rev. John R. Wilson, Eckhart, registrar; Dr. and Mrs. Russell Brown, Washington; Miss Dorothy Ordwein, Washington; Mrs. Edward Reter, Hereford; the Rev. Edwin A. Ross, Baltimore; the Rev. Ira Shindle, Clarkville; Miss Edythe Stafford, Washington, and the Rev. Charles I. Wallace, Buskeystown, Md.

Policeman Appointed

At the meeting of the mayor and city council Monday evening, Lloyd Truly, 26, veteran of World War II, was appointed to the city police force for a six month probationary period prior to permanent appointment to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Hugh Duncan.

Following the appointment, Police Commissioner Arthur Thomas asked that at least one more man be added to the police force. Finance Commissioner John Hendley cautioned that such an addition to the force would be a drain on city funds. The request was tabled for further consideration.

Police Commissioner Thomas also asked the city to purchase a new police car of the ambulance-patrol type used by military police. The city clerk was instructed to write to the War Assets Administration to inquire if such a car might be available through the army surplus supply. Local automobile dealers will also be asked to submit bids.

The third request made by the police commissioner was permission to change the working schedule of the police force so that each policeman will have one day a week off instead of one day a month as has been the custom. The members of the force work eight hours daily.

Will Fill Pulpit

Due to the absence of the Rev. Justus H. Liesmann, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church, who is in New York taking a summer course for six weeks, the pulpit of his church will be filled next Sunday by Robert Hook, Cumberland, a student for the ministry; July 14 and 21 the Rev. G. E. Lamphere, a retired minister who resides here.

The preacher on the remaining Sundays will be the Rev. John G. Gensel, recently released from service as a chaplain with the United States Navy, now living in Washington, D. C., until he begins his graduate study at the Union Theological Seminary, New York city, this fall. The Rev. Mr. Gensel served at the naval air training technical training center, Memphis Tenn., and on Guam.

Resident Physicians, Hagerstown Hospital Go On 24-Hour Duty

HAGERSTOWN, Md., July 3 (AP)—For the first time since its establishment in 1905, the Washington County Hospital will have resident physicians on duty 24-hours a day.

Charles J. Cotter, hospital superintendent, made the announcement today following a decision of the board of trustees. He said that many times during the last few years the hospital had been without a physician to handle emergency cases.

Cotter said Dr. Eldon G. Hoachlander, of Greencastle, Pa., a war veteran, would join the hospital staff.

Leah Jo Dudley Becomes Bride Of Elmer Marsh

Wedding Ceremony Is Solemnized In First Presbyterian Church

By MARIE MERRBACH

LONACONING, July 2 — In a beautiful setting of white flowers, candelabra of lighted tapers and green foliage, Miss Leah Jo Dudley, daughter of Mrs. Ruth Dudley, Long Beach, Calif., and the late Joseph Dudley, formerly of Lonaconing, became the bride of Elmer A. Marsh, son of Lonnie Marsh, Sr., Westernport, and the late Mrs. Marsh, Sunday afternoon.

The ceremony was solemnized at 2:30 in the First Presbyterian church with the Rev. Chalmer H. Goshorn officiating.

Before the ceremony nuptial music was played by Miss Maxine Conrad cousin of the bride, Cumberland, who also accompanied Miss Verna Miller, aunt of the bride, singing "Oh, Promise Me" and "Because". Miss Conrad played the traditional wedding marches.

Miss Ann Dudley was her sister's maid of honor. Miss Carol Conrad, cousin of the bride, Cumberland, was junior bridesmaid. Lonnie Marsh Jr., Westernport, served as his brother's best man and the ushers were Chester Marsh, Westernport, and James A. Cathcart, Jr., Lonaconing.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, Clarence E. Miller, wore a white slipper satin gown fashioned on princess lines, with long pointed sleeves, sweetheart neckline and the skirt ending with a short train. Her tierred fingertip length veil was held with a braided satin coronet trimmed with seeded pearls. She carried a white Bible with a pale orchid with white streamers. Her only adornment was a strand of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom.

The maid of honor wore a powder blue net and taffeta gown and a juliet cap with shoulder length veil and long white nylon gloves. She carried a nosegay of assorted flowers with pink streamers. The junior bridesmaid wore a pink taffeta gown and carried a nosegay of varigated flowers with blue streamers.

Mrs. Ruth Dudley chose a navy blue dress for her daughter's wedding with which she wore a navy blue hat and white accessories and a corsage of gardenias. Mrs. Marsh, stepmother of the bridegroom, was attired in a print dress with which she wore white accessories and a corsage of gardenias.

Following the church ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Jessie Miller, Watercliffe street, for the immediate families and friends. The home was decorated with summer flowers and white streamers emphasizing the wedding bell theme. The bride's table was centered with a four tierred wedding cake ornamented with miniature figures of a bride and groom and tall white tapers at each end.

The serving hostesses were Mrs. David Brown, Mrs. John Johnson, Mrs. John P. Stevenson, Mrs. Clarence E. Miller, Mrs. John C. Walters, Mrs. James A. Cathcart Jr., Mrs. Galen Beeman, Mrs. Ralph Murphy and Miss Maxine Hawkins.

Mr. and Mrs. Marsh left for a wedding trip to Washington, D. C. For traveling the bride was attired in a gray and white dress with which she wore a white hat and accessories and a corsage of orchids.

The bride is a graduate of Central high school and for the past two years she has been employed in Long Beach, California.

Mr. Marsh, a veteran of three years in the service, graduated from Bruce high school. He served two years in the Pacific area, and now is employed at the West Virginia Pulp and Paper mill at Luke.

Upon their return from their wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Marsh will reside on Watercliff street.

Attend Choir School

Miss Jean Milford and Miss Dorothy Brown are attending the Westminster choir school at Hood college, Frederick, beginning July 1 and continuing for two weeks.

Miss Eleanor Cuthbertson will attend the Westminster Fellowship conference at Hood the week of July 8. The three representatives of the Lonaconing Presbyterian church will return Friday, July 12.

Asked To Get Licenses

Licenses may be secured by the town business establishments from Mrs. Sara B. Schramm, city clerk. Proprietors of business places are asked to co-operate by calling for their licenses.

The Soldier Homecoming committee was granted permission upon their request to hold the Soldiers Homecoming in Lonaconing this week.

It was also cited that repair on the streets would begin now. The Robbin street bridge adjoining Sloan's property will be completely renovated.

To Show Movie

Dr. William F. Kuykendall, former chaplain of the army, who was stationed at one time in Alaska, will bring a sound moving picture to the First Presbyterian church, Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the service. The movie, entitled "He Restoreth My Soul," has been shown throughout the county and portrays the needs in this present day world.

Church School Closes

Vacation church school closed last Friday at First Presbyterian church after being held for two weeks for the young children of the church. Instructors for the vacation school were Misscs Dorothy Brown, Eleanor Cuthbertson, Betty Ann Cooper, Wanda Patterson, Mrs. Martha Clark, Mrs. L. L. Henry, Misses Jean Milford and Ella Jean Love.

Relief Donations Made

It was announced today by the Rev. C. H. Goshorn, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, that the local denomination has made two contributions to the United Church project at New Windsor, for European relief. In Tuesday's NEWS it carried an article that the Rev. George H. Jeffrey, Lonaconing, is one of the "nautical cowboys" recruited by the United church to care for stock being sent to rehabilitate Europe on modern "Noah's Arks".

Pre-Holiday Listlessness Marks Stock Mart With Trading Slow

By VICTOR EUBANK

NEW YORK, July 3 (AP) — Mild irregularity ruled today's stock market in the slowest dealings for the past eleven months.

Pre-holiday listlessness prevailed from the start as many Wall Streeters prepared to adjourn until next Monday. All United States markets will suspend for Independence day tomorrow but the Stock Exchange will reopen for the final session of the week Friday which, it was expected, will be shunned by numerous customers.

While a few picotals managed to stiffen at the close, declines outnumbered advances. It was the narrowest market since March 12, only 899 issues registering. Of these, 372 fell and 316 rose. The Associated Press 60-stock composite was up .1 of a point at 79.3. Transfers of 650,000 shares compared with 760,000 Tuesday and were the smallest for a full stretch since August 6, 1945.

National Distillers was up 1¼ at $92.62, a peak for the year. American Smelting added 1¾ at 68.65 and Johns-Manville 1 at $152. Minor plus signs were held by United States Steel, United States Rubber, Santa Fe, Northern Pacific, Chesapeake and Ohio, Baltimore and Ohio, Texas Company, American Telephone, International Harvester, Oliver Corporation and Woolworth.

American Woolen common was off 1 at $61.87 and the preferred 3 at $171 when a stockholders' meeting was adjourned without acting on recapitalization. Commonwealth and Southern came out on one 17,000-share block and ended unchanged at $5.

Improved in the Curb were Montreal Light and Catalin. Easier were Electric Bond and Share, Claude Neon Lights, Textron and North American Light. Turnover here was 270,000 shares against 360,000 yesterday.

The attention of a narrowly irregular bond market focussed today on obligations of several railroads in reorganization which were affected by specific news developments.

A wrangle appeared to be brewing over the question of excluding the New Haven and Denver and Rio Grande Western roads from the provisions of pending federal legislation.

The Wheeler reorganization bill has passed the Senate with an amendment exempting the D. R. G. and W. In the House, some congressmen backed a similar exemption for the New Haven, thus making an issue of the entire problem.

United States Governments, especially in the longer amturities, continued to improve on substantial turnover in the over-the-counter market.

Pre-Holiday Listlessness Marks Stock Mart With Trading Slow

By VICTOR EUBANK

NEW YORK, July 3 (AP) — Mild irregularity ruled today's stock market in the slowest dealings for the past eleven months.

Pre-holiday listlessness prevailed from the start as many Wall Streeters prepared to adjourn until next Monday. All United States markets will suspend for Independence day tomorrow but the Stock Exchange will reopen for the final session of the week Friday which, it was expected, will be shunned by numerous customers.

While a few picotals managed to stiffen at the close, declines outnumbered advances. It was the narrowest market since March 12, only 899 issues registering. Of these, 372 fell and 316 rose. The Associated Press 60-stock composite was up .1 of a point at 79.3. Transfers of 650,000 shares compared with 760,000 Tuesday and were the smallest for a full stretch since August 6, 1945.

National Distillers was up 1¼ at $92.62, a peak for the year. American Smelting added 1⅛ at 68.65 and Johns-Manville 1 at $152. Minor plus signs were held by United States Steel, United States Rubber, Santa Fe, Northern Pacific, Chesapeake and Ohio, Baltimore and Ohio, Texas Company, American Telephone, International Harvester, Oliver Corporation and Woolworth.

American Woolen common was off 1 at $61.87 and the preferred 3 at $171 when a stockholders' meeting was adjourned without acting on recapitalization. Commonwealth and Southern came out on one 17,000-share block and ended unchanged at $5.

Improved in the Curb were Montreal Light and Catalin. Easier were Electric Bond and Share, Claude Neon Lights, Textron and North American Light. Turnover here was 270,000 shares against 360,000 yesterday.

The attention of a narrowly irregular bond market focussed today on obligations of several railroads in reorganization which were affected by specific news developments.

A wrangle appeared to be brewing over the question of excluding the New Haven and Denver and Rio Grande Western roads from the provisions of pending federal legislation.

The Wheeler reorganization bill has passed the Senate with an amendment exempting the D. R. G. and W. In the House, some congressmen backed a similar exemption for the New Haven, thus making an issue of the entire problem.

United States Governments, especially in the longer amturities, continued to improve on substantial turnover in the over-the-counter market.

Yanks Set All-Time Attendance Record

NEW YORK, July 3 (AP) — The New York Yankees set an all-time Yankee Stadium attendance mark today when they drew 52,644 paid fans to their contest with the league-leading Boston Red Sox.

The big turnout boosted the Yanks' turnstile count for 39 games to 1,296,728, eclipsing the old mark of 1,289,442 established by Babe Ruth and his cohorts when the Yanks played at the Polo Grounds in 1920.

Boxing Returns Next Month

By C. V. BURNS

Frankie Sullivan, playing manager of the Westvaco Club, of the Bi-State Baseball League, has turned writer and his recent article in John Rose's Piedmont Herald should be of interest here, particularly to the Queen City Brewers, who snapped the league leaders' ten-game winning streak.

Here are a few choice excerpts from Mr. Sullivan's contribution:

"It seems that sometimes an old baseball adage comes true, meaning the law of averages will catch up to a club that is on a protracted winning streak.

"We had won fourteen in a row, counting the two doubleheaders that we beat Romney, but in our case at Cumberland Sunday, I think we were just a little too anxious to trim our despised opponents. For we think that they were instrumental in causing us to replay Romney.

"Our club is not disheartened by the defeat because we know we beat ourselves, although it is a crime to try to play our usual type of ball on such a field that Cumberland calls a baseball diamond. Our boys aren't used to falling in ditches three feet deep or climbing slate banks, or pitching out of a hole in the ground that they call a mound."

"Vic" Ricker, local boxing matchmaker, was in a story-telling mood the other day and his subject was the late Harry Greb, "Pittsburgh Windmill," who once held the middleweight and light-heavyweight titles.

It seems Greb was getting a shave in the Windsor Barber Shop years ago after engaging in a fight here and he told his manager James "Red" Mason to send a telegram to his (Greb's) girl friend, advising her that he won and was O. K.

As Mason opened the door to go to the telegraph office, Greb jumped out of the chair and yelled:

"Say, Red, you better not send that telegram because she knows your handwriting!"

Traditional watering carts—even those operated by motor trucks, have become antiquated through an innovation at America's newest race track which opens July 22 at Atlantic City.

To keep the track in proper condition during times of drought, several hundred hidden sprinklers have been planted strategically at the edge of the infield and they completely encircle the racing strip.

High in the stands is a control room from which the sprinkling system is turned on to form a gigantic fountain effect as water is sprayed upon the course from every direction.

Atlantic City will have two meets this year, the first, 24 days, from July 22 to August 17 and the second, 18 days, from September 16 to October 5.

There are 16 sandlot teams functioning, or at least trying to, in the two amateur baseball leagues operating in the tri-state area this season.

This seems like a good many yet in 1936—10 years ago—there were 21 teams playing league and independent ball.

The late Earl Brooks's Cumberland Semi-Pros managed by Joe Buskey played independent ball at Community Park on Sunday before an average of 600 paid admissions per game. In addition there were three leagues, namely, Bi-State, comprising Moorefield, Centerville, Ellerslie, Coaldale, Cumberland and Celanese; the George's Creek loop, composed of Barton, Westvaco, Frostburg, Lonaconing, Keyser, Mt. Savage, Eckhart and Midland, and the Potomac Valley League, whose make-up included Paul Edward Club, of Cumberland, Celanese, Lonaconing, Midland, Ridgeley and Pompey.

Amateur boxing will return after a summer vacation when the American Legion stages a show in conjunction with the Maryland department convention next month.

Matchmaker Ricker, who revived the pro sport with two successful shows during the past winter, expects to get going again with a good card in September. "Vic" has hopes of staging shows here twice a month during the 1946-47 season.

Allegheny College, Meadville, Pa., will return to intercollegiate baseball competition next spring for the first time since 1915 and the team will be coached by Robert M. (Bob) Garbark, former major league catcher, and brother of Art Garbark, manager of the local American Legion team of the Interstate and City leagues. Bob played with Cleveland, Chicago Cubs, Philadelphia Athletics and Boston Red Sox.

CINCINNATI, July 3 (AP)—Baseball Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler tonight announced the umpires for the All-Star game in Fenway park at Boston July 9 will be Larry Goetz and Dusty Boggess of the National league and Bill Summers and Ed Rommel of the American league.

Scorers will be Leo MacDonnell, Detroit Times, president of the Baseball Writers Association; Burt Whitman, Boston Herald, and Jack Maleaney, Boston Post.

Cubs Release Adams

CHICAGO, July 3 (AP) — The Chicago Cubs today announced the release of Pitcher Charles (Red) Adams to Los Angeles, their farm team in the Pacific Coast League, on option. Adams was a 21-game winner for the Angels last season. The stocky right-hander's pitching for the Cubs was limited to just relief work.

Undefeated Knights Get 25 Hits And Trounce K. Of P., 22-2

The Knights of Columbus hammered out twenty-five hits to swamp the Knights of Pythias by the score of 22 to 2 in a Rocking Chair Softball League game yesterday at Fort Hill field.

It was the twelfth straight victory for the undefeated league leaders and the sixth successive triumph for Joe Neubiser, who was relieved by "Bud" Scaletta in the fifth after the Caseys had piled up an 18-1 lead.

"Bobby" Cavanaugh rapped out a double and three singles, Sammy DeLuca knocked a homer, double and single, Ray Madden collected a double and two singles and Johnny Aaron, scorekeeper, came off the bench and banged out three singles in his debut. Ed Milbrada also walloped a homer in the third inning. Zehrbach's triple was the longest hit credited to the Pythians. The score:

National Loop Team Holding Lead July 4 Won Flag 28 Times

NEW YORK, July 3. (AP)—The club that leads the National League race on July 4 doesn't always pick up the golden marbles, but it has a much better than even chance of doing so, reports Charles Segar of the senior league's histroical bureau.

From 1900 through 1945, Segar has discovered, the team that was out front on firecracker day hit the tape first in 28 instances, while 18 burned out a fuse in the home stretch.

The Brooklyn Dodgers, who are certain to be ahead tomorrow, have not had too happy an experience with the July 4 tradition in recent years, incidentally.

In four of the past six seasons —'40, '41, '42 and '45—the Flatbushers were showing the way on the supposedly charmed date, but only in '41 did their breath hold out.

"But for heaven's sake, don't say I suggested that might be some kind of omen," Segar begged. "Those Brooklyns are sensitive."

Bauers, Former Pirate, Is Signed by Chicago

CHICAGO, July 3 (AP) — Russ Bauers, 30-year-old right-handed pitcher, was signed by the Chicago Cubs today. James T. Gallagher, general manager announced Bauers was picked up as a free agent and will accompany the Cubs to St. Louis tonight for tomorrow's doubleheader there against the Cardinals.

He served three years in the army before returning to the Pittsburgh Pirates this spring. Bauers was given his unconditional release by the Pirates due to a lame arm before the regular season opened.

Hurricanes Will Meet

A meeting of candidates for the Cumberland Hurricanes, local Negro football team, will be held Friday at 9 p. m., at the Sanitary Barber Shop, North Mechanic street. Those interested are requested to be present. Al Fox will coach the team during the 1946 season.

fore the Major League All-Star game, hurled and batted the Detroit Tigers to a 2-to-1 decision over the Chicago White Sox in 10 innings today.

To achieve his 15th victory of the season, Newhouser had to drive home the winning run with a long two-bagger in the 10th that scored Catcher Paul Richards after he also had doubled.

The Tigers, who had tied it up in the second on Hank Greenberg's 21st homer of the season, won the game after one man was out in the 10th. Box:

Braves Defeat Phils

BOSTON, July 3 (AP) — With Johnny Hopp and Billy Herman supplying most of the power and all but one of the runs, the Boston Braves defeated the cooled-off Phillies 7-1 tonight before a 33,681 crowd. Jim Tabor homered to cheat Johnny Sain out of a shutout, as he collected his ninth win of the season.

The Tribesmen clinched the game against Lefty Ken Raffensberger by belting him for three hits and as many runs in the first inning.

Kush And Erickson Hurl Cubs To Dual Win Over Pirates

Chicago Moves To Within One Full Game Of Second Place

CHICAGO, July 3. (AP)—The Chicago Cubs swept a double-header from the Pittsburgh Pirates today, 4-3 and 2-1, behind the brilliant pitching of Emil Kush and Paul Erickson, two unbeaten relief experts. Kush pitched four hitless innings in the opener after replacing starter Hank Borowy to gain his No. 6 triumph.

The twin victory pulled the Cubs within a game of second place St. Louis in National league standings. The Cubs and Cardinals meet in a Fourth of July double-header at St. Louis tomorrow. Box:

CARDS TROUNCE REDS

ST. LOUIS, July 3 (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals recoiled from a four-game losing streak today with a 10-run fourth inning outburst against the Cincinnati Reds and went on to win 16 to 0 behind the steady pitching of righthander Kenny Burkhart.

Four bases on balls, a double by Slaughter, who drove in six runs during the afternoon, and Burkhart's single gave the Cards four tallies in the sixth and Walker's single, a double by Musial and Kurowski's one baser produced two more in the seventh.

Although reached for 10 singles, Burkhart kept the blows well spaced and seldom was in danger of being scored upon as he registered his fifth triumph against one loss. Box:

Frankie Blames Queen City

Atlantic City Sets Pace

21 Teams Operated In 1936

Boxing Returns Next Month

By C. V. BURNS

Frankie Sullivan, playing manager of the Westvaco Club, of the Bi-State Baseball League, has turned writer and his recent article in John Rose's Piedmont Herald should be of interest here, particularly to the Queen City Brewers, who snapped the league leaders' ten-game winning streak.

Here are a few choice excerpts from Mr. Sullivan's contribution:

"It seems that sometimes an old baseball adage comes true, meaning the law of averages will catch up to a club that is on a protracted winning streak.

"We had won fourteen in a row, counting the two doubleheaders that we beat Romney, but in our case at Cumberland Sunday, I think we were just a little too anxious to trim our despised opponents. For we think that they were instrumental in causing us to replay Romney.

"Our club is not disheartened by the defeat because we know we beat ourselves, although it is a crime to try to play our usual type of ball on such a field that Cumberland calls a baseball diamond. Our boys aren't used to failing in ditches three feet deep or climbing slate banks, or pitching out of a hole in the ground that they call a mound."

"Vic" Ricker, local boxing matchmaker, was in a story-telling mood the other day and his subject was the late Harry Greb, "Pittsburgh Windmill," who once held the middleweight and light-heavyweight titles.

It seems Greb was getting a shave in the Windsor Barber Shop years ago after engaging in a fight here and he told his manager James "Red" Mason to send a telegram to his (Greb's) girl friend, advising her that he won and was O. K.

As Mason opened the door to go to the telegraph office, Greb jumped out of the chair and yelled:

"Say, Red, you better not send that telegram because she knows your handwriting!"

Traditional watering carts—even those operated by motor trucks, have become antiquated through an innovation at America's newest race track which opens July 22 at Atlantic City.

To keep the track in proper condition during times of drought, several hundred hidden sprinklers have been planted strategically at the edge of the infield and they completely encircle the racing strip.

High in the stands is a control room from which the sprinkling system is turned on to form a gigantic fountain effect as water is sprayed upon the course from every direction.

Atlantic City will have two meets this year, the first, 24 days, from July 22 to August 17 and the second, 18 days, from September 16 to October 5.

There are 16 sandlot teams functioning, or at least trying to, in the two amateur baseball leagues operating in the tri-state area this season.

This seems like a good many yet in 1936—10 years ago—there were 21 teams playing league and independent ball.

The late Earl Brooks's Cumberland Semi-Pros managed by Joe Buskey played independent ball at Community Park on Sunday before an average of 600 paid admissions per game. In addition there were three leagues, namely, Bi-State, comprising Moorefield, Centerville, Ellerslie, Coaldale, Cumberland and Celanese; the George's Creek loop, composed of Barton, Westvaco, Frostburg, Lonaconing, Keyser, Mt. Savage, Eckhart and Midland, and the Potomac Valley League, whose make-up included Paul Edward Club, of Cumberland, Celanese, Lonaconing, Midland, Ridgeley and Pompey.

Amateur boxing will return after a summer vacation when the American Legion stages a show in conjunction with the Maryland department convention next month.

Matchmaker Ricker, who revived the pro sport with two successful shows during the past winter, expects to get going again with a good card in September. "Vic" has hopes of staging shows here twice a month during the 1946-47 season.

Allegheny College, Meadville, Pa., will return to intercollegiate baseball competition next spring for the first time since 1915 and the team will be coached by Robert M. (Bob) Garbark, former major league catcher, and brother of Art Garbark, manager of the local American Legion team of the Interstate and City leagues. Bob played with Cleveland, Chicago Cubs, Philadelphia Athletics and Boston Red Sox.

CINCINNATI, July 3 (AP)—Baseball Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler tonight announced the umpires for the All-Star game in Fenway park at Boston July 9 will be Larry Goetz and Dusty Boggess of the National league and Bill Summers and Ed Rommel of the American league.

CHICAGO, July 3 (AP) — The Chicago Cubs today announced the release of Pitcher Charles (Red) Adams to Los Angeles, their farm team in the Pacific Coast League, on option. Adams was a 21-game winner for the Angels last season. The stocky right-hander's pitching for the Cubs was limited to just relief work.

Undefeated Knights Get 25 Hits And Trounce K. Of P., 22-2

The Knights of Columbus hammered out twenty-five hits to swamp the Knights of Pythias by the score of 22 to 2 in a Rocking Chair Softball League game yesterday at Fort Hill field.

It was the twelfth straight victory for the undefeated league leaders and the sixth successive triumph for Joe Neubiser, who was relieved by "Bud" Scaletta in the fifth after the Caseys had piled up an 18-1 lead.

"Bobby" Cavanaugh rapped out a double and three singles, Sammy DeLuca knocked a homer, double and single, Ray Madden collected a double and two singles and Johnny Aaron, scorekeeper, came off the bench and banged out three singles in his debut. Ed Milbrada also walloped a homer in the third inning. Zehrbach's triple was the longest hit credited to the Pythians. The score:

National Loop Team Holding Lead July 4 Won Flag 28 Times

NEW YORK, July 3 (AP)—The club that leads the National League race on July 4 doesn't always pick up the golden marbles, but it has a much better than even chance of doing so, reports Charles Segar of the senior league's histroical bureau.

From 1900 through 1945, Segar has discovered, the team that was out front on firecracker day hit the tape first in 28 instances, while 18 burned out a fuse in the home stretch.

The Brooklyn Dodgers, who are certain to be ahead tomorrow, have not had too happy an experience with the July 4 tradition in recent years, incidentally.

In four of the past six seasons —'40, '41, '42 and '45—the Flatbushers were showing the way on the supposedly charmed date, but only in '41 did their breath hold out.

"But for heaven's sake, don't say I suggested that might be some kind of omen," Segar begged. "Those Brooklyns are sensitive."

Bauers, Former Pirate, Is Signed by Chicago

CHICAGO, July 3 (AP) — Russ Bauers, 30-year-old right-handed pitcher, was signed by the Chicago Cubs today, James T. Gallagher, general manager announced Bauers was picked up as a free agent and will accompany the Cubs to St. Louis tonight for tomorrow's doubleheader there against the Cardinals.

He served three years in the army before returning to the Pittsburgh Pirates this spring. Bauers was given his unconditional release by the Pirates due to a lame arm before the regular season opened.

Hurricanes Will Meet

A meeting of candidates for the Cumberland Hurricanes, local Negro football team, will be held Friday at 9 p. m., at the Sanitary Barber Shop, North Mechanic street. Those interested are requested to be present. Al Fox will coach the team during the 1946 season.

fore the Major League All-Star game, hurled and batted the Detroit Tigers to a 2-to-1 decision over the Chicago White Sox in 10 innings today.

To achieve his 15th victory of the season, Newhouser had to drive home the winning run with a long two-bagger in the 10th that scored Catcher Paul Richards after he also had doubled.

The Tigers, who had tied it up in the second on Hank Greenberg's 21st homer of the season, won the game after one man was out in the 10th. Box:

Jim Tabor homered to cheat Johnny Sain out of a shutout, as he collected his ninth win of the season.

Chicago Moves To Within One Full Game Of Second Place

CHICAGO, July 3. (AP)—The Chicago Cubs swept a double-header from the Pittsburgh Pirates today, 4-3 and 2-1, behind the brilliant pitching of Emil Kush and Paul Erickson, two unbeaten relief experts. Kush pitched four hitless innings in the opener after replacing starter Hank Borowy to gain his No. 6 triumph.

CARDS TROUNCE REDS

ST. LOUIS, July 3 (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals recoiled from a four-game losing streak today with a 10-run fourth inning outburst against the Cincinnati Reds and went on to win 16 to 0 behind the steady pitching of righthander Kenny Burkhart.

Four bases on balls, a double by Slaughter, who drove in six runs during the afternoon, and Burkhart's single gave the Cards four tallies in the sixth and Walker's single, a double by Musial and Kurowski's one baser produced two more in the seventh.

Although reached for 10 singles, Burkhart kept the blows well spaced and seldom was in danger of being scored upon as he registered his fifth triumph against one loss. Box:

It was the first loss for Manager Curtis Hickle's tossers in six starts and the defeat also marked the end of Pitcher Roy Taylor's nine game winning skein. "Chuck" Aman went the route for East Side and limited the Legionnaires to five hits.

East Side staged a four run rally in the second and the Legion chased three runs over the platter in the fourth. "Murph" Brown belted a homer for the winners in the fifth. "Butch" Johnson and Lou Valentine starred afield for East Side.

Roby Notches Twelfth

Lacy's Delicatets scored their second straight win of the second half race when Jim Roby whitewashed the Veterans of Foreign Wars by the score of 9 to 0 at Taylor field. It was Roby's twelfth triumph against a single setback. He fanned eight and yielded two hits.

Walter "Pooch" Orndorff led the Delicatets' attack with a double and triple in three times at bat while Charley Hardy hit for the circuit in the first inning with one aboard during a five-run rally.

In a game marked by twenty-two hits, Williams Street Merchants cutslugged the North End Social Club to win at Campobello by the score of 12-9.

Camelli Expresses Hope Of Remaining In Majors

PITTSBURGH, July 3 (AP)—Henry (Hank) Camelli, 31-year-old war veteran catcher recently optioned by the Pittsburgh Pirates to Toronto in the International League, said today he was "undecided" about reporting there pending further discussion with Pirate officials.

Big Hank, married and the father of a 4-year-old daughter, said he was "surprised" by his release and said:

"I hope the management will be able to swing some sort of a deal to keep me in the majors."

Sets Swimming Record

LOS ANGELES, July 3 (AP) — Ann Curtis, San Francisco, bettered the American record last night by swimming 30 meters in 4m. 2s. in an exhibition. The old mark of 4m. 4s. was set 11 years ago by Lenore Kight of New York.

Yvon Petra Wins Over Tom Brown At Wimbledon

Geoff Brown, Australian, Moves To Finals By Defeating Drobny

By BILL MACKLIN

WIMBLEDON, July 3—(AP)—A giant Frenchman who learned to play tennis in his bare feet and a short Australian whose fare to England was paid by his countrymen's voluntary subscriptions won their way into the men's singles final of the All-England championships today.

Yvon Petra of France, who tops 6 feet, 6 inches without his white jockey cap, won the coveted shot at the title by eliminating the unseeded young San Franciscan, Tom Brown, in a dramatic two-hour duel, 4-6, 4-6, 6-3, 7-5, 8-6.

Geoff Brown Is Victor

The Australian, Geoff Brown, employed his unorthodox two-handed forehand to defeat Jaroslav Drobny of Czechoslovakia, 6-4, 7-5, 6-2, in a match which saw the bespectacled Drobny fail to show any of the brilliance that carried him to victory over Jack Kramer of America in the fourth round.

For the semi-finals, the 23-year-old Brown sought to help out his grand backhand and brilliant service by lending them a good-luck charm. He bought a new shirt with a cat's head over the left breast.

"No one who has worn a cat's head ever lost," the salesman told Brown. And for two sets against the Frenchman it appeared the charm would hold.

Brown won them by hitting the corners alternately with beautiful length and keeping Petra running a marathon along the baseline. Then Petra, a gallant fighter, staged a rally that swept him—against the expressed wishes of a partisan sell-out crowd in the center court—into the finals.

When the American squared the final set at 5-all and then took a 6-5 lead, it did not rattle Petra. He tightened up his game to square matters at 6-all and then swept two more games for the victory. He ran out the final after being down 15-40.

Pauline Betz Scores

Meanwhile, Pauline Betz of Los Angeles made the semi-finals of women's singles an All-American affair for the first time in history by defeating Joan Curry of Britain, 6-0, 6-3. Her opponent tomorrow will be Dorothy Bundy, with Louise Brough and Margaret Osborne clashing in the semi-final of the opposite bracket.

The powerful American women's contingent likewise swept victoriously on in the doubles, three teams advancing into the semi-finals without the loss of a set today.

Budget Patty of California and Pancho Segura of Ecuador completed the semi-final bracket in men's doubles by knocking off Holland's Davis Cup pair, Ivo Rinkel and Dr. Hans Van Swol, 6-2, 9-7, 5-7, 8-6.

Washington Lands Baseball Tourney

All-American Amateur Event Will Get Under Way August 19

BALTIMORE, July 3 (AP) — The All-American Amateur Baseball Association today designated Washington, D. C., as the scene of championship games in its second annual tournament for teen-age sandlot teams.

George S. Patton, Jr., Tank Corps Post No. 19 of the American Legion, will be host, and the games will be played on diamonds in Ellipse Park opposite the White House starting August 19.

Sixteen teams winning regional championships in Northeastern states will compete in the limited division tournament, which is restricted to nines whose members have not reached their 19th birthdays.

They are now engaged in regular league seasons, and regional champs will be determined in playoffs during the first half of August.

The Mohawk Rugmakers, of Amsterdam, N. Y., won last year's junior championship in playoffs at Johnstown, Pa. Star of their surge to the title was Roger Bowman, now a student at New York University, who struck out 71 opponents in 27 and one-third innings.

Glenn L. Martin, Baltimore plane manufacturer who is chairman of the AAABA's board, also announced that championships in the unlimited division for older teams would be played at Harrisburg, Pa., starting Sept. 3.

Harrisburg was host to last year's unlimited playoff, in which the Martin Bombers took the title.

CRACKS RECORD

BOB FITCH, husky University of Minnesota weight man, cracked the world mark in the discus throw at the National A. A. U. meet at San Antono, Tex., to take honors at the No. 1 track and field carnival of the year. Fitch hurled the plater 179 feet. The record on the books is 174 feet, 10⅝ inches, set by an Italian.

Bobby Locke's 69 Tops First Round In British Open

Snead, Bulla And Kirkwood, American Pros, Post Scores Of 71

By VIC HACKLER

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, July 3 (AP)—Bobby Locke, justifying his build-up as the hottest man in current British golf, blasted par by four strokes with a record-setting 69 today in the first round of the British Open championship, but the rest of the field was right on his tail.

It was a great day for the form players. Only one stroke back of Locke were veteran Henry Cotton, trying for his third open crown and Norman Von Nida, the diminutive Australian who led the qualifiers.

Americans Near Leader

Another stroke back with 71's were Sam Snead, Johnny Bulla and Joe Kirkwood, three American pros. Thus all were well under par and grouped within two strokes were six of the eight men most highly regarded before the tournament started.

Outside of this small circle stood the fourth American pro, Lawson Little, who three-putted his way to a five-over-par 78, and Dai Rees, British favorite, who scored a 75.

Defending Champion Dick Burton scored well enough to wipe away a bit of the chagrin over his recent American tour, and was fairly well in the running with a 74.

Locke showed that local golf bookies were as canny as Scots are supposed to be when they quoted him as low as five to one for pre-tourney bets.

Locke's approaches left him little to worry about. On three greens—the fifth, ninth and 17th—he made putts of five feet or less for birdies. His fourth birdie came with a 15-foot putt on the 10th. Otherwise, his game was just par, par, par—nothing more.

Snead and Kirkwood played excellent, steady golf in the perfect morning weather, although neither looked as good as he really is. Kirkwood played with Locke, and by comparison was just scrambling. Snead paired with Bulla, and although Sam was outdriving his partner, Bulla was scorching the course for most of the round.

White Paces Amateurs

Little was going well over the first eight holes, with a birdie to put him one below par. His drive on the ninth nestled in heather, and he lost two strokes escaping and turned in a one over par. On the last nine he three-putted three holes and he also lost a stroke on the 13th when he had to play out from a post.

The low amateur, with a 76, was Ronnie White, 25-year-old RAF flight lieutenant.

Yvon Petra Wins Over Tom Brown At Wimbledon

By BILL MACKLIN

WIMBLEDON, July 3—(AP)—A giant Frenchman who learned to play tennis in his bare feet and a short Australian whose fare to England was paid by his countrymen's voluntary subscriptions won their way into the men's singles final of the All-England championships today.

Yvon Petra of France, who tops 6 feet, 6 inches without his white jockey cap, won the coveted shot at the title by eliminating the unseeded young San Franciscan, Tom Brown, in a dramatic two-hour duel, 4-6, 4-6, 6-3, 7-5, 8-6.

Geoff Brown Is Victor

The Australian, Geoff Brown, employed his unorthodox two-handed forehand to defeat Jaroslav Drobny of Czechoslovakia, 6-4, 7-5, 6-2, in a match which saw the bespectacled Drobny fail to show any of the brilliance that carried him to victory over Jack Kramer of America in the fourth round.

For the semi-finals, the 23-year-old Brown sought to help out his grand backhand and brilliant service by lending them a good-luck charm. He bought a new shirt with a cat's head over the left breast.

"No one who has worn a cat's head ever lost," the salesman told Brown. And for two sets against the Frenchman it appeared the charm would hold.

Brown won them by hitting the corners alternately with beautiful length and keeping Petra running a marathon along the baseline. Then Petra, a gallant fighter, staged a rally that swept him—against the expressed wishes of a partisan sell-out crowd in the center court—into the finals.

When the American squared the final set at 5-all and then took a 6-5 lead, it did not rattle Petra. He tightened up his game to square matters at 6-all and then swept two more games for the victory. He ran out the final after being down 15-40.

Pauline Betz Scores

Meanwhile, Pauline Betz of Los Angeles made the semi-finals of women's singles an All-American affair for the first time in history by defeating Joan Curry of Britain, 6-0, 6-3. Her opponent tomorrow will be Dorothy Bundy, with Louise Brough and Margaret Osborne clashing in the semi-final of the opposite bracket.

The powerful American women's contingent likewise swept victoriously on in the doubles, three teams advancing into the semi-finals without the loss of a set today.

Budget Patty of California and Pancho Segura of Ecuador completed the semi-final bracket in men's doubles by knocking off Holland's Davis Cup pair, Ivo Rinkel and Dr. Hans Van Swol, 6-2, 9-7, 5-7, 8-6.

Washington Lands Baseball Tourney

All-American Amateur Event Will Get Under Way August 19

BALTIMORE, July 3 (AP) — The All-American Amateur Baseball Association today designated Washington, D. C., as the scene of championship games in its second annual tournament for teen-age sandlot teams.

George S. Patton, Jr., Tank Corps Post No. 19 of the American Legion, will be host, and the games will be played on diamonds in Ellipse Park opposite the White House starting August 19.

Sixteen teams winning regional championships in Northeastern states will compete in the limited division tournament, which is restricted to nines whose members have not reached their 19th birthdays.

They are now engaged in regular league seasons, and regional champs will be determined in playoffs during the first half of August.

The Mohawk Rugmakers, of Amsterdam, N. Y., won last year's junior championship in playoffs at Johnstown, Pa. Star of their surge to the title was Roger Bowman, now a student at New York University, who struck out 71 opponents in 27 and one-third innings.

Glenn L. Martin, Baltimore plane manufacturer who is chairman of the AAABA's board, also announced that championships in the unlimited division for older teams would be played at Harrisburg, Pa., starting Sept. 3.

Harrisburg was host to last year's unlimited playoff, in which the Martin Bombers took the title.

CRACKS RECORD

Snead, Bulla And Kirkwood, American Pros, Post Scores Of 71

By VIC HACKLER

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, July 3 (AP)—Bobby Locke, justifying his build-up as the hottest man in current British golf, blasted par by four strokes with a record-setting 69 today in the first round of the British Open championship, but the rest of the field was right on his tail.

It was a great day for the form players. Only one stroke back of Locke were veteran Henry Cotton, trying for his third open crown and Norman Von Nida, the diminutive Australian who led the qualifiers.

Americans Near Leader

Another stroke back with 71's were Sam Snead, Johnny Bulla and Joe Kirkwood, three American pros. Thus all were well under par and grouped within two strokes were six of the eight men most highly regarded before the tournament started.

Outside of this small circle stood the fourth American pro, Lawson Little, who three-putted his way to a five-over-par 76, and Dai Rees, British favorite, who scored a 75.

Defending Champion Dick Burton scored well enough to wipe away a bit of the chagrin over his recent American tour, and was fairly well in the running with a 74.

Locke showed that local golf bookies were as canny as Scots are supposed to be when they quoted him as low as five to one for pre-tourney bets.

Locke's approaches left him little to worry about. On three greens—the fifth, ninth and 17th—he made putts of five feet or less for birdies. His fourth birdie came with a 15-foot putt on the 10th. Otherwise, his game was just par, par, par—nothing more.

Snead and Kirkwood played excellent, steady golf in the perfect morning weather, although neither looked as good as he really is. Kirkwood played with Locke, and by comparison was just scrambling. Snead paired with Bulla, and although Sam was outdriving his partner, Bulla was scorching the course for most of the round.

White Paces Amateurs

Little was going well over the first eight holes, with a birdie to put him one below par. His drive on the ninth nestled in heather, and he lost two strokes escaping and turned in a one over par. On the last nine he three-putted three holes and he also lost a stroke on the 13th when he had to play out from a post.

The low amateur, with a 76, was Ronnie White, 25-year-old RAF flight lieutenant.

Fourth To Bring Replacements On Radio Programs

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

NEW YORK, July 3—Fourth of July on the networks primarily brings some more summer changing. However, here and there has been scheduled a special feature, but nothing particularly outstanding.

In order of appearance the new shows, all summer replacements: CBS 7:30 Sound off with Mark Warnow, designed as co-operative with the army recruiting drive. The Lyn Murray chorus also is a feature. For FBI in Peace and War.

NBC 9 Vaughn Monroe and his mand. He'll sing too. For Abbott and Costello.

MBS 9 California Melodies revived as a summer fill-in.

ABC 9 Harry Kogen's orchestra. Another summer fill-in.

NBC 9:30 The Fifth Horseman, dramatic series dealing with the atom bomb and its varied ramifications. Henry Fonda guest in the opener, titled "Rehearsal." In the former Rudy Vallee spot.

In Memoriam

COFFMAN—In loving memory of my dear sister-in-law, Betty Elizabeth Coffman, who passed away July 4, 1942.

Loving and kind in all her ways,
Upright and just to the end of her days,
Sincere and true in her heart and mind,
Beautiful memories she left behind.

CLARA WISMAN.
7-3-1t-TN

In loving memory of our beloved son and brother, Edward Muletz, who departed this life two years ago, July 4, 1944.

Do not ask us if we miss him,
There is such a vacant place,
Oft we think we hear his footsteps
And see his smiling face.

Days of sadness still come over us,
Tears in silence often flow,
Memory keeps him ever near us,
Though he left us two years ago.

MOTHER, MRS. FRANCES MULETZ,
AND SISTERS, MARY, CHRISTINE, FRANCES, AND BROTHER, CHARLES.
7-4-1t-N

Card of Thanks

We wish to thank our neighbors and friends and the Game Warden, for their kindness to us during the illness and following the death of my husband, Percy Sowers. We also wish to thank those who sent flowers, loaned cars for the funeral, the Rev. Ray L. Henthrone and Mr. Kight, and all others who in any way assisted us.
MRS. PERCY SOWERS,
AND CHILDREN.

In Memoriam

COFFMAN—In loving memory of my dear sister-in-law, Betty Elizabeth Coffman, who passed away July 4, 1942.

Loving and kind in all her ways,
Upright and just to the end of her days,
Sincere and true in her heart and mind,
Beautiful memories she left behind.

CLARA WISMAN.
7-3-1t-TN

In loving memory of our beloved son and brother, Edward Muletz, who departed this life two years ago, July 4, 1944.

Do not ask us if we miss him,
There is such a vacant place,
Oft we think we hear his footsteps
And see his smiling face.

Days of sadness still come over us,
Tears in silence often flow,
Memory keeps him ever near us,
Though he left us two years ago.

AND SISTERS, MARY, CHRISTINE,
FRANCES, AND BROTHER, CHARLES.

Card of Thanks

We wish to thank our neighbors and friends and the Game Warden, for their kindness to us during the illness and following the death of my husband, Percy Bowers. We also wish to thank those who sent flowers, loaned cars for the funeral, the Rev. Ray L. Henthrone and Mr. Kight, and all others who in any way assisted us.
MRS. PERCY SOWERS,
AND CHILDREN.

Beer Distributor Sued For $10,000 By Fairgo Worker

Action By Stevens Employe Is One Of Seven Filed In Court

Suit for $10,000 damages was filed in circuit court yesterday against Frank Doolan, operator of a beer distributing business, by Paul D. Russ, an employe of Harry M. Stevens, Incorporated, caterer at the Cumberland Fair, who was injured in a mishap at Fairgo August 13, 1945, and by The Employers' Liability Assurance Corporation, Limited, the Stevens firm's insurer.

The suit was one of seven filed yesterday, the last day for such litigation to be placed on the docket of the July term of court inasmuch as the docket will be called on Friday morning and today as a holiday.

Beer Bottles Exploded

The attorneys charged that Russ was permanently injured and that the injury will be a handicap to him in earning a living. They also pointed out that he lost work and incurred medical expenses as well as suffering mental and physical pain.

As insurer of the Stevens firm, the insurance corporation was liable under the Workman's Compensation act to pay any award made by the state industrial accident commission to Russ, the attorneys pointed out, adding that after his claim was filed the commission granted him payment of $17.33 weekly for 80 weeks.

Another case docketed yesterday was that of Charles B. Cooper against the Cement Products Company, Incorporated, for his use and the use of the American Employers' Insurance Company.

This action was filed by titling, and the amount of damages to be asked was not disclosed by Cooper's attorneys, Gunter and Geppert.

Hurt In Explosion

As a result of an accident on Route 40 some months ago, two suits were docketed yesterday against John Russell Wineland, Jr., and John Russell Wineland, Sr. These two suits also were filed by titling and the damages to be asked were not disclosed by Gunter and Geppert, attorneys for the plaintiff's

One of the suits against the Winelands was filed by Robert Liebknecht and Mildred Lee Liebknecht and the second suit was filed by Virginia Greathouse. The latter action was filed by Robert Liebknecht, her step-father and next friend, since Miss Greathouse is a minor.

Injured In Accident

Two suits were filed against John R. Adams and his sister, Mary L. Adams, as the result of an accident on the McMullen highway between the Celanese plant and Cumberland in December 1945 in which Mrs. Nettie T. Chaney was injured.

One of the suits was filed by Mrs. Chaney against the Adamses and the other was filed by her husband, Alonzo I. Chaney, for loss of his wife's services.

Both suits were filed by titling and attorneys for the Chaney's, Thomas Lohr Richards and H. G. Shores, declined to disclose the amount of damages to be asked although they were indicated to be "substantial."

Damages of $1,000 are asked by Alexander Ingrassia from Orion Wilson, Jr., as a result of an accident on the Washington boulevard in Montgomery county on Jauary 16, 1945.

Ingrassia, asking the damages for his own use and the use of the Commonwealth Mutual Insurance Company of America, his insurer, said his automobile was damaged to the extent of $457.05 when it was struck by the car driven by Wilson. He charged Wilson with negligence. William M. Somerville is Ingrassia's attorney.

Cumberland Woman Receives Divorce And Child's Custody

An absolute divorce and custody of their minor child was granted yesterday to Mrs. Hilda C. Lewis, 446 Goethe street, from Daniel R. Lewis, in a decree signed by Chief Judge William A. Huster in circuit court. Lewis was ordered to pay $30 monthly for support of the child and to pay the costs of the proceedings. Edwin M. Horchler was attorney for Mrs. Lewis, who charged desertion.

Mrs. Ruth G. Stein, 6 Harrison street, was granted an absolute divorce from James H. Stein in another decree signed by Judge Huster. Mrs. Stein, who charged desertion, was given the custody of their daughter. Stein was ordered to pay $30 a month for support of the child. Morris Baron was Mrs. Stein's attorney.

Mrs. Mary Lou Egan, represented by Edward J. Ryan, filed suit for an absolute divorce from William P. Egan, a soldier now stationed in New Hampshire. She charged desertion and said they were married in July, 1944, and separated in September of that year.

Mrs. Nan Wilson filed suit for an absolute divorce from John Wilson, Lonaconing, on grounds of desertion. She also asked for the custody of their minor child. Judge Huster ordered Wilson to pay Mrs. Wilson's counsel fee and to pay her $12.50 weekly alimony during the litigation. Ryan is her attorney.

Veterans Contact Office Now Open All Day Saturday

The contact office of the Veterans Admnistration, Room 10, Union Street building, has been placed upon a 48-hour week, according to William A. Burns, officer in charge. This means, Burns explained yesterday, that the contact office will be open eight hours on Saturday, to give veterans unable to report any other time, a chance to visit the office for assistance.

The task of the contact office is to give veterans information regarding disability pension, insurance, educational benefits, out-patient medical treatment, hospitalization, loans, and all other benefits to which they are entitled.

In Baltimore, W. L. Limburg, regional manager of the Veterans Administration, has announced that a 40-hour week will be inaugurated in all Veterans Administration offices in the state, except the contact offices. The VA is the last government agency to adopt the 40-hour week.

Burns said the 40-hour week as announced by Limburg, is an economy move in line with the current policy adopted by the Administration, which is possible through a leveling off of the heavy work load which resulted from rapid demobilization of the armed forces.

Kiwanis Sunshine Campers To Take Physical Tests

Sixty boys and girls between the ages of 9 and 12, selected through the co-operation of Associated Charities to attend the Kiwanis Sunshine Camp for the coming season, will take physical examinations tomorrow at city hall, beginning at 9:15 a. m., O. J. Hale, president of the club announced yesterday.

The examinations will be conducted by Dr. Winter R. Frantz, assistant city and county health officer, and Dr. C. L. Owens, who will be assisted by three public health nurses. Both physicians are members of the Cumberland Kiwanis Club.

Thirty boys will leave city hall Monday morning, in cars provided by club members, for the camp, located on MacDonald terrace, to begin their three-week camping period, which will end Saturday, July 27.

Boston Sherwood, who is beginning his second year as camp director, said that emphasis will be placed on handicrafts rather than on track and field meets this season, although various meets and tournaments are planned. Swimming instruction will be given, and boxing matches will be held, with a camp championship boxing match scheduled for the last night of the boys' camping period.

Thirty girls will start their campaign season July 29 and will remain at the camp until August 17 Their counselors will be Georgia Ann Huster and Dorothy Haines.

The camp cooks will be Estella Oss and Virginia Sisler, while Avis Thompson will be camp laundress, Sherwood said.

Herbert Platt, chairman of the Kiwanis board of governors, said that nearly $1,000 will be donated by individual club members to the camp fund, in addition to the amount set aside in the treasury for running the camp during this year's season. That amount totals between $500 and $600.

Improvements to the camp include painting the swimming pool, painting and screening porches, and securing new equipment for the playground, including swings, Platt said.

Fourth Of July To Be Observed Quietly Here

Public Offices, Wholesale And Retail Stores Will Be Closed

Today, the 170th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, will be observed generally throughout the city and county as a legal holiday.

City, county, state and federal offices here will be closed all day, and some offices will remain closed the remainder of the week.

F. E. Wright, post office inspector in charge of the Cumberland post office, said yesterday there will be no mail deliveries and all windows of the main post office as well as Station A will be closed. No postal service will be offered, except that mail will be dispatched to lock boxes as usual, and outgoing mail will be dispatched to mail trains.

Draft Boards Closing

Alvin E. Yaste, of Draft Board No. 2, said he has been advised by Selective Service that his office, and that of other draft boards may remain closed today, tomorrow and Saturday, but employes are asked to work July 13, to make up for Friday. The offices are normally on a five-day week basis.

Office of Price Administration employees, now on a volunteer basis said they would not report to their posts the rest of the week, and expressed the hope that they will be back in their jobs officially next week.

Trial magistrates court will be closed all day today, but will be open tomorrow, as will all circuit court offices and other offices in the court house. City hall employes will get a holiday today but will report for duty Friday.

Banks and other institutions will observe today as a holiday, as will practically all retail and wholesale establishments. Business as usual, is the order of the day for tomorrow.

The Cumberland News will not appear tomorrow morning, as employes take a holiday today. The Evening Times will not appear this evening, as Times employes are also observing the holiday. There will be an issue of the Times Friday as usual.

No Celebration Planned

The Fourth of July looms locally as just another holiday, with no celebration of a public nature planned. However, many residents are planning long weekend holidays, and traffic last night, out-bound from the city, indicated that many are going to resorts and other places, at least for the day.

Police anticipate heavy traffic tonight, and again Sunday night, and urge all motorists to drive cautiously, and try to reduce the usually heavy toll of holiday accidents.

At Constitution Park here, where July 4 is usually a record day, preparations have been made to accommodate hundreds of persons seeking relaxation out-of-doors.

Jury Of Inquisition Finds Westernport Man Is Inebriate

In the first case of its kind to be tried in court here in many years, a jury of inquisition yesterday afternoon in circuit court ruled that Lester McIntyre, 39, Westernport, is an habitual drunkard. Immediately after the hearing, Chief Judge William A. Huster signed an order committing McIntyre to the Eastern Shore State hospital at Cambridge for treatment.

Differing somewhat from usual court cases where judges preside, the trial yesterday to determine whether or not McIntyre was an inebriate was conducted with Sheriff David M. Steele as the presiding officer.

McIntyre, a veteran of over three years in the armed forces, spent two months at the Eastern Shore hospital after being committed by Judge Huster with his consent, but was released after two months at the request of his relatives. He declared yesterday that he did not want to return to the hospital.

The petition asking McIntyre's commitment was obtained by his brother, J. Milton McIntyre.

Rep. Beall Says Loan To Britain Would Cost County $2,435,244

The British loan would cost Allegany county $2,435,244 and the city of Cumberland $1,105,524, Rep. J. Glenn Beall said yesterday in pointing out that serious thought is imperative before the United States adds further to its multi-billion-dollar national debt for the benefit of any foreign country.

The $3,750,000,000 required, he said, would, in $1 bills placed end to end, encircle the earth 16 times. One member of Congress with whom he discussed the loan said it would furnish enough $1 bills to cover 280 acres. Another member said it would make a stack of $1,000 bills as high as the Empire state building and another said it would purchase 750,000 $5,000 homes or place a decent hospital in every county in the United States.

$2,000 For Every Resident

At the present time the national debt is about $272,000,000,000 or $2,000 for every man, woman and child in the United States. Maryland's share is about $3,642,488,000, he said, pointing out that the British loan comes at a time when the states and counties were about to get out of debt.

Rep. Beall added, however, that the "New Deal will never let us get even. They propose to invest about $17,000,000,000 in foreign loans and international financing. They want to continually keep our nose to the grindstone to aid foreign countries."

The British loan, Rep. Beall reported, will cost the following cities these amounts: New York, $207,637,312; Chicago, $94,644,144; Philadelphia, $54,188,568; Baltimore, $23,940,924.

Allegany Is Highest

Reporting on the cost of the loan to the counties of the Sixth district, Rep. Beall presented the following figures: Allegany county, population 86,973, $2,435,244; Garrett, population 21,981, $615,468; Washington, population 68,838, $1,927,464; Frederick, population 57,312, $1,604,736; Montgomery, population 83,812, $2,366,736.

The cost to Cumberland would amount to $1,105,524; Frostburg $214,452 and Westernport $99,820, Rep. Beall said.

Returned GI Predicts "Fiesta Time" As Filipinos Mark Independence

By F. ALAN WEATHERHOLT

While all the 48 states pause today to observe the signing of the Declaration of Independence, with little or no fanfare, many veterans who saw service a year ago in the Philippines will wonder about the beginning of independence in the islands.

Today marks the legal beginning of the Commonwealth of the Philippines as an independent nation, and will doubtless be one of great celebration and, as the Filipinos say, "fiesta time."

A year ago, after three years of domination by the Japanese, the average Filipino held little hope and had little thought of today as his Independence day.

In Northern Luzon, where troops of the Sixth army made their initial beachhead on three beaches in moon-shaped Lingayen gulf January 9, 1945, most Filipinos consider that was their day of independence. That was the day we fought our way ashore and had our first contact with these little "American brothers."

Filipinos Welcomed GIs

They swarmed down to the beach where we landed from LST No. 744, and where several hundred other landing craft of various kinds were putting other GIs and equipment ashore. Of course they didn't come down right away. They had followed instructions dropped from our planes and were hiding in the hills.

But after the Japs had withdrawn from the beach, (those that could get away), the Filipinos came in pairs, in groups, and in bunches of 40 and 50. They were exuberant. They were shouting. They were laughing. They were crying. They jumped and waved and tried to shake hands with any GI who stopped long enough. They tried to help. They did help. Sometimes they got in the way, or had to be chased into zones of safety. But the GI took it in his stride, grinned, and went on about his business of extermination.

When we got to know these people, we realized they were not a bunch of jumping-jacks, or yelling, screaming monkeys, as they might have appeared. They were kindly, gracious, courteous, patriotic and sincere.

As we traveled inland, and went through such places as Damortis, where we saw our first real evidence of Jap atrocities against civilians, (and they weren't pretty), on to San Fabian, which our guns had leveled, and fought our way into the picturesque town of Manaog, roadways were lined with half-starved, half-naked little people. They waved two fingers in the air yelling, "Hello Joe", "Victory," "Roosevelt," "Welcome," "Independence."

And today they are independent. They have grown up through fire and battle and slavery and intolerance and invasion, and all things un-America. They have survived, but at very great cost. The cost is greater than you can imagine, unless you saw it, and learned to understand it.

In all of the 7,000 islands which make up the Philippine group only about 1,000 are inhabited. Of this vast number 11, the largest of which is Luzon, comprise the important part of the Philippines. But as we reflect this day, we'd wager many pesos that there is celebration everywhere.

Victory Parade Described

They are that kind of people. They love "fiesta," and will promote a party, or parade, or celebration on the slightest provocation. The first "victory" parade we saw was in Manaog, on January 15, 1945. It's hard to say where they got them, but they were bedecked in all the colored costumes they could piece together. Some of them were clad in raiment as colorful as Joseph's cloak, but very ragged. Everyone was barefooted.

There was a band, a five-piece band, with battered but shined and polished instruments which made music as the musicians blew and played for all they were worth. About 600 school children made up the last division. They carried banners and placards of welcome and greeting and every type of slogan and phrase. Some made your heart go right out to them.

One little fellow struggled under a banner which scrawled, "Give Me Liberty or Give Me Death". Another held the words, "I am an American," high above his head. And there were many more.

It seemed to us it was a nice tribute. But it was a solemn tribute too. One of the guerrillas in our outfit explained, "My people are very proud and very brave, but sometimes they are very serious".

We learned to know them and to admire them. We attended many of their "fiestas" and celebrations. We talked with men of high and low estate. We learned some things about freedom and independence and liberty and justice we hadn't thought much about before.

Sacrifice Realized

We discovered many had preferred "liberty or death," and paid with horrible death. We saw what it meant, really meant, to proclaim, "I am an American". We saw the sick and maimed and the dead. We saw these things. And as we moved across the island on our own grim business, we began to realize more and more just a little of the sacrifice that had been made 170 years ago, to create our America, which a little people, 7,000 miles from here, proudly proclaimed.

It must be a happy day in the Philippine islands today. Every market square, every barrio, every city, town and village is jubilant. The little gaily colored pony carts are spotless and shiny. The ponies prance gaily under sprays of flowers stuck in their harness. Every one is wearing his party clothes. People sing and smile and there are no strangers. There is dancing in the streets today.

Here and there a GI mingles with the crowd. He stands out because he is taller, and sturdier. He is plied with gifts and smiles and greetings. And his little brown brother salutes him proudly and calls him Joe. "Today, I am an American and a Filipino. Today my country is a nation," he explains.

Then he pauses and adds, a little wistfully, "Do you think we can ever become a state?"

Husband Shoots Wife In Abdomen On Local Street

Mrs. Helen Branson, 40, Baltimore, was admitted to Memorial hospital last evening at 9:10 o'clock suffering from a gunshot wound of the abdomen police said was inflicted by her husband, Samuel Branson, 40, also of Baltimore, formerly of this section.

Assistant Chief of Police John J. Treiber said the shooting occurred in front of 227 Springdale street about 9 o'clock following an argument.

Police said Branson pulled the .38 caliber Smith and Wesson revolver and shot his wife. The bullet, they added, entered in the center of the abdomen and emerged on the right side of the spine.

Police said they were told by the attending physician that the woman had a fair chance for recovery.

Police said a broadcast from headquarters at 9:03 p. m. was received by Officer J. Carl Stouffer who sped to Springdale street and found the injured woman lying on the sidewalk.

While Officers John W. Snyder and Arthur Kennell took the woman to the hospital, Officers Stouffer, Guy Williams, R. M. Nuse and Detective Thomas J. See began the search for Branson.

Treiber said the officers captured the man in the 200 block of Virginia avenue just as he was about to get into a taxicab. Officer Nuse later recovered the revolver, police said.

Authorities said Branson admitted firing the shot and added that they have a witness to the shooting.

Checkups Of League Cases Are Made

Checkups were made Monday, Tuesday and yesterday on approximately 80 cases handled by the Allegany County League for Crippled Children at health centers in Westernport, Lonaconing and Frostburg, according to Mrs. Hume O. Annan, executive secretary of the league.

Mrs. Annan, accompanied by Miss Elma Georg, physical therapist for the league, examined children and interviewed their parents to discover whether necessary shoes and braces had been obtained, and whether physical therapy needs were being filled.

A similar checkup for approximately 30 children of the Cresaptown area is scheduled for Thursday, July 11, at league headquarters, City Hall plaza.

Idle Coal Hoppers Are Worn Out, Wyatt Reports

B. And O. Official Says Cars Are To Be Sold For Scrap

More than 100 coal cars are standing idle on railroad sidings in this county, but H. F. Wyatt, superintendent of the Cumberland division of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, said last night they would be of no help in relieving the coal hopper shortage since they are beyond repair and are awaiting condemnation before being cut up and sold for scrap.

Pictures of empty coal hoppers were published yesterday in The Evening Times which pointed out that many coal mines along the B. and O. are closed and many men are out of work because of the shortage of cars.

Wyatt said, however, that the cars shown in the photographs have been out of service for five to six years and that it would cost more to repair them than to buy new ones.

Stored At Keyser

Some of the cars, he said, are stored on unused tracks of the Cumberland and Pennsylvania railroad to prevent them from blocking "live" yards of the B. and O.

Many of the cars for some time were stored in the Keyser yards, but later were moved to their present locations after arrangements were made with the C. and P.

None of the cars can be repaired, Wyatt asserted, although the trucks on some of them can be salvaged. Other trucks are outdated and are not worth salvaging, he added.

The Keyser shop force has been increased and all cars in disrepair that can be repaired are being taken care of currently, Wyatt said.

Predicts Relief

He pointed out that even if the worn out cars could be repaired they would amount to but a "drop in the bucket" to the number of cars needed.

Some 25,000 coal cars are reported to be tied up at ports on the Great Lakes and about half that number on the Eastern seaboard.

Wyatt predicted that the hopper shortage will be relieved materially over the weekend with cars being unloaded and the miners taking a holiday.

Frostburg Woman Is Killed In Fall

FROSTBURG, July 3—Mrs. Leoma Snyder Whitehead, 21, Frostburg, died yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock as a result of a fractured skull suffered when she was thrown from a hay rake at her father's farm one mile northeast of here.

The accident occurred at 4:20 p. m. when the horses ran away as the well known woman was raking hay. She was brought to Miners hospital at 4:45 p. m. but died before admission.

Mrs. Whitehead died on the third anniversary of her marriage to Harold Whitehead, a Celanese worker. Mr. and Mrs. Whitehead started last Monday to build a home near her father's farm.

She was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Snyder, Frostburg, and graduated from Beall high school in 1943. While her husband was serving in the army she was employed as a saleswoman for the Hill confectionary store here.

Besides her husband and her parents, she is survived by one sister, Mrs. Bertha Klink, Spring street, Frostburg.

Westernport Man Accused Of Attacking Trial Magistrate

Bernard Kenney, Westernport, was held in the Westernport jail last night after he allegedly attacked Magistrate A. W. Detterman in an alleyway earlier in the evening.

State police said they were informed the magistrate fined Kenney $6 on a minor charge several nights ago, and that Kenney was incensed and attacked the magistrate for that reason.

Authorities said they were informed Kenney approached the magistrate on the street, asked to talk with him in the alley and then attacked him.

Magistrate Detterman was treated in Reeve's clinic and then went to his home.

Good Meat Supply Predicted Here For Weekend

Cumberland will have an ample supply of home-dressed meat at the usual prices over the weekend, George F. Garlitz, president of the Independent Retail Food Dealers' Association of Western Maryland, predicted yesterday.

Discussing the general situation in regard to food here since the demise of the OPA, Garlitz also predicted that the flow of meat products from the big packing houses will begin around the middle of next week, although he expects a slight price increase in about 10 days.

He pointed out that the price of big oranges increased about 10 per cent Tuesday but reminded that small oranges decreased in price by about 40 per cent. He said he believes price fluctuations such as these are examples of the market getting back to normal.

Predicting that prices will remain reasonably constant, Garlitz said, "You've got to remember that we've all had all the OPA we want and we well know that if we run wild we'll get another set of regulations."

Butter — Should be an ample amount in 30 days.

Shortening—"This will be a long haul" due to the fact that the pig population in America is at an all-time low. It will probably be at least a year before shortening is available in any quantities.

Soaps—Will also be hard to get for at least a year due to the shortage of basic fats.

Salad Dressings — Will continue scarce due to the shortage of oils which are largely imported. The whole world is clamoring for oils which are supplied mainly by South America.

Cheese—Coming back, with the Cumberland supply mainly from Pennsylvania and the midwest. Cheese market steady at 45 cents a pound although there may be an increase due to the fact that there was a big subsidy on cheese.

Two Celanese Workers Are Injured in Crash

Two Celanese workers were treated in Memorial hospital last evening at 7:45 o'clock for slight injuries suffered, they told attaches, when the car in which they were riding, crashed against a tree on Oldtown road.

Emory Lease, 27, 41 Browning street, who told attaches he was driving the car, was treated for an abrasion on the knee and a bump on the head while Robert Kasecamp, 29, 315 Fifth street, riding with him, suffered abrasions on the head, right arm and body. Both were able to return to their homes after dispensary treatment.

Car Damages Hedge

Slight damage to a hedge and shrubbery on the property of Maurice A. Mullan 435 Laing avenue, resulted when a car driven by Larry Virlante, 635 West street, Carlisle, Pa., ran upon the property Tuesday about 8:45 p. m. Officer Louis D. Downey, who investigated for city police, said that the left front wheel of the car was damaged but reported nobody was injured.

Buyers' Strike Is Threatened By Labor Group

White Receives Over 150 Reports Of Rent Increases Here

Retail merchants, as well as wholesale houses and manufacturers here, appeared to be making a conscientious effort thus far, to hold the price of most commodities at OPA levels, but repeated increases in rents locally were reported yesterday.

At the same time, organized labor spokesmen indicated the forces of labor are being rallied for a "buyers' strike," in the event the over-all cost of living starts to spiral upward.

Caleb J. White, rent inspector for Allegany county, under the OPA set-up, said yesterday his office has over 150 reports of rent increases here since OPA control expired.

The worst case was reported yesterday from several quarters, involving a landlord from a nearby Pennsylvania town who owns about 30 low-rent dwelling units here and at Cresaptown. He normally collects from $20 to $35 per month rental for each unit. Yesterday a number of tenants reported he had informed them their rents would be raised to $30 to $50 or about a 50% increase.

This particular individual has done about everything in recent months to obtain permission under OPA to raise his rents, and now that restrictions have been lifted, he is really raising them, White declared.

Woman's Rent Doubled

Another case involves a woman who pays $17 per month for a very small apartment. Yesterday, she declared her rent has been raised to $35 per month. The woman has only a nominal income and declares she can't pay that much rent.

Case after case has come to attention of the Rent Control office, where the personnel continue on their jobs voluntarily to answer questions.

White was highly complimentary in his comments yesterday regarding members of the Cumberland Real Estate Board. He declared not a single complaint has been filed by any tenant of any member of the Board. Complaints are registered mostly against individual property owners, or others who rent property on a large scale such as the Pennsylvania man.

A few food prices advanced a cent or two a pound or can in some stores yesterday, but these were mostly isolated cases of mark-ups. George F. Garlitz, president of the Independent Food Dealers Association predicted yesterday that there will be an increase in the supply of meat and other food commodities, although the price will be higher.

"You've got to remember that we've had all of the OPA that we want and we well know that if we run wild we'll get a new set of regulations," Garlitz declared, as he predicted that prices would not advance too sharply.

Numerous local merchants have publicized their intention of holding the price level as long as possible, several have posted signs or published advertisements.

Labor Meeting Called

The threat of the "buyers strike" comes from the Western Maryland Labor Unity Conference, a group composed of CIO, AFL, and un-affiliated labor organizations. C. E. Stutzman, president declared he plans to call a special meeting to discus the possibility of asking the mayor and city council to adopt a rent control ordinance.

Commenting on the Baltimore labor proposal for a "buyers' strike" throughout the state, Stutzman said labor here will back the idea 100%.

In the meantime Max W. Bastian, chairman of the Mercantile Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce, called a meeting of the bureau and of all merchants for 9:30 a. m. Friday when a program of controlling prices will be discussed.

The meeting of local merchants is being called at the request of some local store owners as well as at the suggestion of Rep. J. Glenn Beall and William K. Jackson, president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce.

Jackson in a letter to Harold W. Smith, secretary of the local chamber, said the lifting of controls "imposes upon business a heavy responsibility. It puts private enterprise to a severe test."

Keep Prices Down

Rep. Beall, in his letter to Smith, urges that merchants "keep retail prices at the lowest possible level," and expressed the view there is "som doubt that any price control act will be written which will meet with the approval of the President."

The congressman writes further:

"I believe it would be helpful and would be appreciated by the general public if through your organization and immediate effort was made by the business men in an agreement to hold prices down regardless of former controls. I am sure such a move on the part of the business men would be most welcome to the public and would bring about a greater confidence and good will for the future. I make this suggestion in the hope that we will be able to return to the American competitive system of doing business."

Textile Workers Plan Picnic Today

Senator Robert B. Kimble will speak at the annual Fourth of July picnic of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, CIO, to be held today at the community pool and park in Frostburg, William Boyd Coleman, president, announced yesterday.

Chartered bus service will be given free to union members and buses will leave Textile hall at 10 a. m. to pick up passengers here and in LaVale and Eckhart. Another bus will leave the McCoole-Keyser bridge at 9:30 a. m. and stop at all regular bus stops.

Members are requested to bring basket lunches but drinks and sandwiches will be provided for all. The day's program, which includes swimming and games, will be concluded with a dance from 10 p. m. to 2 a. m. in the Firemen's hall.

Telephone Operators Here Handle 65,550, Local And Toll Calls Daily

positions and 13 long distance positions. This is simply not enough equipment to efficiently handle the number of calls being made."

The company has sufficient operators, all of whom are doing a splendid job, Smith said, pointing out that slow answers from operators is no fault of theirs but the fault of insufficient equipment.

"We want to be able to give telephone service to all who desire it and we want to give it without delay," he said, "but we cannot do this until we are able to expand our office facilities."

Expects New Equipment

Toll equipment is scheduled to be installed in November and additional local positions in December.

The number of calls going through the local switchboards reaches a peak between 9 a. m. and noon, Smith pointed out, recommending that calls be made before or after this period to relieve the situation.

Some 65,550 local and long distance telephone calls are being handled daily by operators and equipment at the local offices of the Cumberland and Chesapeake Telephone Company of Baltimore City, Howard M. Smith, manager, said yesterday.

This unprecedented number of calls, representing an increase of more than 17,000 over last year, is the result of the addition of 1,400 new telephones over last year and the fact that today telephones are being used more than ever before. Smith recalled that as of June 1, the Cumberland central office was serving 11,887 telephones.

No Additional Equipment

Commenting on the fact that subscribers are sometimes troubled by slow answers from the operators when they make a call, Smith emphasized that the greatly increased volume of business is being handled with no additional equipment.

"At the present time," he said, "approximately 64,000 local calls and 1,550 toll calls are being taken care of through 24 local switchboard

Beer Distributor Sued For $10,000 By Fairgo Worker

Action By Stevens Employe Is One Of Seven Filed In Court

Suit for $10,000 damages was filed in circuit court yesterday against Frank Doolan, operator of a beer distributing business, by Paul D. Russ, an employe of Harry M. Stevens, Incorporated, enterer at the Cumberland Fair, who was injured in a mishap at Fairgo August 13, 1945, and by The Employers' Liability Assurance Corporation, Limited, the Stevens firm's insurer.

The suit was one of seven filed yesterday, the last day for such litigation to be placed on the docket of the July term of court inasmuch as the docket will be called on Friday morning and today as a holiday.

Beer Bottles Exploded

Doolan's employe dropped one of the cases, causing several bottles of beer to explode, according to the attorneys, and as a result a large piece of glass hit Russ in the left eye.

The attorneys charged that Russ was permanently injured and that the injury will be a handicap to him in earning a living. They also pointed out that he lost work and incurred medical expenses as well as suffering mental and physical pain.

As insurer of the Stevens firm, the insurance corporation was liable under the Workman's Compensation act to pay any award made by the state industrial accident commission to Russ, the attorneys pointed out, adding that after his claim was filed the commission granted him payment of $17.33 weekly for 80 weeks.

Another case docketed yesterday was that of Charles B. Cooper against the Cement Products Company, Incorporated, for his use and the use of the American Employers' Insurance Company.

This action was filed by titling, and the amount of damages to be asked was not disclosed by Cooper's attorneys, Gunter and Geppert.

Hurt In Explosion

Cooper was severely injured and is still hospitalized as the result of an explosion at the Cement Products company's plant several months ago.

As a result of an accident on Route 40 some months ago, two suits were docketed yesterday against John Russell Wineland, Jr., and John Russell Wineland, Sr. These two suits also were filed by titling and the damages to be asked were not disclosed by Gunter and Geppert, attorneys for the plaintiff's.

One of the suits against the Winelands was filed by Robert Liebknecht and Mildred Lee Liebknecht and the second suit was filed by Virginia Greathouse. The latter action was filed by Robert Liebknecht, her step-father and next friend, since Miss Greathouse is a minor.

Injured In Accident

Two suits were filed against John R. Adams and his sister, Mary L. Adams, as the result of an accident on the McMullen highway between the Celanese plant and Cumberland in December 1945 in which Mrs. Nettie T. Chaney was injured.

One of the suits was filed by Mrs. Chaney against the Adamses and the other was filed by her husband, Alonzo I. Chaney, for loss of his wife's services.

Both suits were filed by titling and attorneys for the Chaney's, Thomas Lohr Richards and H. G. Shores, declined to disclose the amount of damages to be asked although they were indicated to be "substantial."

Attorneys said Mrs. Chaney was seriously injured when she was struck by the car operated by Miss Adams and owned by her brother John.

Damages of $1,000 are asked by Alexander Ingrassia from Orion Wilson, Jr., as a result of an accident on the Washington boulevard in Montgomery county on January 16, 1945.

Ingrassia, asking the damages for his own use and the use of the Commonwealth Mutual Insurance Company of America, his insurer, said his automobile was damaged to the extent of $457.05 when it was struck by the car driven by Wilson. He charged Wilson with negligence. William M. Somerville is Ingrassia's attorney.

Cumberland Woman Receives Divorce And Child's Custody

An absolute divorce and custody of their minor child was granted yesterday to Mrs. Hilda C. Lewis, 446 Goethe street, from Daniel R. Lewis, in a decree signed by Chief Judge William A. Huster in circuit court. Lewis was ordered to pay $30 monthly for support of the child and to pay the costs of the proceedings. Edwin M. Horchler was attorney for Mrs. Lewis, who charged desertion.

Mrs. Ruth G. Stein, 6 Harrison street, was granted an absolute divorce from James H. Stein in another decree signed by Judge Huster. Mrs. Stein, who charged desertion, was given the custody of their daughter. Stein was ordered to pay $30 a month for support of the child. Morris Baron was Mrs. Stein's attorney.

Mrs. Mary Lou Egan, represented by Edward J. Ryan, filed suit for an absolute divorce from William P. Egan, a soldier now stationed in New Hampshire. She charged desertion and said they were married in July, 1944, and separated in September of that year.

Mrs. Nan Wilson filed suit for an absolute divorce from John Wilson, Lonaconing, on grounds of desertion. She also asked for the custody of their minor child. Judge Huster ordered Wilson to pay Mrs. Wilson's counsel fee and to pay her $12.50 weekly alimony during the litigation. Ryan is her attorney.

Veterans Contact Office Now Open All Day Saturday

The contact office of the Veterans Administration, Room 10, Union Street building, has been placed upon a 48-hour week, according to William A. Burns, officer in charge. This means, Burns explained yesterday, that the contact office will be open eight hours on Saturday, to give veterans unable to report any other time, a chance to visit the office for assistance.

The task of the contact office is to give veterans information regarding disability pension, insurance, educational benefits, out-patient medical treatment, hospitalization, loans, and all other benefits to which they are entitled.

In Baltimore, W. L. Limburg, regional manager of the Veterans Administration, has announced that a 40-hour week will be inaugurated in all Veterans Administration offices in the state, except the contact offices. The VA is the last government agency to adopt the 40-hour week.

Burns said the 40-hour week as announced by Limburg, is an economy move in line with the current policy adopted by the Administration, which is possible through a leveling off of the heavy work load which resulted from rapid demobilization of the armed forces.

Kiwanis Sunshine Campers To Take Physical Tests

Sixty boys and girls between the ages of 9 and 12, selected through the co-operation of Associated Charities to attend the Kiwanis Sunshine Camp for the coming season, will take physical examinations tomorrow at city hall, beginning at 9:15 a. m., O. J. Hale, president of the club announced yesterday.

The examinations will be conducted by Dr. Winter R. Frantz, assistant city and county health officer, and Dr. C. L. Owens, who will be assisted by three public health nurses. Both physicians are members of the Cumberland Kiwanis Club.

Thirty boys will leave city hall Monday morning, in cars provided by club members, for the camp, located on MacDonald terrace, to begin their three-week camping period, which will end Saturday, July 27.

Boston Sherwood, who is beginning his second year as camp director, said that emphasis will be placed on handicrafts rather than on track and field meets this season, although various meets and tournaments are planned. Swimming instruction will be given, and boxing matches will be held, with a camp championship boxing match scheduled for the last night of the boys' camping period.

Counselors for the boys' camp will be Calvin Mahaney and Jack Pierce.

Thirty girls will start their campaign season July 29 and will remain at the camp until August 17. Their counselors will be Georgia Ann Huster and Dorothy Haines.

The camp cooks will be Estella Oss and Virginia Sisler, while Avis Thompson will be camp laundress, Sherwood said.

Herbert Platt, chairman of the Kiwanis board of governors, said that nearly $1,000 will be donated by individual club members to the camp fund, in addition to the amount set aside in the treasury for running the camp during this year's season. That amount totals between $500 and $600.

Improvements to the camp include painting the swimming pool, painting and screening porches, and securing new equipment for the playground, including swings, Platt said.

Fourth Of July To Be Observed Quietly Here

Public Offices, Wholesale And Retail Stores Will Be Closed

Today, the 170th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, will be observed generally throughout the city and county as a legal holiday.

City, county, state and federal offices here will be closed all day, and some offices will remain closed the remainder of the week.

F. E. Wright, post office inspector in charge of the Cumberland post office, said yesterday there will be no mail deliveries and all windows of the main post office as well as Station A will be closed. No postal service will be offered, except that mail will be dispatched to lock boxes as usual, and outgoing mail will be dispatched to mail trains.

Draft Boards Closing

Alvin E. Yaste, of Draft Board No. 2, said he has been advised by Selective Service that his office, and that of other draft boards may remain closed today, tomorrow and Saturday, but employes are asked to work July 13, to make up for Friday. The offices are normally on a five-day week basis.

Office of Price Administration employees, now on a volunteer basis said they would not report to their posts the rest of the week, and expressed the hope that they will be back in their jobs officially next week.

Trial magistrates court will be closed all day today, but will be open tomorrow, as will all circuit court offices and other offices in the court house. City hall employes will get a holiday today but will report for duty Friday.

Banks and other institutions will observe today as a holiday, as will practically all retail and wholesale establishments. Business as usual, is the order of the day for tomorrow.

The Cumberland News will not appear tomorrow morning, as employes take a holiday today. The Evening Times will not appear this evening, as Times employes are also observing the holiday. There will be an issue of the Times Friday as usual.

No Celebration Planned

The Fourth of July looms locally as just another holiday, with no celebration of a public nature planned. However, many residents are planning long weekend holidays, and traffic last night, out-bound from the city, indicated that many are going to resorts and other places, at least for the day.

Police anticipate heavy traffic tonight, and again Sunday night, and urge all motorists to drive cautiously, and try to reduce the usually heavy toll of holiday accidents.

At Constitution Park here, where July 4 is usually a record day, preparations have been made to accommodate hundreds of persons seeking relaxation out-of-doors.

Jury Of Inquisition Finds Westernport Man Is Inebriate

In the first case of its kind to be tried in court here in many years, a jury of inquisition yesterday afternoon in circuit court ruled that Lester McIntyre, 39, Westernport, is an habitual drunkard. Immediately after the hearing, Chief Judge William A. Huster signed an order committing McIntyre to the Eastern Shore State hospital at Cambridge for treatment.

Differing somewhat from usual court cases where judges preside, the trial yesterday to determine whether or not McIntyre was an inebriate was conducted with Sheriff David M. Steele as the presiding officer.

Inebriacy cases frequently come before the court, but seldom are they contested, and orders committing defendants to institutions are signed without the necessity of a trial.

McIntyre, a veteran of over three years in the armed forces, spent two months at the Eastern Shore hospital after being committed by Judge Huster with his consent, but was released after two months at the request of his relatives. He declared yesterday that he did not want to return to the hospital.

The petition asking McIntyre's commitment was obtained by his brother, J. Milton McIntyre.

Rep. Beall Says Loan To Britain Would Cost County $2,435,244

The British loan would cost Allegany county $2,435,244 and the city of Cumberland $1,105,524, Rep. J. Glenn Beall said yesterday in pointing out that serious thought is imperative before the United States adds further to its multi-billion-dollar national debt for the benefit of any foreign country.

The $3,750,000,000 required, he said, would, in $1 bills placed end to end, encircle the earth 16 times. One member of Congress with whom he discussed the loan said it would furnish enough $1 bills to cover 280 acres. Another member said it would make a stack of $1,000 bills as high as the Empire state building and another said it would purchase 750,000 $5,000 homes or place a decent hospital in every county in the United States.

$2,000 For Every Resident

At the present time the national debt is about $272,000,000,000 or $2,000 for every man, woman and child in the United States. Maryland's share is about $3,642,488,000, he said, pointing out that the British loan comes at a time when the states and counties were about to get out of debt.

Rep. Beall added, however, that the "New Deal will never let us get even. They propose to invest about $17,000,000,000 in foreign loans and international financing. They want to continually keep our nose to the grindstone to aid foreign countries."

The British loan, Rep. Beall reported, will cost the following cities these amounts: New York, $207,637,312; Chicago, $94,644,144; Philadelphia, $54,188,568; Baltimore, $23,940,924.

Allegany Is Highest

Reporting on the cost of the loan to the counties of the Sixth district, Rep. Beall presented the following figures: Allegany county, population 86,973, $2,435,244; Garrett, population 21,981, $615,468; Washington, population 68,838, $1,927,464; Frederick, population 37,312, $1,604,736; Montgomery, population 83,812, $2,366,736.

The cost to Cumberland would amount to $1,105,524; Frostburg $314,452 and Westernport $99,820, Rep. Beall said.

Returned GI Predicts "Fiesta Time" As Filipinos Mark Independence

By F. ALAN WEATHERHOLT

While all the 48 states pause today to observe the signing of the Declaration of Independence, with little or no fanfare, many veterans who saw service a year ago in the Philippines will wonder about the beginning of independence in the islands.

Today marks the legal beginning of the Commonwealth of the Philippines as an independent nation, and will doubtless be one of great celebration and, as the Filipinos say, "fiesta time."

A year ago, after three years of domination by the Japanese, the average Filipino held little hope and had little thought of today as his Independence day.

In Northern Luzon, where troops of the Sixth army made their initial beachhead on three beaches in moon-shaped Lingayen gulf January 9, 1945, most Filipinos consider that was their day of independence. That was the day we fought our way ashore and had our first contact with these little "American brothers."

Filipinos Welcomed GIs

They swarmed down to the beach where we landed from LST No. 744, and where several hundred other landing craft of various kinds were putting other GIs and equipment ashore. Of course they didn't come down right away. They had followed instructions dropped from our planes and were hiding in the hills.

But after the Japs had withdrawn from the beach, (those that could get away), the Filipinos came in pairs, in groups, and in bunches of 40 and 50. They were exuberant. They were shouting. They were laughing. They were crying. They jumped and waved and tried to shake hands with any GI who stopped long enough. They tried to help. They did help. Sometimes they got in the way, or had to be chased into zones of safety. But the GI took it in his stride, grinned, and went on about his business of extermination.

When we got to know these people, we realized they were not a bunch of jumping-jacks, or yelling, screaming monkeys, as they might have appeared. They were kindly, gracious, courteous, patriotic and sincere.

As we traveled inland, and went through such places as Damortis, where we saw our first real evidence of Jap atrocities against civilians, (and they weren't pretty), on to San Fabian, which our guns had leveled, and fought our way into the picturesque town of Manaog, roadways were lined with half-starved, half-naked little people. They waved two fingers in the air yelling, "Hello Joe", "Victory," "Roosevelt," "Welcome," "Independence."

And today they are independent. They have grown up through fire and battle and slavery and intolerance and invasion, and all things un-America. They have survived, but at very great cost. The cost is greater than you can imagine, unless you saw it, and learned to understand it.

In all of the 7,000 islands which make up the Philippine group only about 1,000 are inhabited. Of this vast number 11, the largest of which is Luzon, comprise the important part of the Philippines. But as we reflect this day, we'd wager many pesos that there is celebration everywhere.

Victory Parade Described

They are that kind of people. They love "fiesta," and will promote a party, or parade, or celebration on the slightest provocation. The first "victory" parade we saw was in Manaog, on January 15, 1945. It's hard to say where they got them, but they were bedecked in all the colored costumes they could piece together. Some of them were clad in raiment as colorful as Joseph's cloak, but very ragged. Everyone was barefooted.

There was a band, a five-piece band, with battered but shined and polished instruments which made music as the musicians blew and played for all they were worth. About 600 school children made up the last division. They carried banners and placards of welcome and greeting and every type of slogan and phrase. Some made your heart go right out to them.

One little fellow struggled under a banner which scrawled, "Give Me Liberty or Give Me Death". Another held the words, "I am an American," high above his head. And there were many more.

It seemed to us it was a nice tribute. But it was a solemn tribute too. One of the guerrillas in our outfit explained, "My people are very proud and very brave, but sometimes they are very serious".

We learned to know them and to admire them. We attended many of their "fiestas" and celebrations. We talked with men of high and low estate. We learned some things about freedom and independence and liberty and justice we hadn't thought much about before.

Sacrifice Realized

We discovered many had preferred "liberty or death," and paid with horrible death. We saw what it meant, really meant, to proclaim, "I am an American". We saw the sick and maimed and the dead. We saw these things. And as we moved across the island on our own grim business, we began to realize more and more just a little of the sacrifice that had been made 170 years ago, to create our America, which a little people, 7,000 miles from here, proudly proclaimed.

It must be a happy day in the Philippine islands today. Every market square, every barrio, every city, town and village is jubilant. The little gaily colored pony carts are spotless and shiny. The ponies prance gaily under sprays of flowers stuck in their harness. Every one is wearing his party clothes. People sing and smile and there are no strangers. There is dancing in the streets today.

Here and there a GI mingles with the crowd. He stands out because he is taller, and sturdier. He is plied with gifts and smiles and greetings. And his little brown brother salutes him proudly and calls him Joe. "Today, I am an American and a Filipino. Today my country is a nation," he explains.

Then he pauses and adds a little wistfully, "Do you think we can ever become a state?"

Husband Shoots Wife In Abdomen On Local Street

Mrs. Helen Branson, 40, Baltimore, was admitted to Memorial hospital last evening at 9:10 o'clock suffering from a gunshot wound of the abdomen police said was inflicted by her husband, Samuel Branson, 40, also of Baltimore, formerly of this section.

Assistant Chief of Police John J. Treiber said the shooting occurred in front of 227 Springdale street about 9 o'clock following an argument.

Police said Branson pulled the .38 caliber Smith and Wesson revolver and shot his wife. The bullet, they added, entered in the center of the abdomen and emerged on the right side of the spine.

Police said they were told by the attending physician that the woman had a fair chance for recovery.

Branson is being held in the city jail for questioning by the state's attorney's office.

Police said a broadcast from headquarters at 9:03 p. m. was received by Officer J. Carl Stouffer who sped to Springdale street and found the injured woman lying on the sidewalk.

While Officers John W. Snyder and Arthur Kennell took the woman to the hospital, Officers Stouffer, Guy Williams, R. M. Nuse and Detective Thomas J. See began the search for Branson.

Treiber said the officers captured the man in the 200 block of Virginia avenue just as he was about to get into a taxicab. Officer Nuse later recovered the revolver, police said.

Authorities said Branson admitted firing the shot and added that they have a witness to the shooting.

Checkups were made Monday, Tuesday and yesterday on approximately 80 cases handled by the Allegany County League for Crippled Children at health centers in Westernport, Lonaconing and Frostburg, according to Mrs. Hume O. Annan, executive secretary of the league.

Mrs. Annan, accompanied by Miss Elma Georg, physical therapist for the league, examined children and interviewed their parents to discover whether necessary shoes and braces had been obtained, and whether physical therapy needs were being filled.

Mrs. Mary Whitfield, public health nurse for the Lonaconing district, and Miss Henrieta Lippold, public health nurse in Frostburg, assisted in making the survey.

Idle Coal Hoppers Are Worn Out, Wyatt Reports

B. And O. Official Says Cars Are To Be Sold For Scrap

More than 100 coal cars are standing idle on railroad sidings in this county, but H. F. Wyatt, superintendent of the Cumberland division of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, said last night they would be of no help in relieving the coal hopper shortage since they are beyond repair and are awaiting condemnation before being cut up and sold for scrap.

Pictures of empty coal hoppers were published yesterday in The Evening Times which pointed out that many coal mines along the B. and O. are closed and many men are out of work because of the shortage of cars.

Wyatt said, however, that the cars shown in the photographs have been out of service for five to six years and that it would cost more to repair them than to buy new ones.

Stored At Keyser

Some of the cars, he said, are stored on unused tracks of the Cumberland and Pennsylvania railroad to prevent them from blocking "live" yards of the B. and O.

Many of the cars for some time were stored in the Keyser yards, but later were moved to their present locations after arrangements were made with the C. and P.

None of the cars can be repaired, Wyatt asserted, although the trucks on some of them can be salvaged. Other trucks are outdated and are not worth salvaging, he added.

The Keyser shop force has been increased and all cars in disrepair that can be repaired are being taken care of currently, Wyatt said.

Predicts Relief

He pointed out that even if the worn out cars could be repaired they would amount to but a "drop in the bucket" to the number of cars needed.

Some 25,000 coal cars are reported to be tied up at ports on the Great Lakes and about half that number on the Eastern seaboard.

Wyatt predicted that the hopper shortage will be relieved materially over the weekend with cars being unloaded and the miners taking a holiday.

Frostburg Woman Is Killed In Fall

FROSTBURG, July 3—Mrs. Leoma Snyder Whitehead, 31, Frostburg, died yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock as a result of a fractured skull suffered when she was thrown from a hay rake at her father's farm one mile northeast of here.

The accident occurred at 4:20 p. m. when the horses ran away as the well known woman was raking hay. She was brought to Miners hospital at 4:45 p. m. but died before admission.

Mrs. Whitehead died on the third anniversary of her marriage to Harold Whitehead, a Celanese worker. Mr. and Mrs. Whitehead started last Monday to build a home near her father's farm.

She was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Snyder, Frostburg, and graduated from Beall high school in 1943. While her husband was serving in the army she was employed as a saleswoman for the Hill confectionary store here.

Westernport Man Accused Of Attacking Trial Magistrate

Bernard Kenney, Westernport, was held in the Westernport jail last night after he allegedly attacked Magistrate A. W. Detterman in an alleyway earlier in the evening.

State police said they were informed the magistrate fined Kenney $6 on a minor charge several nights ago, and that Kenney was incensed and attacked the magistrate for that reason.

Authorities said they were informed Kenney approached the magistrate on the street, asked to talk with him in the alley and then attacked him.

Good Meat Supply Predicted Here For Weekend

Cumberland will have an ample supply of home-dressed meat at the usual prices over the weekend, George F. Garlitz, president of the Independent Retail Food Dealers' Association of Western Maryland, predicted yesterday.

Discussing the general situation in regard to food here since the demise of the OPA, Garlitz also predicted that the flow of meat products from the big packing houses will begin around the middle of next week, although he expects a slight price increase in about 10 days.

He pointed out that the price of big oranges increased about 10 per cent Tuesday but reminded that small oranges decreased in price by about 40 per cent. He said he believes price fluctuations such as these are examples of the market getting back to normal.

Predicting that prices will remain reasonably constant, Garlitz said, "You've got to remember that we've all had all the OPA we want and we well know that if we run wild we'll get another set of regulations."

Butter — Should be an ample amount in 30 days.

Shortening—"This will be a long haul" due to the fact that the pig population in America is at an all-time low. It will probably be at least a year before shortening is available in any quantities.

Soaps—Will also be hard to get for at least a year due to the shortage of basic fats.

Canned Fruits—Fruit crop prospects excellent and there should be an abundance of canned fruits by early fall.

Bread — Situation already improved with grocers reporting a supply left over on their counters at the end of the day. The spring wheat crop was good and hit the market around the last of June.

Fresh Produce — Should be a quantity, especially of potatoes. Crops are generally reported good.

Salad Dressings — Will continue scarce due to the shortage of oils which are largely imported. The whole world is clamoring for oils which are supplied mainly by South America.

Cheese—Coming back, with the Cumberland supply mainly from Pennsylvania and the midwest. Cheese market steady at 45 cents a pound although there may be an increase due to the fact that there was a big subsidy on cheese.

Two Celanese Workers Are Injured in Crash

Two Celanese workers were treated in Memorial hospital last evening at 7:45 o'clock for slight injuries suffered, they told attaches, when the car in which they were riding, crashed against a tree on Oldtown road.

Emory Lease, 27, 41 Browning street, who told attaches he was driving the car, was treated for an abrasion on the knee and a bump on the head while Robert Kasecamp, 29, 315 Fifth street, riding with him, suffered abrasions on the head, right arm and body. Both were able to return to their homes after dispensary treatment.

Car Damages Hedge

Slight damage to a hedge and shrubbery on the property of Maurice A. Mullan 435 Laing avenue, resulted when a car driven by Larry Viriante, 635 West street, Carlisle, Pa., ran upon the property Tuesday about 8:45 p. m. Officer Louis D. Downey, who investigated for city police, said that the left front wheel of the car was damaged but reported nobody was injured.

Buyers' Strike Is Threatened By Labor Group

White Receives Over 150 Reports Of Rent Increases Here

Retail merchants, as well as wholesale houses and manufacturers here, appeared to be making a conscientious effort thus far, to hold the price of most commodities at OPA levels, but repeated increases in rents locally were reported yesterday.

At the same time, organized labor spokesmen indicated the forces of labor are being rallied for a "buyers' strike," in the event the over-all cost of living starts to spiral upward.

Caleb J. White, rent inspector for Allegany county, under the OPA set-up, said yesterday his office has over 150 reports of rent increases here since OPA control expired.

The worst case was reported yesterday from several quarters, involving a landlord from a nearby Pennsylvania town who owns about 30 low-rent dwelling units here and at Cresaptown. He normally collects from $20 to $35 per month rental for each unit. Yesterday a number of tenants reported he had informed them their rents would be raised to $30 to $50 or about a 50% increase.

This particular individual has done about everything in recent months to obtain permission under OPA to raise his rents, and now that restrictions have been lifted, he is really raising them, White declared.

Woman's Rent Doubled

Another case involves a woman who pays $17 per month for a very small apartment. Yesterday, she declared her rent has been raised to $35 per month. The woman has only a nominal income and declares she can't pay that much rent.

Case after case has come to attention of the Rent Control office, where the personnel continue on their jobs voluntarily to answer questions.

White was highly complimentary in his comments yesterday regarding members of the Cumberland Real Estate Board. He declared not a single complaint has been filed by any tenant of any member of the Board. Complaints are registered mostly against individual property owners, or others who rent property on a large scale such as the Pennsylvania man.

A few food prices advanced a cent or two a pound or can in some stores yesterday, but these were mostly isolated cases of mark-ups. George F. Garlitz, president of the Independent Food Dealers Association predicted yesterday that there will be an increase in the supply of meat and other food commodities, although the price will be higher.

"You've got to remember that we've had all of the OPA that we want and we well know that if we run wild we'll get a new set of regulations," Garlitz declared, as he predicted that prices would not advance too sharply.

Numerous local merchants have publicized their intention of holding the price level as long as possible, several have posted signs or published advertisements.

Labor Meeting Called

The threat of the "buyers strike" comes from the Western Maryland Labor Unity Conference, a group composed of CIO, AFL, and un-affiliated labor organizations. C. E. Stutzman, president declared he plans to call a special meeting to discus the possibility of asking the mayor and city council to adopt a rent control ordinance.

Commenting on the Baltimore labor proposal for a "buyers' strike" throughout the state, Stutzman said labor here will back the idea 100%.

In the meantime Max W. Bastian, chairman of the Mercantile Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce, called a meeting of the bureau and of all merchants for 9:30 a. m. Friday when a program of controlling prices will be discussed.

The meeting of local merchants is being called at the request of some local store owners as well as at the suggestion of Rep. J. Glenn Beall and William K. Jackson, president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce.

Jackson in a letter to Harold W. Smith, secretary of the local chamber, said the lifting of controls "imposes upon business a heavy responsibility. It puts private enterprise to a severe test."

Keep Prices Down

Rep. Beall, in his letter to Smith, urges that merchants "keep retail prices at the lowest possible level," and expressed the view there is "som doubt that any price control act will be written which will meet with the approval of the President."

The congressman writes further:

"I believe it would be helpful and would be appreciated by the general public if through your organization and immediate effort was made by the business men in an agreement to hold prices down regardless of former controls. I am sure such a move on the part of the business men would be most welcome to the public and would bring about a greater confidence and good will for the future. I make this suggestion in the hope that we will be able to return to the American competitive system of doing business."

Textile Workers Plan Picnic Today

Senator Robert B. Kimble will speak at the annual Fourth of July picnic of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, CIO, to be held today at the community pool and park in Frostburg, William Boyd Coleman, president, announced yesterday.

Chartered bus service will be given free to union members and buses will leave Textile hall at 10 a. m. to pick up passengers here and in LaVale and Eckhart. Another bus will leave the McCoole-Keyser bridge at 9:30 a. m. and stop at all regular bus stops.

Members are requested to bring basket lunches but drinks and sandwiches will be provided for all. The day's program, which includes swimming and games, will be concluded with a dance from 10 p. m. to 2 a. m. in the Firemen's hall.

positions and 13 long distance positions. This is simply not enough equipment to efficiently handle the number of calls being made."

The company has sufficient operators, all of whom are doing a splendid job, Smith said, pointing out that slow answers from operators is no fault of theirs but the fault of insufficient equipment.

"We want to be able to give telephone service to all who desire it and we want to give it without delay," he said, "but we cannot do this until we are able to expand our office facilities."

Expects New Equipment

In order to hold delays on calls to a minimum, Smith urged subscribers to place calls during slack periods, if possible.

The number of calls going through the local switchboards reaches a peak between 9 a. m. and noon, Smith pointed out, recommending that calls be made before or after this period to relieve the situation.

Some 65,550 local and long distance telephone calls are being handled daily by operators and equipment at the local offices of the Cumberland and Chesapeake Telephone Company of Baltimore City, Howard M. Smith, manager, said yesterday.

This unprecedented number of calls, representing an increase of more than 17,000 over last year, is the result of the addition of 1,400 new telephones over last year and the fact that today telephones are being used more than ever before, Smith recalled that as of June 1, the Cumberland central office was serving 11,887 telephones.

No Additional Equipment

Commenting on the fact that subscribers are sometimes troubled by slow answers from the operators when they make a call, Smith emphasized that the greatly increased volume of business is being handled with no additional equipment.

"At the present time," he said, "approximately 64,000 local calls and 1,550 toll calls are being taken care of through 24 local switchboard
